FIREMEN CALL OFF TRUCE

WOMAN YIELDS HER JEWELS AT LANDIS' DEMAND

Marcuse Man's Wife Hands Them Over.

Jewelry for which her husband had paid $1,800, along with $1,900 in cash in the bank, was surrendered to Judge Landis in court yesterday by Mrs. Lew H. Morris, wife of one of the partners in the defunct brokerage house of Marcuse & Co. Mrs. Morris made the surrender when she heard her husband admit that the gems had been purchased with money which should belong to the creditors of his concern.

The surrender of the jewels by Mrs. Morris was the climax of a dramatic hearing before Judge Landis during which both Benjamin Marcuse and his partner, Morris, testified and made what were considered important admissions. All through the hearing the partners were spurred on to their testimony by Judge Landis, who refused to let them "lose their memories."

Memory Is Refreshed.

Three times during the hearing Morris was turned over to the United States marshal to refresh his memory and it was only after he had been brought into court the last time that he made his most important admissions. These were that he had known that Marcuse & Co. was insolvent as early as last October, that he had continued to accept business and commissions in that knowledge, that he had used the United States mails to ask for margins from customers, and that he had accepted "gifts" from Marcuse.

Marcuse was more hazy in spite of Judge Landis' promptings. He admitted, however, the use of the mails in calls for margins and the juggling of accounts. He refused a direct answer to the question how long he knew his concern to be insolvent, taking refuge in his constitutional right to refuse to incriminate himself.

Admits Gift of Jewels.

It was Marcuse's story of his gift of stock valued at $2,000 to Morris that led to the forced surrender of Mrs. Morris' jewels.

"Did you give your wife any costly jewelry in 1919? Did you boast about it?" Judge Landis shot at Morris while he was on the stand.

"Yes, I gave her a diamond link bracelet," was the response.

"Where is your wife?"

"Home."

"Telephone her to come down here and bring the bracelet."

Morris left the courtroom and telephoned. As he returned the deputy marshal who accompanied him whispered in Judge Landis' ear.

"Did you telephone your wife?" asked the judge, turning to him.

"Yes," was the reply.

"Why did you tell her she needn't bring it all down'?"

"I only repeated your instructions."

The judge arose from his seat.

Orders Jewels Seized.

"Clerk," he ordered, "issue a subpoena for Mrs. Morris. Send a deputy marshal after her in a taxicab and bring all her jewelry down here."

The hearing was resumed, other witnesses testifying until Mrs. Morris appeared an hour later. She was dressed in a mink coat, a dark colored hat and suit. When called to the witness stand she held a black jewel case in her hand.

"Have you an automobile?" was the first question Judge Landis asked.

She answered that she had not.

"Has your husband given you any jewelry lately?"

"Yes, a diamond bracelet and a platinum chain."

The judge became interested. He walked towards Mrs. Morris.

"Let me see that chain," he said.

Mrs. Morris handed it over. The judge examined it, played with it, and then turned to Morris.

Morris on Rack.

"Morris, why didn't you tell me about this chain?"

"I forgot—"

"When did you remember?"

"When I went to the phone.

"That's when you told her 'You needn't bring all of it down.' Why did you tell her that?"

"The bracelet was all I could think of—"

"I won't waste time on you. Why did you tell her that?"

"I didn't have any ulterior motive."

"Who said you did? What did I say

MOVE TO FORGE ALLIANCE FOR JAPAN-U. S. A.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

TOKIO, April 3.—A conference of representatives of Japanese and American business men, at the conclusion of a series of frank sessions, has unanimously decided to recommend to Washington and Tokio the appointment of an imperial high commission to investigate the land dispute in California and the allied questions and formulate recommendations for a definite solution.

Ambassador Alexander and Premier Shibusawa both express confidence, although the latter says an ominous cloud still looms, demanding a degree of haste in whatever is done. The Japanese expect favorable legislative action to follow.

The resolution adopted urges the governments to take action so that "the vital and intricate questions which concern the peace of two nations cannot be used by politicians and agitators to promote discord."

KING OF 3 BANDS OF OUTLAWS DIES WITH BOOTS OFF

Memphis, Tenn., April 3.—[Special.]—Capt. Kit Dalton, the sole survivor of Jesse James' band of outlaws, the Quantrell raiders, and the Sam Bass Texas band of outlaws, died here tonight.

He did not die with his boots on. Capt. Kit succumbed to an illness which extended over a period of four years.

Kit Dalton was born in Logan county, Ky., Jan. 23, 1848. As a youngster he ran away from home and joined Bedford Forrest's confederate cavalry during the civil war.

It was while visiting his home on a furlough that he organized a band of guerrillas, which joined Quantrell's band and continued operating in the southwest after the war closed.

Later Dalton linked his fortune with those of Jesse and Frank James. Five governors had set a price on his head, offering $50,000.

At one time he was a member of Sam Bass' gang in Texas and saw Bass killed during a holdup in Franklin, Ky.

Dalton finally was given amnesty by the government and returned here to live out his life in quiet.

FLYING IRON CLAD WINS U. S. TEST; CARRIES CANNON

Dayton, O., April 3.—Army officials at McCook field tonight described as "entirely successful" the first test flight of a new United States army armored triplane.

The one difficulty encountered was the failure of the radiators to function properly, causing the engines to overheat. It was declared this trouble could be easily remedied.

Vital parts of the plane are protected by heavy armor and for offense it has a cannon and three machine guns.

1,258 RESIGN AFTER NIGHT CONFERENCE

April 10 Is Fixed as Day for Walkout.

More than 1,200 city firemen handed their resignations to John F. Cullerton, manager of properties, last night.

The action came after a night of wrangling. Mr. Cullerton stood out against the demand for resignation until after 11 p. m. Then, when his last plea for further truce had been voted down, he gave way.

Cullerton, in the afternoon, had gained a point with the firemen. When they came, for the second time in a week, to lay their resignations before the chief, he persuaded them to delay. A conference was arranged for 9 o'clock.

Conference of No Avail.

At 9 o'clock the argument began. The men, 1,258 of them, all with resignations previously prepared and signed, were not to be denied.

A conference with Mayor Thompson in the afternoon had come to naught.

The mayor extended large quantities of sympathy to the firemen, but declared he did not know any way in which their pay could be raised to $2,100 this year, as they demand.

For two hours during the evening session Mr. Cullerton pleaded, argued and persuaded, but to no avail. To each of his suggestions, the reply of President Hargan backed by the committee was:

"We have been ordered to do one thing—present these resignations. If we don't do that what are we going to tell our organization? The members are criticizing us, calling us white livered? We cannot act otherwise."

Hope in Mayor.

Mayor Thompson, the members of the committee believe, is the lone barrier between the city and a potential strike of its firemen. If he appears, as they have asked, at their meeting tomorrow, and tells the entire body of fire fighters, why it is impossible to give definite assurances of a pay raise at this time, it is probable that the resignations will be withdrawn, President Hargan believes.

Verification of the signatures on the resignations will be begun today. Without such verification they are not legal. It is probable that they will be sent out to the engine houses and there is a probability that, away from the red fire speakers of their association, the men will think twice before verifying their signatures.

May Be Refused.

Then too, if the men are obdurate, Fire Marshal O'Connor may delay action by ruling that since the resignations did not come "through channels"

The Price of The Sunday Tribune in Chicago and Suburbs Remains at 7c

To the Public:

Everywhere through the country publishers are laboring under the effects of the acute shortage of newsprint. In the effort to conserve white paper newspaper prices have been raised in many cities.

The Chicago Tribune has found it necessary to make radical curtailments in its use of paper, and to accomplish the saving has been compelled to raise its price in those districts where the competition of newspapers from other cities is more effective. By this means and by other curtailments and economies, The Tribune is now saving more than 400 tons of white paper each week.

But in Chicago and its suburban districts, competition of papers published in other cities is not felt. To increase the price of The Chicago Sunday Tribune here could have no effect except to increase The Tribune's revenues at the expense of the public. Therefore, unless other contingencies make the step unavoidable, The Tribune Company will not increase the price of The Sunday Tribune in Chicago and suburbs.

The price will remain at 7c as heretofore.

The public is requested to immediately advise us of any attempt to charge more than 7c anywhere in Chicago and the suburban districts within a radius of forty miles.

When you buy today's Chicago Sunday Tribune, pay 7c. Pay no more!

DOUBLE WEDDING MAKES BUDDY HIS FATHER-IN-LAW

Baltimore, Md., April 3.—The relationship of two soldiers at Fort McHenry was strangely changed from that of "buddy" to father-in-law by a double wedding in which they married a widow and her daughter.

The double wedding occurred when Harrison O. Lamb was married to Mrs. Ida C. Phoebus and George A. Reams married her daughter, Miss Mary M. Phoebus.

The soldiers were boyhood friends in St. Joseph, Mo., and met by chance at Fort McHenry. They met the widow and her daughter at a dance Valentine's day.

TROOPS GUARD MAYFIELD, KY., IN "TOBACCO WAR"

Lexington, Ky., April 3.—[Special.]—State troops with automatic rifles are on guard at Mayfield, where the sheriff is calling in witnesses to recent tobacco war night riding. The judge dealing with the cases may appeal for federal troops. Roads about Mayfield are patrolled by state troops.

Kaiser Celebrates Visit of Daughter, Putting Up Saw

AMERONGEN, April 3.—[By the Associated Press.]—The presence at Amerongen of his daughter and son-in-law has brought a change in the former German emperor's way of living. Since the arrival of the Duchess of Brunswick Wilhelm has not sawed a single tree. Both he and the former empress have grown much calmer and are certainly enjoying the visit of their only daughter. On Thursday the rector from Zeeist came to the castle and religious services were held. These were the first services since the outbreak of the Kapp revolution.

Baltimore Will Vote on Sunday Movies; Yes? No?

Annapolis, Md., April 3.—The Sunday motion picture bill for Baltimore, which failed in the senate last night because of the lack of a constitutional majority, was reconsidered and passed by the senate today. The bill, which now goes to the governor, provides that Baltimore shall be furnished an opportunity to decide by referendum whether motion picture places shall be open on Sunday.

Easter Blizzard Ties Up Traffic Through Nebraska

Lincoln, Neb., April 3.—An Easter blizzard descended on Nebraska today and tonight. With the storm increasing in violence, prospects were for a bad tieup of railroad traffic. A heavy snow fell all afternoon and continued tonight and this was driven by a wind that piled the drifts high.

ROGER IMPROVES; TALKS POLITICS

Confers with Lynch and Urey Woodson.

Roger is himself again.

Roger C. Sullivan, Democratic leader in Illinois, who has been seriously ill since his return to the city from Hot Springs, Va., yesterday resumed his active interest in politics. As indicative that he is improving, he held a short conference at his daughter's home, at 342 Wellington avenue, with Fred B. Lynch, Democratic committeeman from Minnesota, and Urey Woodson of Kentucky, ex-secretary of the national committee. National politics and the part to be played by the Illinois delegation of fifty-eight to the Democratic national convention, which will be headed by Mr. Sullivan, were discussed.

Shows Old Time "Pep."

The result of the conference was not made public, but Mr. Sullivan is said to have assured his callers that Illinois' part in the San Francisco meeting will be as important as it was at Baltimore, when the state led the movement which resulted in the nomination of Wilson.

Throughout the conference Mr. Sullivan was cheerful and showed his old time "pep." He has lost slightly in flesh, but so little that the change is hardly perceptible. He is also still slightly incommoded by a bronchial congestion, but otherwise seems no worse for his recent illness. He expects to be on the street again within a week or ten days.

Before his conference with the Democratic leaders Mr. Sullivan was visited by Dr. Charles Louis Mix, who has been associated with Dr. Frank Billings in attendance on him. Dr. Mix assured the family that the patient's condition was entirely satisfactory. His pulse is normal and his temperature has not been above 99 degrees for forty-eight hours. The physicians told the family there was no reason why Mr. Sullivan's recovery from his present illness should not be complete.

Verdict of Physicians.

"He can participate in the San Francisco convention or attend to any kind of business just as he did before he became ill," was the verdict. "His illness has been serious, but at no time has it been dangerous."

It is Mr. Sullivan's intention to resume the same part in Democratic politics that he played before his illness. He will be elected as one of the delegates at large to the Democratic national convention when the Democratic state convention is held. He will also act as chairman of the delegation.

In one sense Mr. Sullivan has "retired" from politics, but his illness has had nothing to do with that. He charged it to his growing business interests—Sawyer Biscuit company and the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock.

Mr. Sullivan's friends yesterday expressed their indignation at reports that his physicians had told him that he could not participate actively in politics in the future, and had advised he be sent to a western ranch.

Boetius Sullivan, son of the Democratic leader, said that the reports were made out of whole cloth, and Dr. Mix also denied all knowledge of such plans.

Report Trotzky Will Visit London to Negotiate Peace

LONDON, April 3.—[United News.]—A news agency dispatch from Copenhagen tonight said an unconfirmed report from Warsaw declared Leon Trotzky, bolshevik war minister, proposes to visit London and Paris to negotiate a definite peace.

Violate Treaty at Your Peril: Paris to Berlin

PARIS, April 3.—After warning the German chargé d'affaires in a note that the French government would admit of no derogation of the treaty of Versailles, Premier Millerand conferred with Marshal Foch this evening.

Marshal Foch then had a conference with the minister of war, Andre Lefevre, who later was received by the premier.

Premier Millerand's note to Dr. von Mayer recalls that he had written him yesterday asking him to insist that his government retire the troops which recently entered the Ruhr basin.

Acts, Then Asks Permission.

"Today at 5:45 p. m. Dr. Goeppert (head of the German peace commission) informed the president of the peace conference that troops exceeding the number allowed by the decision of Aug. 9, 1919, had entered the Ruhr basin and asking me to give formal permission for their entry after the entry had been effected," M. Millerand's note says.

"I learn that Van Haniel (Dr. Haniel von Haimhausen, undersecretary of the German foreign office) confirms that the German government has given entire liberty of action to Severing (Prussian minister of the interior) for the employment of the troops concentrated for operations in the Ruhr basin, and that Severing assumes responsibility for their actions in this zone.

Troops Already Advance.

"I learn further that the reichswehr's attack commenced in the neutral zone on April 2, and that the front troops have already reached north of Dortmund and Duisburg.

"By this offensive the German government infringes article 43 of the treaty.

"I will inform you later what decision the government of the republic takes."

In a statement to a Havas representative this evening Premier Millerand said:

"We are confronted with a systematic violation of article 43 of the treaty. Bad faith in the explanations offered by the German government for its alleged mistake is evidenced by the rapidity of the advance of the troops despite our interdiction.

"The necessity of repressing the troubles in the Ruhr district does not justify the German initiative. The acts of disorder, in fact, were localized; already the conflict is approaching extinction by peaceful means.

"Intervention by the regular forces may lead to the worst consequences."

Premier Silent on Plans.

M. Millerand, as president of the council, naturally refused to state specifically what measures the French government contemplated to counteract the German proceedings, but said:

"I have made it a point to ask advice of Marshal Foch, and, at the same time, have informed and consulted with the allies."

It is believed that France will demand as a guarantee the occupation by the allies of Frankfort, Darmstadt, and Hanu.

Berlin Is Satisfied.

BERLIN, April 3.—Official reports say the situation in the Ruhr territory is decidedly improved. Both Duisburg and Oberhausen have been occupied. The Reds are surrendering their weapons in many places near Essen. Bandits are plundering.

Socialists Win Election in Davenport; All Offices

Davenport, Iowa, April 3.—[Special.]—The Socialists carried today's city election, electing all city officers and five out of eight aldermen. Their platform called for reduced taxation, no bond issues except through direct vote, and lower street car fares. Dr. C. L. Barewald is the new mayor.

BRITISH ARMY HOLDS EASTER LID ON ERIN

Cordon of Military Circles Dublin.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]
[Copyright: 1920: By the Tribune Company.]

DUBLIN, April 3.—In spite of the fact that the authorities profess to expect no trouble in Dublin the city is surrounded today by a military cordon and no one is allowed to enter or leave without being searched.

I motored out this afternoon to visit a leading Irishman in the village of Chapelizod, five miles out of Dublin. The car was stopped on the main street of the village by a barrier of barbed wire. I was ordered to get out and searched by a soldier, while another searched the driver. We underwent the same process on returning.

Hay Probed with Bayonets.

DUBLIN, April 3.—[By the Associated Press.]—The military precautions in Dublin exceed anything of the kind seen since Easter, 1915. Particular attention is being paid by the military cordon around the city to loads of hay, which are probed with bayonets while even the suburban street cars are stopped and the passengers searched for arms.

At Finglas, on the north side of the city, the troops have taken possession of some unoccupied houses and appear to contemplate a stay for a few days. St. Enda's college, at Rathfarnham formerly conducted by Patrick Pearse who was executed during the rebellion of 1916, is also occupied by soldiers. Soldiers have erected a barricade with barbed wire on the roads outside of Cullenwood house, in Ranelach, where Pearse's mother lives, and the children's school kept by Miss Duffy, sister of George Gavan Duffy, who was identified with the defense of Sir Roger Casement and Sinn Fein representative at Paris.

O'Reilly's Kin Arrested.

The residence of Miss Humphrey sister of "The O'Reilly," who was killed in the street fighting at the time of the rebellion, was searched and Mrs Humphrey's son-in-law, a student, was arrested.

An armored car is stationed at the entrance to Kingstown pier to reinforce the military guard there. Soldiers unloaded fresh supplies of ammunition at Northwall and conveyed it in motor cars, protected by armored cars, through the city.

Dispatches from various parts of the country indicate a similar state of affairs at Derry, Tipperary, Newry, Limerick, and other places.

Restraint Is Urged.

The Freeman's Journal publishes a significant article headed "Peaceful Eastertide," in which it says:

"Let the young men of Ireland remember that the main chance the enemy has to complete his triumph of destroying the Irish is summed up in the sinister and savage advice which is going the round of the clubs of the militarists and diehards—'get them into the streets.'" The paper appeals to the people for restraint and self control.

The feeling in Cork, it is understood, is so embittered by the murder of Lord Mayor MacCurtain that anything may happen there. But so far as Dublin is concerned it is believed that Viscount French, the viceroy, will have to report, as did Lord Wimborne a couple of years ago, on the occasion of a similar scare—"not a dog barked."

Cattle Driven Off.

LONDON, April 3.—"Cattle driving" on a large scale occupied Galway and County Mayo today, according to a news agency dispatch received in London. At least 1,800 men took part, the drive in Galway sweeping from Creggs to Castleblakeney and Roscommon on one side and to Dunmore on the other. Thousands of acres were cleared, the police being powerless to check the drive.

There were three drives in County Mayo, where the grazers were helpless. The police, who have been augmented, and the military are helping to collect the cattle. Some arrests have been made.

All Wayfarers Searched.

BELFAST, April 3.—[By the Associated Press.]—In addition to pronounced military activity in the vicinity of Londonderry today, the passengers who arrived by the Scotch boat at Londonderry were searched by the police.

Meanwhile violent scenes were re ported taking place among the Sinn Fein prisoners confined in Londonderry jail.

Unusual activity also was displayed by the authorities at Dundalk, midway between Belfast and Dublin, special patrols being posted at all approaches to the town. The drivers of motor cars, which vehicles were numerous on the roads because of the Eastertide activities, were required to produce their permits.

Rising Not Expected.

If an Easter rising occurs—and in Ireland it is not expected—it will not be from lack of precautions on the part of the authorities. The visit to Lord Pirrie of Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, who has been mentioned as the possible successor to Gen. Sir Frederick Shaw as commander of the troops in Ireland, will last until next Tuesday.

Yesterday all automobiles passing through the Holy Wood military post near Belfast were held up and the good faith of the drivers tested. Two raids on suspected Sinn Fein premises were made in Belfast yesterday.

The mayor of Londonderry today was refused permission to visit Sinn Fein prisoners in the city jail, as he had not taken the oath as a magistrate.

Soldiers Raid Limerick.

LIMERICK, Munster, April 3.—[By the Associated Press.]—Numerous arrests were made here early today by the military, and many houses were searched. No explanation of the raids was made by the military leaders.

STOP PICKETING EMBASSY

Washington, D. C., April 3.—[Special.]—There was no picketing of the British embassy today. Instead, Mrs. Thomas J. Corliss of New York, who is directing the Washington campaign in behalf of a free and independent Ireland, led her co-workers to the capitol this afternoon to lay the Irish cause before Champ Clark, minority leader of the house.

"We did not stop picketing because of anything the state departmnet had to say," Mrs. Corliss said. "We picketed yesterday because it was Good Friday.

"We are not going to leave Washington. As to our future plans, wait and see. We have a surprise in store which we will spring in a few days."

Mrs. Corliss criticized Bainbrridge Colby, secretary of state. "If Mr. Colby prefers hospitality to the embassy to looking out for his country that is his business," she said.

DISARM TO HOLD U. S. FRIENDSHIP, BRITAIN WARNED

LONDON, April 3.—Discussing the American presidential situation and its possible effect on the relationship between Great Britain and the United States, the Daily News, under the heading, "America and Arms," refers to the reaction from war in the United States.

"Rightly or wrongly," the newspaper says, "America revolted against the treaty her representatives had helped to draft, and under the influence of that emotion resolved not merely to maintain her detachment from Europe, but to arm herself potentially against Europe.

"Nothing will bring the two hemispheres together more rapidly than a demonstration from this side of the Atlantic of a sincere resolution to disarm. Nothing could be more beneficial to Anglo-American relations than an invitation, extended more than once, by Walter Hume Long, speaking officially as first lord of the admiralty, for competition with America, not to increase armaments, but to decrease them."

RUSSIAN TRADE WITH AMERICA SOON TO REVIVE?

Washington, D. C., April 3.—The ban on trade relations with Russia soon may be lifted, officials here said today, although the recent American proposal to the supreme council for concerted action to this end by Great Britain, France, Italy, and the United States temporarily has deferred action here.

There will be no objection to the visit to this country of the Russian coöperative mission, soon to visit London, if its members prove the lack of any official connection between their coöperatives and the soviet government.

LAYS OUT DRESS ON PREMONITION, DIES IN 2 HOURS

Waukegan, Ill., April 3.—[Special.]—After laying out the clothes in which she desired to be buried, having a premonition of death, Mrs. John E. Wells, 1823 Lincoln street, North Chicago, went to bed at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Clarence A. Rose, at Gary, Ind., and died two hours later, although apparently in good health before retiring. Heart disease is given as the cause of death. Mrs. Wells was 65 years old and had resided in Waukegan and North Chicago practically all her life. She was born in northern Wisconsin Feb. 12, 1855, and was married forty-seven years ago.

ERIN MODERATES DEMANDS AS LION BARES ITS TEETH

Realizes Dominion Rule Is Utmost Concession.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

DUBLIN, April 3.—Sir John Taylor, under secretary for Ireland, regarded by Sinn Feiners as the real head of the government, declared today there would be no general uprising in Ireland Easter week.

He said, however, he would not be surprised if there were simultaneous attacks on many isolated police barracks, which under present conditions it has been impossible to reinforce.

In the larger places, he said, there are sufficient troops and police to suppress any outbreak and make it madness to attempt disorders. At present, he declared, it had become necessary to abandon many police posts in the country districts because of the lack of sufficient men to hold them against attack.

It is regarded as likely that Gen. Macready, the new commander in chief of the military forces in Ireland, will adopt the policy initiated by Arthur J. Balfour in the early eighties by combining the police and the military forces. This policy is declared to have achieved pacification then and might do so now, though Sir John declares the present situation is much worse than in Balfour's time.

I noticed on this trip to Dublin a distinct approach to a reasonable state of mind on the part of the Sinn Feiners toward dealing with the English.

Becoming Less Violent.

Although declaring that the home rule bill is impossible of acceptance, they are beginning to discuss it and point out weaknesses which are capable of amendment. It is a notable coincidence that the moderates are concentrating on the same points.

I am convinced the chief opposition to the present bill is not due to the proposal to partition Ireland, nor inadequacy of control, but to the $90,000,000 contribution to imperial finances to be exported from Ireland yearly under the bill.

I had a significant conversation today with George Russell, poet and reformer, who also is recognized as the foremost Irish economist. He said his greatest objection to the bill was the provision for this export of Irish capital.

"Ireland," he said, "has been bled white for years by the exportation of capital, first through absentee landlordism, then absentee government, now in export of surplus revenue to be spent for the high wages of English labor.

"Let's say the Irish laborer has a wife and four children and wages of about $10 weekly. To export $90,000,000 means to support 1,000,000 people. The bill might be worthy of consideration if we had some legislative guarantee such as a provision that there would be an equivalent expenditure in Ireland."

Hopeful of Sir Hamar.

In Dublin the opinion of all parties rather favors the appointment of Sir Hamar Greenwood as chief secretary, not because it knows much of Greenwood but because it is relieved to get rid of Ian MacPherson, who has been weak and vacillating and who is largely blamed for the existing anarchy. Greenwood, who is a Canadian, has the reputation of being a strong man and may win the respect of the Irish. The appointment is also taken as an omen of the liberalizing of the home rule bill in the direction of dominion status. The feeling is growing that dominion home rule is the only possible settlement of the Irish trouble.

Hotel keepers, retailers, and other traders complain that they will lose $1,000,000 next week by the absence of English Easter holiday parties due to fear of an uprising in Ireland. Ireland always has been England's chief holiday ground, and usually the boats are jammed for a week before Easter. This year they are empty and hotels at Irish resorts deserted.

Irish business men are angry, blaming the politicians of both sides for the unrest which is hurting the country.

Red Mob Demands a Popular Cabinet.

BULLETIN.

COPENHAGEN, April 3.—(By the Associated Press.)—The king has called the leaders of all political parties to a conference at the palace tonight.

COPENHAGEN, April 3.—[By the Associated Press.]—Enormous crowds are gathering outside the town hall and marshalling into columns to march to the royal palace, Amalienberg castle, carrying a resolution asking the king's help to prevent the calamity of a general strike.

The resolution also demands the formation of a ministry comprised of men not responsible for the present crisis and who would be likely to obtain parliamentary support.

Led by City Council.

A procession of about 40,000 men, headed by M. Stauning, president of the Copenhagen town council, marched through the streets to the castle. The councilors, bearing the resolution were immediately admitted to the king's presence.

The mounted police attempted to prevent the crowd from entering Amalienberg square, but a sudden display of red flags frightened the horses, and the next moment thousands surged into the square which is bordered by four royal palaces.

Liebe's Attitude Sullen.

The king, attended by Premier Liebe, received the deputation. He promised to consider the resolution, but the premier's attitude is reported to have been uncompromising.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 3.—Turkish troops have evacuated Trebizond and are mobilizing at Djuverzlyk, where there are 9,000 men with machine guns and artillery. Trebizond is quiet and no trouble is expected. Wilson's note on the Turkish treaty was published here. The allies are increasing the pressure to bring on the fall of the cabinet, which has determined to remain until actually forced out.

Allies Bring Pressure.

LONDON, April 3.—[By the Associated Press.]—The allies have presented a collective note reiterating their demand that the Turkish government officially disavow the nationalist movement, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Constantinople under Tuesday's date.

Ada Bazar, a town directly east of Constantinople and twenty-three miles from Ismid, the British port of entry in western Asia Minor, was occupied by Turkish nationalist troops on Tuesday, according to a Constantinople dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph company.

Constantinople Isolated.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 29.—Delayed.—[By the Associated Press.]—Constantinople is as much isolated from Asiatic Turkey as if the Atlantic ocean separated them. Railway communication between the Bosporus and the interior has been cut by detachments of British, who burned the large bridge south of Bilejik after getting out all their Indian troops, who had been guarding the line. British headquarters is at Ismid, and the protective area is restricted largely to districts within range of the naval guns.

Anatolia is the source of the food supply of Constantinople and, consequently, the prices of meat and vegetables have doubled. The huge profit taking is not checked by the high commissioners, who maintain the fiction that the Turkish government is functioning.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha, the nationalist leader, has called a congress to meet at Angora, with five representatives from each vilayet. General mobilization has been ordered and all military munitions ordered removed from the seacoast.

Mr. Wilson's note appeared in a slightly censored form, which made the position of the United States seem harsher on the Turks than it appeared in the full text of the communication.

WASHINGTON NEWS —IN BRIEF—

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.

ATTORNEY GENERAL PALMER issued orders to district attorneys today to watch for unreasonable increases in bituminous coal prices, which are springing up all over the country since government price restrictions were lifted April 1.

THE HARBORD REPORT on the wisdom of an American mandate for Armenia, sent by the president to the senate today, shows that it would cost the United States 59,000 men, a good sized fleet and $757,000,000 in the next five years to undertake the job:

SENATOR THOMAS, speaking in the senate today on organized labor's political drive to control congress, said that if Samuel Gompers and the American Federation of Labor should win their fight the oath of allegiance for members of congress should be amended to include a pledge of defense to "the constitution and bylaws of the American Federation of Labor."

REPUBLICANS in congress, anxious to take the president's extraordinary war powers from him, are pointing to the fact that enactment of the pending peace resolution would automatically terminate more than a score of wartime laws.

WOMEN who picketed the British embassy yesterday on behalf of the Irish cause did not repeat the performance today but gave assurances that the secretary of state's abhorrence of their act had nothing to do with their inactivity. Further surprises from them are to come, they said.

NO MOTIVE FOR DISTRUST OF U. S., ARGENTINE VIEW

BUENOS AIRES, April 3.—[By the Associated Press.]—Recent American notes to Chile, Bolivia, and Peru are described as "the fruit of diplomatic inexperience" by La Prensa, which declares they "do not reveal any political plan that should alarm the South American continent or give Argentina any motive for suspicion."

"There does not exist in Washington a mode of conducting traditional diplomacy, nor scarcely a chancellery," continues La Prensa. "For this reason the United States frequently assumes attitudes incomprehensible to other nations in attempting to apply party judgments and local politics to international life."

Discussing the attitude of Argentina, the editorial says:

"The United States accepts all occasions for demonstrating her friendship to Argentina. No motive exists, then, for suspicion or distrust in our country as to the South American policy of that nation. Argentina's future line of conduct should be such as to always lend influence toward conciliation in conflicts between European countries and the United States and in South America should support the United States in all attitudes which would assure peaceful solutions to conflicts and the prosperity of sister republics."

[By Special Cable.]

BEIRUT, March 17.—Encompassed by hostile Turks, Kurds, and Arabs since Jan. 6, American relief workers in Mardin, Disbeker, Urfa, and other towns in the French zone of Cilicia are still unable to communicate with the outside world.

All this country is infested with bandits who are reported to be massacring Christians. It has been impossible to get food supplies and relief to these places since the first of this year.

To make matters worse, the nationalists in Anatolia and Syria may declare war at any time, giving foreigners in Aleppo only a few hours to get out.

Means Trapped Americans.

Such a declaration would mean that the Americans and other foreigners in Aintab, besieged by bandits, who, under orders from Mustapha Kemal Pasha, already have killed two Americans, and at the other places would not be able to escape for months.

Anxiety for the Americans in the district increased when it was realized that, however friendly the bandits in the territory have been toward the Americans, most of them make no distinction between foreigners, who are hated bitterly, both for religious and patriotic reasons.

Moslems in Beirut, Aleppo, and Damascus told me the natives have been so aroused against Europeans and Christians generally by false propaganda that massacres of Christians could easily be provoked in these districts.

French Admit Menace.

The French government, despite optimistic reports, admits it has been unable to get supplies of any kind through to the garrisons at Aintab and Urfa for more than a month, while the French troops, as everybody knows, were driven out of Marash.

A neutral consul has suggested that the situation is a matter for concerted action on the part of the allies. The French announced that they have sufficient battleships to patrol the coast to prevent any Mediterranean ports in this zone from being taken, which may prevent the United States and Italy, whose consuls at Aleppo have wired their respective countries for battleships, from sending any.

ARMENIA BILLION DOLLAR BURDEN, HARBORD SHOWS

Belated Report Discusses Proposed Mandate.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 3.—[Special.]—An army of 59,000 men, a good sized fleet of naval vessels, and an outlay of $757,000,000 during the next five years would be required to begin administering the proposed American mandate for Armenia, according to the long awaited Harbord report finally submitted to the senate today by President Wilson after two formal requests had been made.

If the United States accepts the Armenian mandate, it must also be permitted to take Constantinople, the report states. With the Turkish empire still in control of Constantinople, the difficulties of executing the mandate would be insuperable, according to the report.

Follows Long Investigation.

The report is the work of the American military mission to Armenia, headed by Gen. G. G. Harbord. It was made to the president last year, after a long investigation of conditions in Armenia and the near east. The senate has tried for many months to get possession of the report to aid it in its consideration of the peace treaty, but until today President Wilson has ignored the requests for the document.

Gen. Harbord set forth the conclusions of the mission after a discussion covering thirteen bound volumes. The mission made no specific recommendation as to whether the United States should accept the mandate. It laid down a long list of conditions which the United States should demand of the other powers if it accepted the mandate. Among other things the United States should insist upon having an absolutely free hand in Armenian affairs, the mission said.

13 Reasons for, 13 Against.

The mission then proceeded to demonstrate its complete neutrality by enumerating thirteen reasons for accepting the mandate and thirteen reasons against accepting it. Scanning them hastily, senators were of the opinion that the report made a stronger case against the mandate than for

Most of the reasons advanced in favor of America's accepting the mandate were premised upon the presumption that the United States would be a member of the league of nations, and that as such it would be morally bound to accept the obligations and responsibilities of a mandatory.

Arguments for Mandate.

Among other reasons put forward in favor of the project were:

"America is already spending millions to save starving people in Turkey and Transcaucasia, and could do this with much more efficiency if in control.

"America is the only hope of the Armenians. They consider but one other nation, Great Britain, which they fear would sacrifice their interests to Moslem public opinion as long as she controls hundreds of millions of that faith. Others fear Britain's imperialistic policy and the habit of staying where she hoists her flag.

"It would stop further massacres of Armenians and other Christians, give justice to Turks, Kurds, Greeks and other peoples.

"If the United States does not take responsibility in this region it is likely that international jealousies will result in a continuance of the unspeakable misrule of the Turk."

Argument Against Mandate.

Under the head of "Reasons Against," the report says:

"This region has been a battle ground of militarism and imperialism for centuries. There is every likelihood that ambitious nations will still maneuver for its control. It would weaken our position relative to the Monroe doctrine and probably eventually involve us with a reconstituted Russia. The taking of a mandate in this region would bring the United States into the politics of the old world."

"It would weaken and dissipate our strength, which should be reserved for future responsibilities on the American continents and in the far east. Our line of communication to Constantinople would be at the mercy of other naval powers and especially of Great Britain, with Gibraltar and Malta, etc., on the route.

Calls for $757,250,000.

"The first duty of America is to its own people and its nearer neighbors. Our country would be involved in this adventure for at least a generation and in counting the cost congress must be prepared to advance such sums less such amounts as the Turkish and Transcaucasian revenues should afford, for the first five years as follows: First year, $275,000,000; second year, $174,-000,000; third year, $123,750,000; fourth year, $96,750,000; fifth year, $87,750,-000. Grand total, $757,250,000.

"Estimates of the number of mandatory troops vary greatly—from 59,000 to 200,000," said the report. "Conditions change so rapidly that plans made today for the use of troops might be obsolete in six months. Uncertainty as to the time the mandate will be tendered and accepted makes estimates merely approximate. Under conditions as they exist today the undersigned believes that a force of two American divisions with several hundred extra officers, or a total force of 59,000, would be ample.

Naval Requirements.

"The naval establishment should consist of a station ship for the capital and probably one each for Smyrna, Mersina, Batoum and Baku, to meet local needs in quick transportation of troops. A transport of light draft capable of carrying a complete regiment should be permanently on station at the capital. Four to six destroyers would be needed for communication and moral effect. Collier, repair and hospital service afloat should be in support. Old ships of obsolete type would probably answer for all except the station ship at the capital and the destroyers."

Happy Heroes

It's bound to be a happy Easter out at Fort Sheridan because the fun started yesterday. Gay Easter baskets—1,500 of them—filled with candies, cakes, bunnies and chicks by members of the girls' clubs of the Young Women's Christian association, were loaded on a truck at the central Y. W. C. A. branch at 59 East Monroe street and conveyed to the fort by a group of the girls themselves.

The baskets were filled by school girls, office girls, shop girls and factory girls from the west side, south side, Indiana avenue and central branches of the organization under direction of Miss Sue Weddell, girls' work secretary. Were the heroes happy? Witness the sergeant's smile.

Snow, maybe, with increasing winds, is the weather man's oracular contribution to today's festal activities. However, there will be the usual Easter parade of new spring bonnets and vestments in the Boul' Mich. Despite the high cost of saying it with flowers, a heavy business in lilies was reported yesterday by florists.

In the churches there will be the customary programs of music and the theme of sermons will be, "He Is Risen." Each church will have its full choir, in addition to special solos.

One innovation is scheduled—at the Garfield Boulevard Presbyterian church, which holds services in the Garfield theater, 5451 Halsted street. Motion pictures will be shown in conjunction with the Easter exercises. The Rev. R. Keene Ryan is pastor of the church.

RED REBELLION TURNS OUT TO BE A PALE PINK ONE

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1920: By the Tribune Company.]

ESSEN, April 1, via Paris, April 3.—Two weeks of the Red Ruhr republic but pinkens German history. There has been no terror and will not be unless some sensational action takes place on the part of government leaders or of the revolutionaries which unsettles discipline. It is true there have been a few acts of violence, but these were answered by the arrest of four Red soldiers who were condemned to death when found guilty of looting, attempting to forge requisition papers and of otherwise violating the old laws.

Although the workers and soldiers' soviets are controlling the republic, only a small percentage are real bolsheviks in the Russian sense. Their own leaders estimate one-fifth are bolshevists, one-fifth plain Socialists, one-fifth communists in the German sense, which means book reading philosophers, one-fifth unattached radicals and one-fifth soldiers who haven't anything else to do. All together, they form a unity against the middle and upper classes, who, while doing nothing to protect themselves, are decidedly against the proletariat.

100 Passenger Triplanes, Europe to U. S., Plan

New York, April 3.—[Special.]—Triplanes carrying 100 passengers and a crew of five men will fly from Europe to New York, Gianne Caproni, inventor of a famous bombing plane, said today when he arrived here to visit friends made while Americans were engaged in the world war. He has built, he said, such a triplane as he described.

"The nation that attains air supremacy will be the leader in the future, both in military strength and commerce," he said, adding that recent trans-Atlantic flights were mere "sporting raids."

Regular freight and passenger air service between Europe and America will come in the next few years, he said.

New York, April 3.—[Special.]—The disappearance of a nine carat egg shaped diamond, set as a one stone marquise ring and valued at $22,000, from a gold mesh bag in the residence of Mrs. Harry Turek, 450 West End avenue, has been reported to the police. The ring was stolen from among several articles of jewelry in the mesh bag. They are valued at more than $90,000.

Italy Seeking Path Into Germany Through Tyrol?

VIENNA, April 2.—Publicity is being given to a rumor which has been quietly but persistently circulated in political circles for some months that Italian politicians are fostering a plan for a corridor to Germany through the Tyrol. It is their plan, the report says, to establish an independent state of Tyrol under Italian protection.

St. Louis, Mo., April 3.—Hyman Mandel, a plumbing contractor, was shot and killed early today by his wife while he slept. Their five children saw the killing. Mrs. Mandel surrendered to the police and declared she had become crazed from beatings her husband had given her. She was taken to a hospital, suffering from lacerations of the face and body.

CROKER SANE AS WHEN TAMMANY CHIEF: CONNERS

'Boys Must Be Plumb Crazy,' Says Fingy.

Palm Beach, Fla., April 3.—[Special.]—William J. Conners of Buffalo was interviewed today informally on testimony he will give before a jury in an attempt to clear his old friend, Richard Croker, former Tammany "boss," of the charges of mental incompetency brought by the Croker boys against their father. Could he be reported the result would be a classic. Those who know his style of oratory will understand.

"All the boys' allegations," Mr. Conners said, "about Mr. Croker's wife not being this and not being that, make me think that these two boys of his must be plum crazy. The whole matter is the biggest joke that was ever brought into a court."

Mind Sound as Forty Years Ago.

In an affidavit made today Mr. Conners states:

"Of my personal knowledge all these investments have been handled by Mr. Croker and at his direction, and from forty years of intimate association with him, I now swear positively that his mind and judgment are at the present time as keen and sound as at any time during his entire career.

"I know Mrs. Bula Croker to be a woman of refinement and high character, and I have never known of the slightest disagreement between her and Mr. Croker. I know of no two persons who are more in accord. In business matters Richard Croker discusses everything with her with the utmost freedom, but she always defers to his judgment.

"Mr. Croker's mind is as sound and active today as it was when he was leader of Tammany hall and dominated New York politics."

Oklahoma Defends Wife.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 3.—[Special.]—Charges that Mrs. Richard Croker is an adventuress are scoffed at by her relatives and the friends of her girlhood days at Muskogee and Tahlequah.

Mrs. Croker is of Cherokee Indian blood. She was born at Maysville, Ark., which at that time was thought to be a part of Oklahoma, but after the settling of the boundary line dispute the town became a part of Arkansas. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Edmondson, and a blood relative of Representative W. W. Hastings. Mrs. Croker is well thought of here and by the people of Tahlequah and Muskogee.

CIGARETS WILL STEAL BLOOM FROM GIRLS' CHEEKS, U. S. WARNS

Washington, D. C., April 3.—[Special.]—Surgeon General Hugh S. Cumming, chief government medical officer, today appealed to American women to swear off the cigaret habit. The appeal was based on government reports which indicate that cigaret consumption increased 47 per cent in the last year.

"The habit indulged in by women tends to cause nervousness and insomnia, ruining the complexion," said Dr. Cumming. "If American women generally contract the cigaret habit, as reports now indicate they are doing, the entire nation will suffer. The physical tone of the whole people will be lowered.

"This is one of the most evil influences in American life today—the number of American women who are becoming inveterate smokers is amazing."

Whirling Wheels Whisk Sleepless to Dreamland

LONDON, April 3.—James Bray, of Acton road, has invented what he asserts will cure insomnia. It consists of an arrangement of disks revolving in opposite directions, to be hung above the bed. Bray says watching of the moving plates brings slumber inside of five minutes.

After running forty minutes the machine stops automatically and shuts off the light in the room.

LIGHT DEVELOPS PLANT LIFE, U. S. EXPERTS ASSERT

Effect of Temperature Is Negligible, Claim.

Washington, D. C., April 3.—Government agricultural experts have discovered that plant life seems to depend on light rather than temperature, for nourishment and may be controlled by regulating the hours of light and darkness.

The principle is revolutionary; but it rests on actual experiments, in which it was demonstrated that plants subjected to alternate periods of light and darkness in carefully determined proportions could be brought to maturity at any time of the year.

"Greenhouse experiments," says an announcement by the department of agriculture, "prove that the flowering and fruiting period of practically any plant can be made to take place at any time of year by darkening the greenhouse in the morning and evening, if the day is too long, or by lengthening the day by artificial light if the day is too short.

Flowers That Bloom in Spring.

"Spring flowers and spring crops happen to be spring flowers and spring crops because the days at the season of their flowering and fruiting have the proper number of hours of daylight."

The discovery may be of the highest importance in the future planning of cropping systems for different regions.

Eventually it may be found, according to W. W. Garner and H. A. Allard, scientists in the bureau of plant industry, who conducted exhaustive experiments, that the animal organism also is capable of responding to the stimulus of certain day lengths. They believe that the migration of birds may be an illustration, on the ground that direct response to such a stimulus would be more in line with modern biological teachings than theories which assume that birds "go south" as a matter of instinct.

Must Have Enough "Sleep."

Experiments were conducted with a large variety of plants. It was shown conclusively that too little "sleep," or, in other words, too many hours of daylight, would prevent many plants from ever reaching the flowering and fruiting stage.

It was found also that plants would not reproduce except when exposed to a favorable length of day, although too much daylight for flowering and fruiting might stimulate profuse vegetative growth. A length of day favorable both to reproduction and growth results in the "ever bearing" type of fruits.

By employing dark chambers the scientists shortened or lengthened the life cycle of plants and forced some of them to complete two cycles in one season. Violets, which naturally bloom only during the comparatively short days of spring, when covered with light-proof boxes for a time were made to bloom again during the summer. Biloxi soy beans exposed to the light for only five hours a day flowered nearly three months earlier than plants left in the light all day, but attained only about one-eighth of the height.

Temperature's Effect Slight.

Temperature appeared to exert no influence in the tests. A striking illustration of the relative unimportance of temperature was given in the fact that plants kept in the dark for a part of the day underwent in midsummer the changes that in nature come in the fall and that, heretofore, have been attributed to lower temperatures. This was true even when the dark houses registered a higher temperature than the outside atmosphere.

"The length of the day," the department's announcement said, "is proved to be the most potent factor in determining the relative proportions between the vegetative and fruiting parts of many crop plants. Indeed, fruiting may be completely suppressed by a day too long or too short. This new principle undoubtedly explains the erratic behavior which has been observed with many crops when they are shifted to different latitudes."

HER GLOBE-TROTTING ENDS

Little Girl "Kidnaped" and Taken to Europe 6 Years Ago by Father, Who Surrendered Her Last Night to Her Mother's Relatives.

AUGUSTA MILDRED MEYER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

FATHER GIVES UP 'KIDNAPED' CHILD HE TOOK ABROAD

Mother's Kin Get Girl, 11, After Six Years.

Eleven year old Augusta Mildred Meyer's globe trotting adventures ended here yesterday. Her father relinquished possession of her to relatives from whom he had spirited her away six years ago in New York to evade a court order.

The flight of father and daughter across the Atlantic ocean followed soon after the mother's death. The father is Leopold Alfred Meyer, western representative of a waist manufacturing firm, living at 4711 South Michigan avenue. He is the son of Mrs. Leah Meyer.

The opposing faction in the legal battle for Augusta comprised relatives of the child's dead mother—the father, Edward Robitzek, a Brooklyn coal merchant; a sister, Mrs. Hazel Moebus; and a brother, Harry Robitzek, both of New York.

Marooned by U-Boats.

Before chronicling the writ of habeas corpus served on Mrs. Leah Meyer when she returned to America with Augusta three weeks ago it might be well to explain that Augusta would have been back sooner only the German submarine peril caused her to be marooned on the European continent.

During the war she and her father and his mother traveled about between London, Paris, and various parts of Holland. Before 1914 they spent many months in Germany.

It was in 1913 that Augusta's mother died. Her grandfather, Edward Robitzek, and her aunt, Mrs. Moebus, then instituted action to obtain custody of her. The Appellate division of the New York Supreme court rendered a decision that the father should relinquish possession of her to Robitzek and Mrs. Moebus.

Takes Girl to Europe.

Mr. Meyer, however, appealed from the decision. While the appeal was pending he took Augusta to Boston and sailed for Europe. He was in Germany when the war started. He took Augusta to Holland. Business called him to the United States, but he feared to bring her because of the submarines. He left her with his mother, Mrs. Leah Meyer.

Meantime the opposing faction was watchfully waiting. They knew when Mrs. Meyer and Augusta arrived in New York and followed them to Chicago, bringing an attorney, Frank Kadel. They also retained the Chicago law firm of Musgrave, Oppenheim & Lee.

And yesterday a writ of habeas corpus was issued by Judge Frank Johnstone Jr., returnable on Monday. Augusta was seized and conveyed to the sheriff's office. Then through his attorney, H. J. Rosenberg, Mr. Meyer arranged for a conference with Grandfather Robitzek and the other members of the faction.

All were found laughing and talking in room 202 of the Hotel La Salle. They said everybody had agreed Augusta was to go back to her mother's relatives.

PROSECUTOR MAY CUT CLOSEUP OF MARY AND 'DOUG'

Suit to Annul Decree in Nevada Planned.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 3.—[Special.]—Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks were startled this afternoon by the announcement from the office of the attorney general of Nevada that suit would be filed in the name of the people of Douglass county to set aside the decree of divorce granted Miss Pickford on March 2, from Owen Moore, at Minden, Nev. Such action, if successful, would make illegal the marriage of Mary to Fairbanks.

The inquiry was started by a resolution of the Nevada Bar association, which demanded that the attorney general ascertain whether the decree was obtained by collusion.

In order to obtain a divorce decree in Nevada, the person seeking it must swear that he or she intends to make his or her permanent home in the state. The fact Miss Pickford left the state shortly after the decree was granted and returned to California, where she has lived for years, and within a few days married a man who has his permanent residence here, is said to be regarded, by the attorney general's office as proof positive that she did not act in good faith in establishing her residence in Nevada.

The fact also that Owen Moore was conveniently located a mile or two away when it was necessary to serve him with the papers in the case is looked on with considerable suspicion by the Nevada officials.

Mary Pickford refused to comment upon the news from Nevada. Her manager, F. E. Benson, said:

"Miss Pickford has absolutely nothing to say. It is up to the court to prove that her divorce was obtained by fraud and when that is done she will do what any decent woman would do under the circumstances."

HUMAN EEL AND COMRADE TAKEN FOR 32 THEFTS

Thirty-two robberies of meat markets, drug stores, and other small shops on the south side have been admitted, the Grand Crossing police say, by Frank Raynor, 16 years old, of 5507 Kenwood avenue, and Edward Tierney, 16 years old, of 5443 Ridgewood court.

Raynor, detained on suspicion by Detective Sergeants J. B. Ryan and William Tallon, confessed to Lieut. Patrick McCauley that a desire for silk shirts, snappy scarves, and other sartorial fine feathers caused him to become burglar. In the morning he attended Hyde Park High school; in the afternoon he worked for the Windermere press at 1221 East Sixty-third street, and at night he unlimbered his jimmy.

Tierney, slight of build, was able to compress his supple body eel fashion, Raynor said, and could squeeze through almost any chink. They are at the Juvenile detention home.

$100,000 HOTEL FIRE.

Ashtabula, O., April 3.—Fire which for a time threatened the entire business district here with destruction, today badly damaged the Ashtabula house, several stores, and a half dozen smaller buildings. The damage was estimated at $100,000.

RAILROADS ASK 1,600 POLICE AS STRIKE GUARDS

Walkout of Switchmen Perils Packing Industry.

Police details numbering 1,600 men were asked to protect railroad property last night. Requests for protection, growing out of the switchmen's strike, were made by officials of the Chicago and Northwestern, the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and the Pennsylvania railroads.

The extemporaneous strike of 450 switchmen of the Chicago Junction railroad crippled the transportation facilities of the stockyards yesterday and threatened to isolate it.

Only a few cars entered the yards. Not a car went out. By tomorrow the packing industry will be tied up completely and production in the central manufacturing district will be impaired, W. J. O'Brien, general manager of the railway, predicted.

"Unless this strike can be stopped immediately," Mr. O'Brien said, "it will seriously affect interstate commerce, throw 150,000 men out of employment and curtail the food supply of the nation.

"Two thousand cars of livestock should enter the yards Monday. But the men are out; and possibly not one of those cars will reach its destination until the strike is settled."

Predicts Walkout of 20,000.

John Brunau, president of the switchmen's organization, has boasted that more than 20,000 men will be on strike by tomorrow, and freight movements on every railroad entering Chicago will be paralyzed.

"We'll tie up the town," he told his followers.

Meanwhile the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, with which each of the roads made its agreements, has declared the strike illegal. It has sent telegrams throughout the middle west repudiating the walkout and asking for volunteers to help break it.

"We will appreciate it if members of the brotherhood, both in road and yard service, will immediately report to their divisional officers for service in Chicago," the message reads in part. "Radicals are taking advantage of the situation during this period of reconstruction, but this should not deter our members, who are willing to uphold the integrity of their agreements."

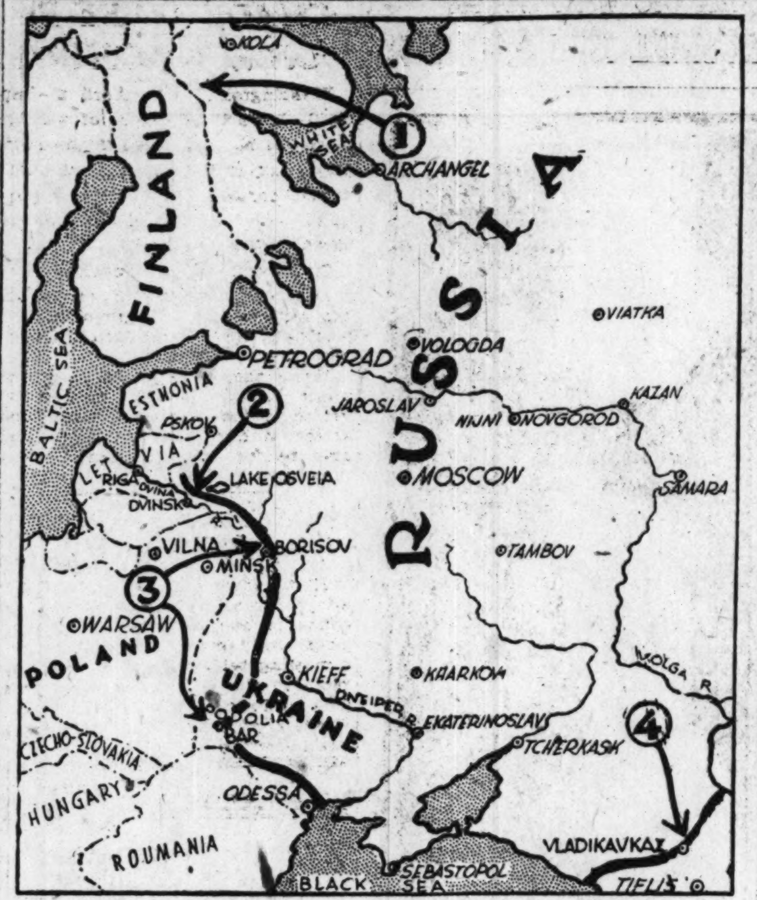
Four Roads Affected.

The Illinois Central reported that a considerable number of its men had failed to appear for duty at 4 o'clock. The Nickel Plate road was slightly affected, and the Northwestern suffered the loss of 250 of its 800 men on a call by the Chicago Yardmen's association.

D. B. Greer, vice president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, whose 700 switchmen started the trouble by walking out Thursday afternoon, announced yesterday that all passenger trains and perishable stuff had been handled on time. He said, furthermore, that the service would continue.

During the afternoon Mr. Greer was visited by two of the strikers, who presented him with a handbill exhorting assistance from fellow workers in making the strike a success.

REDS CONTINUE PRESSURE ON POLES



1—Finland is reported to be preparing to meet an attack from the bolsheviki. Recent successes of the Reds in the Murmansk region have caused much uneasiness at Helsingfors.

2—Warsaw reports the repulse of bolsheviki attacks along the Dvina river in their attempt to advance toward Vilna.

3—Polish official reports that Red attacks between Polock and Barison, on the Bersina, were repulsed. On the southern wing the Poles captured Bar.

4—Constantinople reports that the Russian bolsheviki have taken Vladikavkas, an important trade and military post in Circaucasia.

SOVIET ARMIES LAUNCH DRIVES TOWARD VILNA

WARSAW, April 3.—[By the Associated Press.]—The bolsheviki have launched attacks on both sides of the River Dvina, apparently in the beginning of their threatened drive on the northern front, designed to carry them in the direction of Vilna.

Fighting at various points on this front is reported in the Lettish communiques today. One of the Lettish statements announces the repulse of a bolshevik attack in the region of Lake Osveia.

The fighting is reported particularly severe in the vicinity of Dedino, along the northern banks of the Dvina.

Between Polock and Borisov, on the Beresina, the Polish communique announced a heavy attack by the Reds. The Poles counterattacked, driving the Reds eastwardly.

The newspapers also report a Polish success on the southern front, in Podolia, announcing the capture of Bar, northeast of Kamenetz-Podolsk, by the Poles.

Uneasiness in Finland over the bolshevik successes in the far north is reported by the press.

FRENCH HONORS FOR U. S. HEROES

Washington, D. C., April 3.—Capts. Edward V. Rickenbacker and Douglass Campbell, American aces, have been made chevaliers of the Legion of Honor and awarded the croix de guerre with palm, by the French government, the war department announced today.

Capt. Reed M. Chambers, also an ace, made made chevalier of the Legion of Honor. The croix de guerre was awarded with palm to Lieut. James A. Meissner, Leo H. Dawson, and William W. Palmer, and with bronze star to Lieuts. Samuel Kaye, Jr., and Alden B. Sherry.

Col. Edward Stanley Gorrel has been awarded the medal of the British distinguished service order, and Maj. Ernest J. Jones the French medaille d'honneur.

American Flyers Battle in Poland, Report Hints

WARSAW, April 2.—[By the Associated Press.]—An official communication issued by the war department today refers to the activity of Polish aviators on the Podolian front. The reference suggests the probability that the Kosciusko squadron, commanded by Maj. P. C. Edric Fauntleroy, is participating in the fighting. This squadron is composed of Americans.

1,258 FIREMEN RENEW THREAT TO LEAVE JOBS

Resignations to Take Effect April 10.

they are illegal. Another possibility is that, in changing the dates on them, the firemen's committee invalidated them.

At tomorrow's meeting representatives of the bankers may be asked to appear and either suggest ways of getting the needed revenue or tell the men why it is impossible to get it before next year.

Resignations Not Accepted.

"I want to point out that these resignations are not accepted," said Mr. Cullerton. "There is a strong probability that the law department will decide they are not worth the paper they are written on.

"I have told the men that, having handed in their resignations I can do no more for them, but I still have hope that the mayor will be able to persuade them to withdraw their resignations."

The mayor also held a conference with the executive committee of the clerks' union yesterday. The meeting was in the nature of a love feast and the clerks consented to submit their demands for pay to the arbitration committee appointed by the mayor.

The men stated that they merely had come to inform the mayor that they had returned to work and were willing to wait and see what his arbitration committee has to offer. The mayor made a brief talk in reply, saying that he was aware the clerks are entitled to an increase in pay and that he believed the arbitration committee would reach a fair and equitable settlement of the matter, but the city had large interests at stake and he was pleased with their attitude in going back on the pob.

Dislike Lack of Power.

Some dissatisfaction was expressed among the clerks over the fact that the arbitration has little or no authority or power to act definitely and finally, but there was no talk of a second walkout. Assistant Corporation Counsel Leon Hornstein, who was appointed temporary chairman of the committee on Friday, received two more requests for hearings from groups of employés. One was from the detective sergeants, who are not seeking more pay but wish to be placed in the same class with patrol and desk sergeants. This automatically would give them the pay of the latter grades.

Janitors Ask Raise.

The other communication came from the janitors, who want their pay increased from $95 to $125 a month. The garbage handlers, who returned to work at the same time as the clerks, teamsters, and other employés, indicated to Deputy Commissioner of Public Works Burkhardt that they would await action by the arbitration committee.

NEW YORK PORT STRIKE MAY HIT RAIL LINES, TOO

New York, April 3.—The strike of New York harbor workers may be brought before a general conference of strikers and the general managers' association of the railroads, it was indicated tonight.

Union leaders asserted that the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen "stands ready to join them in the strike," upon the assumption that loss of the eight-hour day demanded by the marine workers would also deprive the railroad workers of the eight-hour day.

Although the railroads placed a general embargo on export freight through New York today, officials of the roads said there was no reason to fear a food shortage.

Marine workers' officials claim 4,500 are out. The railroads place the number at 2,200.

Window Washers Strike at Library; Ask $36 Week

The muse of the window washers' union at the Chicago public library raised a bellicose squeegee yesterday morning, and all the masters of the fine art of window washing walked out. As a consequence, there was not a pure pane in the edifice by nightfall. The washers wish the union scale of $36 a week. Unless the strike is settled the literati will have to read by open windows, all of which, of course, are protected by the I. C. smoke screen. In any event, you are requested for the nonce not to ask the peeved librarian for "The Light That Failed."

FINDS 347 HIT IN VOTE INQUIRY STILL HOLD JOBS

Brundage Asks Crowe to Hurry Fraud Trials.

Attorney General Brundage made public yesterday correspondence between himself, Chief Justice Crowe of the Criminal court, and State's Attorney Hoyne pertaining to protracted delays in the trial of fifty-six judges and clerks of election indicted for fraud in the balloting of November, 1918.

In a letter to Judge Crowe the attorney general charged that the election officials were again politically active and demanded that they be brought to trial immediately, rather than on May 17, when the judge has created a "special calendar" of their cases. In addition, the attorney general asserted that 347 of the 1,016 judges and clerks who fell under suspicion in his special grand jury's investigation of the 1918 balloting had been reappointed by the election board to serve on April 13.

"It is absolutely impossible," Mr. Brundage informed Judge Crowe in his letter, "to preserve the integrity of the ballot if the election officials charged with fraud and corruption cannot be brought to trial."

Judge Crowe Indignant.

A communication from the state's attorney to Mr. Brundage stated that the prosecutor's staff had been attempting to get the indicted persons a hearing since last September.

Judge Crowe was indignant when he was acquainted with the attorney general's action at his home last night.

"I'll not be smeared in that manner," he declared. "No judge in the Criminal court tries more cases than I do, and I'll start the election trials Monday morning if Mr. Brundage and Mr. Hoyne will find some other judge to dispose of my regular work.

"What do they want me to do—permit a jail delivery? Men can be held in jail only so long without a hearing; and for that reason bail cases have frequently to be postponed. If there's any fault in this manner it rests in the fact that there are not enough judges to handle the criminal work—either that or there is lax business in the state's attorney's office."

Grand Jury Continues Inquiry.

At the joint request of the county prosecutor and the attorney general the judge yesterday continued the March grand jury as a special body to investigate charges of frauds in the aldermanic primary and purported plans to repeat the chicanery on April 13.

Mr. Brundage's correspondence opened with a letter to Mr. Hoyne, dated March 29. It recalled the circumstances of the special grand jury's investigation and concluded: "Will you be kind enough to let me know what the difficulty is in prosecuting these offenders?"

Mr. Hoyne replied on the following day, citing the numerous delays and continuances in cases of a First ward and a Fifth ward case. The cases are known as "case No. 16,182, Mitchell, et al," a conspiracy charge, and "case No. 16,651, People vs. Daluga, et al.," another conspiracy charge.

3,000 Suspect Notices.

Chief Clerk James F. Sullivan of the election board completed the posting of suspect notices yesterday. About 3,000 registrations were challenged by his staff of fifty investigators.

"In the Eighteenth ward," Mr. Sullivan said, "twelve hundred out of 18,208 entries in the poll books are apparently spurious, and in the Twenty-first ward 1400 out of 21,219. The remainder are scattered among the Fourteenth, Nineteenth, Twenty-second, Fifth, Fourth, and Thirtieth wards.

"The suspects will be given a hearing before the board on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, but I do not think that many will appear to contest the board's action in erasing their names."

N. C. GOVERNOR SAYS STATE MAY RATIFY SUFFRAGE

New York, April 3.—[Special.]—In answer to a telegram as to whether North Carolina would be the thirty-sixth state to ratify the woman suffrage amendment Gov. T. W. Bickett sent the following reply:

"I think there is no doubt that the general assembly of North Carolina will ratify the woman suffrage amendment."

Kentucky Women May Vote.

Frankfort, Ky., April 3.—The women of Kentucky will have the same rights as the men in casting their votes next fall at the presidential election if the courts uphold the constitutionality of a measure passed by the last general assembly, which also ratified the federal woman suffrage amendment.

Nebraska Extension Probable.

Lincoln, Neb., April 3.—Nebraska women on Sept. 21 will vote to decide if the state constitution shall be amended to give them full suffrage, unless some anti-suffragist in the meantime should obtain a court restraining order.

FAMOUS 'ROOM OF DIPLOMATS' TO BE RESTORED

Washington, D. C., April 3.—Restoration of the state department's diplomatic room, scene of many important international events, has been ordered by Bainbridge Colby, the new secretary of state.

Demand for office space during the war necessitated conversion of the room into three offices equipped with desks, bookcases, and filing cabinets. By the new secretary's order the wartime partitions will be removed, the room redecorated, and again be used for formal diplomatic events such as the exchange of treaty ratifications.

Joy in Circus Land

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Marcelene, clown, and Mary Evelyn Webb.

THE DELIRIOUS REPORTER GOES TO THE CIRCUS

Stupendous, stupefying spectacle.

Splendor and magnificence. Excellence in entertainment. Leading all others. Lost in the distance is competition. Smothers under its mighty might all attempts at rivalry. Fairyland brought to earth.

Lighting the way like a beacon ray. Triumphant has been its progress. Outdoing all previous forts. The crowning creation. Worth a million.

Learn how the "rhino" asked for a stimulant, how the elephant requested salt, how to win the affections of an ant bear, and a hundred other secrets.

At the Coliseum.

The Sells-Floto circus.

Now.

So sings the press agent. So shout the billboards. So ring the newspaper advertisements.

But after all, the pluggers who bring in the business are the kids. The crowd who composed the audience at the opening performance yesterday consisted of children and parents "who had to take the kids."

From the time the clown copper dashed out on the sawdust before the "Birth of the Rainbow" review until the Indians closed the show with the war dance young Chicago looked, laughed, and wondered.

Master Chicago saw the elephants, the trapeze artists, the aerial ring performers, the revolving ladder stunts, the equestrians, the slack wire dancers, the statue girls, the Jap wrestlers, the contortionists, the riding monkeys, the jumping dogs, the iron jawed women, the Indians, and the clowns.

Five thousand men, women, and children attended the opening show. There will be more at the Monday matinée.

Because at least 3,000 kids are talking today of what they saw yesterday.

And many a man is wondering where he can borrow a boy to take to the circus.

PLEA FOR BAIL REFORM MADE BY GRAND JURY

Urges Repassage of Bond Lien Law.

Criminal bail bonds should be inflexible. The Barrett bail bond law should be reënacted. These were the major recommendations contained in the report of the March grand jury to Robert E. Crowe, chief justice of the Criminal court.

"In order that the county of Cook and the reputable communities of said county be protected against fraudulent bail bonds, this grand jury recommends that the civic associations of the city of Chicago take action upon the convening of the next legislature and ask for the repassage of the Barrett bail bond law," read the report, signed by Christian F. Wiehe, foreman of the jury.

Would End Bond Evil.

This law, which requires that bonds be a lien upon real estate, would eliminate the scheduling of property that is worth only a fraction of the value of the bond and would remedy the existing bond evil. The March grand jury has to its credit indictments on all violations presented to it by the state's attorney's office.

Two editorials from THE TRIBUNE were embodied in its report as "expressive of the opinion of each individual of this grand jury."

Other recommendations were also made, asking that no more than one parole be granted to any one person; that bonds be placed on an early ballot for the reconstruction of a modern jail and Criminal court building; that the liquor laws be enforced, and the more disreputable resorts closed, and that criticism of public officials for enforcing the law not be passed without reprimand.

Denounces Law Defiance.

In this last respect the report said:

"This grand jury desires to express its disapproval of the attitude of certain labor representatives who publicly defied officials, who, in enforcing the laws, were only fulfilling their sworn duties. . . . Defiance of the law undermines the foundations of our government and invites anarchy and bolshevism."

Particular attention was called to the fact that of the 336 persons indicted during the month, 220 were 21 years old or less. Only sixteen persons were more than 30 years old.

A special bouquet was handed, in closing, to the homicide squad, whose officers, according to the jury, "seem to have the courage and ability to do their duty wherever it could be done in the punishment and arrest of criminals."

Continues Fraud Inquiry.

The March jury is not through with its work, however. Acting upon the petition of Attorney General Brundage and State's Attorney Hoyne, Judge Crowe assigned the group as a special body to complete its investigation of vote frauds in recent primary election. For several days these men have been examining politicians and policemen in an effort to place the blame for numerous voting irregularties.

Garrity Lays Drop in Crime to Prohibition

Prohibition is responsible for the decrease in crime, Chief of Police Garrity believes. There were eleven less crimes last week than in the corresponding week last year, the ratio being 297 to 308. The chief expects a greater decrease as prohibition becomes more effective. However, there were twenty-four more burglaries last week than during the week in 1919 and the same number of larcenies. There were fifty-eight robberies in 1919 and twenty-nine in 1920.

GEN. WOOD DECORATES HEROIC WAR NURSE WHO SERVED UNDER SHELL FIRE IN FRANCE

Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood presented Mrs. W. J. Quinsler of the B. F. Goodrich hospital of Akron, O., with the distinguished service medal last Friday. Mrs. Quinsler, a former resident of Chicago, went overseas with Base Hospital Unit No. 23 from Milwaukee and spent a year in the fighting region.

The medal was conferred on her because she helped to give aid to the wounded of six divisions during the advance of the American armies on Glorieux, Fromereville, Bethincourt, Septarges, Bantheville and Dursur-Meuse, serving under fire of shells and aerial bombs.

Mrs. Quinsler was the only woman nurse on field service during the heavy fighting in the Argonne.

In making the presentation Gen. Wood paid tribute to her unselfish devotion to humanity as a whole and to the wounded of the nations.

"She has set an example that womankind can point to forever as the crux of patriotic and humane endeavor," he said.

Mrs. Quinsler, who formerly was Miss Edna Coughlin, was officially cited as follows: "As a member of an emergency medical team, during an extended period of active operations, she served the wounded of six divisions. She courageously ministered to the gravely wounded in the advanced area under the fire of shells and aerial bombs, rendering a service of particular value to the American expeditionary forces."

HOYNE OFFICE IGNORES LYNCH BOMBING CHARGE

Murphy Aids Sought by Police, However.

Accusations by Hugh Lynch, president of the street sweepers' union, that members of the Tim Murphy-Mike Carozzo faction were involved in the bombing of his home at 3453 South Ashland avenue, were attacked as without basis in fact last night by State's Attorney Hoyne's secretary, George T. Kenney.

Particularly, he defended Tony Cifaldo and Tony Fusco, recently released as witnesses in the Maurice Enright murder, after repudiating confessions attributed to them. Lynch, pointing out that they were at liberty and adherents of the opposition, had declared he was "an Enright man and there isn't any question but that this was an attempt on the part of the Murphy gang to put me out."

Not Seeking Pair.

"We are seeking neither Fusco nor Cifaldo," said Mr. Kenney. "So far as the state's attorney's office is aware they had nothing to do with the bombing of Lynch's home. As a matter of fact the bombers left no clew, and we are without information as to their identity."

Mr. Kenney's opinion was not held by Detective Sergeant Herman Otten of the detective bureau, one of the first members of the police department to arrive at the Lynch home.

"I believe Cifaldo and Fusco could supply us with important information," he said. "I want to find them."

Otten said he would also interrogate James Vinci, driver of the automobile in which the Enright murderers rode. Vinci is now in the county jail, awaiting trial on a charge of murder.

Offers Threatening Notes.

Lynch said he would give to the state's attorney's office several Black Hand letters received by him since he succeeded Carozzo as president of the street sweepers' union. Some of them, he said, contain pictures of Tim Murphy, who is also accused of the Enright murder, posed with his fists dripping blood. Mr. Kenney expects to receive the letters tomorrow.

Murphy himself was jubilant when interviewed at the county jail last night. He had little to say concerning the identity of the Lynch home bombers.

Glad He's in Jail.

"I'm glad I'm in jail," he said. "Otherwise, Hoyne probably would say I had a hand in the dynamiting. From gossip I understand that politics, and not labor warfare, is responsible. If Carozzo's followers had been going to blow Lynch up, it seems to me they would have done it two or three months ago."

An investigation is also being made into the explosion which damaged the home of Michael Heilman, organizer for the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workers' union, at 3512 Lowe avenue, a short time after Lynch's residence was bombed.

ONUS FOR TREATY CHAOS TO BE PUT ON WHITE HOUSE

Washington, D. C., April 3.—[Special.]—More than a score of war time laws will be terminated if the Porter peace resolution, pending in the house and set for action next week, is adopted in both branches of congress and signed by the president.

The Republicans are declared to be willing that the president should bear the responsibility of preventing the placing of the United States back on a peace basis.

Hence they are anxious to put the peace resolution up to him, and if he vetoes it they feel the country will attach to him whatever blame there may be for the continuance of war time laws.

Sex Education Is Urged by High School Teachers

High school teachers of Illinois adopted resolutions asking that sex education be included in the studies of physiology, agriculture, and biology at a meeting held under government auspices in the Art institute yesterday. The resolution was presented by E. F. Buskirk of the United States public health service.

WILSON WEAVED VEIL OF SILENCE IN PARIS: TARDIEU

PARIS, April 3.—Capt. Andre Tardieu, one of the French delegates to the peace conference, in another of his articles in L'Illustration dealing with the peace treaty of Versailles, dwells at length on what he terms the "question of silence" and gives some interesting side lights on the peace conference.

Capt. Tardieu recalls how the press placed great hope in the first of President Wilson's fourteen points, which demanded that conventions be prepared with the knowledge of the general public.

But, he says, its hopes were dashed when it became known that President Wilson himself declared this did not mean the making public of negotiations, but referred only to making public the debates on engagements made before they became definite.

Former Premier Clemencau is declared by M. Tardieu to have been the greatest advocate of publicity, but he asserts M. Clemenceau's efforts in this direction were not seconded by the allied governments, which are said to have refused even his proposal to make public the terms of the treaty when it was ready to be handed to the Germans.

MICHIGAN LABOR UNION CHIEF TO SUPPORT LOWDEN

Wood Chairman Claims State for General.

BY PHILIP KINGSLEY.

Detroit, Mich., April 3.—[Special.]—Carl Young, president of the Michigan Federation of Labor, has come out for Frank O. Lowden as his choice for the Republican nomination for the presidency.

In a letter to Barney Cohen, labor director of Illinois, who is here in connection with the Lowden pre-primary Michigan campaign, Mr. Young stated:

"Gov. Lowden is my choice, and if he secures the nomination I will go the full length for him. I like him for his attitude on labor and for his business administration of your state. He has put into operation the very things I have fought for for many years and he has made good with it."

Herbert Hoover's eleventh hour candidacy is the enigma and sensation of the Michigan presidential preference primary which will be held next Monday.

Elbert H. Fowler, temporary chairman of the Hoover organization in Michigan, said today:

"We are too late to carry Michigan, but we are going ahead with plans to put Mr. Hoover in the president's chair. It is the present plan of J. F. Lucey, temporary national chairman in New York, to call a Hoover Republican convention in Chicago just before the Republican national convention, that will show the nation-wide demand for Hoover."

"Nomination or Bolt."

"If we fail to stampede the Republicans into nominating Mr. Hoover I would be in favor of organizing an independent party, even if this should result in the election of Mr. McAdoo or Mr. Palmer. It is time the Republican bosses listened to the people."

Fowler said he had only $1,200 for a campaign fund in Michigan for Hoover. In contrast to this he placed the amount which Gen. Wood's managers have spent in the state at $200,000. Politicians agree this is the situation in the primary fight:

With the spontaneous Hoover vote cutting in here and there, particularly with the backing the women are expected to give the former food administrator, the race will be close between Gen. Wood, Gov. Lowden, and Senator Johnson for the Republican preference. There is little or no interest in the Democratic situation. The Hoover people are not making a fight there and Attorney General Palmer seems to be in the lead.

Johnson Strong in Detroit.

Senator Johnson is expected to carry the Detroit industrial district. His meetings have been large and enthusiastic and it is predicted that he will have a good lead in Wayne county.

Gov. Lowden, however, has been well received among the workers. The hard, practical work that has been put in on his campaign may produce surprising results.

W. E. Hull, the Lowden state manager, said today: "Taking the basis of 300, I figure that Hoover will get 50 per cent, Wood 75, Lowden 90, and Johnson 85."

The conviction of the Newberry political leaders has clouded the situation somewhat. The attack on the Wood campaign fund has reacted against the general. His soldier uniform does not take well in the factories. These are the elements of a situation which will remain doubtful until the returns are all in. No one makes a claim of sweeping the state.

CLAIMS STATE FOR WOOD.

William Cooper Procter, chairman of the Leonard Wood campaign committee, yesterday laid claim to Michigan for Wood in the primaries Monday, by at least 25,000 votes.

"Michigan's state-wide primary Monday is perhaps the most interesting contest in the series of battles for the Republican nomination," Mr. Procter said. "The contestants are Wood, Johnson, Lowden, and Hoover.

"Michigan is a Wood state and will so register on Monday."

Williams is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

"RIVALS WISH HOOVER ON US," ONE G. O. P. VIEW

At Same Time Food Man Repels Independents.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 3.—[Special.]—Herbert Hoover's candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination continues to stir up political leaders here and his statement today urging a stop to suggestions that his name be submitted for some party other than Republican was variously viewed.

In some quarters Mr. Hoover's latest announcement was regarded as an effort to prevent a split of the Hoover vote in the Michigan primaries next Monday, his name being on both Republican and Democratic tickets. The statement, it is declared, would tend to discourage persons from voting for him on the Democratic ticket and thereby improve his showing in the Republican primary.

Another view taken is that the statement was issued with a view to discouraging hopes of some politicians that Hoover might lead a third party in the event of losing the Republican nomination, the purpose being to discourage this as much as possible in order to strengthen his Republican chances.

Sees Camouflaged Donkey.

Still a third view is that Mr. Hoover wants to stifle rumblings that his Republican announcement was inspired by Democratic politicians and that it is a move to split the Republican party for Democratic benefit.

Jonathan Bourne of the Republican Publicity association issued a blast on this phase of the Hoover situation today, and asked: "Is the Hoover candidacy a carefully planned scheme to disrupt the Republican party and make it possible for the Democrats to win once more?"

Mr. Bourne says that while Mr. Hoover may not knowingly be a party to such a scheme, many incidents justify the deduction.

Hoover Discourages Personalities.

Following his discouragement of candidacy as an independent, Mr. Hoover in his statement today requested that men and women advocating his nomination "bear in mind that personal criticism of the other names before the party is chiefly of service to the opposition."

"All these men," he said, "are patriotic, honorable Americans. They have all served the country well and are entitled to respect."

Because he had refused to allow his name put into the primaries, Mr. Hoover declared that there was "little organization" on his behalf and at this late date no organization is possible that could compete with other organizations. He urged that his supporters confine their energies to "promotion of their views to the country and the delegates already named, with full respect to their prior pledges."

"Mechanism of Politics."

Mr. Hoover said that he had no expectation that his entrance into the presidential race would be welcomed by the "type of person who conceives that fitness for office, patriotism, and citizenship depend upon placing sheer partisanship above national interest or who requires years of demonstrated participation in work with mechanical politicians."

"I cannot assist these people with explanations trying to prove that I belong to their class," he added.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

In a report of tornado damage on Friday, THE TRIBUNE quoted Mayor Harry P. Pearsons of Evanston as saying: "The loss in Evanston approximates $6,000. We expect to get at least half that amount from subscriptions." Mayor Pearsons did not make an estimate of the loss. This was done by a committee which reported that thirty-seven residents of Evanston suffered a loss estimated at $60,510.

A review of Maj. Gen. E. H. Crowder's "Spirit of the Selective Service," published in yesterday's TRINUBE, stated that the volume was published by Scribner's. The Century company published it.

On Friday THE TRIBUNE reported the monthly salaries of municipal playground directors as $135, of instructors as $110, and of attendants as $110. The directors receive from $110 to $125, instructors from $80 to $100, and attendants $90.

TOLEDO CITIZENS DEMAND CAR MEN GET WAGE BOOST

Toledo, O., April 3.—The first move in an attempt to restore at the earliest possible date street car service was made this afternoon when merchants met and demanded immediate settlement of the traction question that has been buffeted about in the city hall for several years.

They voted approval of the higher wage scale and also the increased rate of fare to take care of the wage boost, and proposed massmeetings in the wards of the six councilmen who balked ratification of the agreement between the car men, company officials, and Mayor Schreiber.

Judge John M. Killits of the United States District court today gave it as his opinion that his court still has jurisdiction to fix the rate of fare.

In addition to the city lines, two interurban roads are tied up.

Hammond Sheriff's Widow Enters County Board Race

Gary, Ind., April 3.—Mrs. Fred Carter, widow of former Sheriff Carter of Lake county, is the first woman in this section to file a declaration as a candidate for a political office. She lives in Hammond and will run on the Democratic ticket for county commissioner of the First district. Carter was killed while sheriff in a row at Cedar Lake years ago.

RUN GOVERNMENT LIKE A BUSINESS, LOWDEN KEYNOTE

Solid Record of Deeds Backs Up Program.

This is the first of a series of sketches of the presidential possibilities. The availability and characteristics of the leading figures in both the Republican and Democratic parties who have been brought forward as candidates will be set forth after personal study by Mr. Evans.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Gov. Frank O. Lowden's specialty is constructive work—governmental engineering, so to speak. His strength lies in a talent for organization, plus vision. As an executive he believes in looking ahead and beating Old Man Trouble to it. Arriving events generally find him down at the station to meet the train.

Lowden's keynote is that the "business of government" is the great inclusive issue. He says the problem is to modernize Uncle Sam's machinery, to scrap the ramshackle methods which have grown up haphazard and to put the government's business on a sound, up to date basis—in other words, to apply to the public's business the methods which in the last hundred years have revolutionized private enterprise.

The Lowden idea is that this is the first key to taxation, which as a burden is diffused throughout society; to high cost of living; to better relations between employer and employé; to the agricultural question; in brief, to most of the economic and social problems of the day. They all stand up like a row of bricks; knock one down by running the government's business expertly and they all tumble.

Where Illinois Led.

What Lowden has been preaching he has been actively practicing.

Result: Illinois is one state where "reconstruction" was more than a mere topic of conversation in politics, even during the war. Before the armistice governmental machinery for the transition period had been installed. While congress was palavering Illinois was traveling out to meet post-war problems. Before industrial troubles broke the state was busy with quiet agencies that later mitigated the unrest. Before taxation became an impending campaign issue Lowden had reduced Illinois' state tax rates and by improved governmental methods was stretching the dollar faster than it could shrink.

Talk versus Deeds.

In view of all this the Lowden men shout that their candidate has the advantage over his opponents in both camps in the way of tangible accomplishment. For solid, substantial achievement in government he has something in the actual record instead of in a mere platform.

For example:

McAdoo shouts for a billion dollar reduction in federal taxes and others take up the cry—but Lowden can point to a one-third cut in state tax rates in two years. Other taxing bodies, municipal and county, are clamoring for more revenues to meet the diminishing power of the dollar and tax bills are jumping, but under Lowden the Illinois state tax rate was cut [illegible] per cent even during the war and was chopped 20 per cent more since the armistice.

Helps U. S. with Budget.

Congress gets busy on a budget; all the candidates grab it as a campaign plank—Lowden is called to Washington to tell how a budget has worked in Illinois under his sponsorship.

Hoover declaims against "machine made" candidacies—Lowden is criticized by Illinois politicians as the one governor who has steadfastly refused to build up a state machine with the patronage.

A house committee surveys the tremendous duplication of governmental agencies and throws up its hands at the consequent waste and extravagance—Lowden is summoned to Washington to [illegible] how in Illinois he consolidated 12[illegible] departments, bureaus and boards into nine departments and modernized the machinery and business of government.

Other candidates descant upon the failure of transportation agencies to grow with traffic demands. Lowden already has built 750 miles of a 4,800 mile system of good roads, for which $17,000,000 has been made available, said to be the most extensive program of any state. Furthermore, he is all set to dig the $20,000,000 waterway link to connect the great lakes with the Mississippi, which for twenty years has been only a dream. It will all tend to lighten the burden on the railroads.

And so it goes. The Lowden men cry that the governor has got more actual goods in the display window than any other candidate. His record, they say, beats reams of speeches and interviews stuffed with theories.

Plans for the Future.

Urbanity, sincerity, and independence are prime characteristics in Lowden. He radiates geniality; a glowing nature with a cracking laugh—not one of your chest cackles, nor yet a chortle or guffaw, but a gusty roar thrown straight from the diaphragm. That laugh has been a great asset. It's infectious; it disarms opposition; it makes a wonderful curtain raiser for serious argument.

Talk with the man for an hour and one gets a series of "fadeouts" from joviality to seriousness and to earnest, constructive thought. Lowden is always talking of the needs of the future, building for expansion.

Red tape and roundabout methods mean nothing to him; he was practicing "direct action" long before the One Big Unionists and the Communists discovered the phrase and twisted it into something else.

Settles Car Strike.

For instance, in the Chicago street car strikes last summer the governor came up post haste from Springfield. He pulled in the union leaders with one hand and yanked in the owners with the other. The management had been talking of meeting the walkout with strikebreakers.

"Old stuff! Dead as the dodo!" roared the governor. "Reason, not force, is the spirit of the times."

He jumped over the heads of the superintendents and manager and landed on the financial interests right in the counting room and laid down the law. The strike was adjusted. It was quick, direct action on the part of the governor.

Masters the "Reds."

Then, too, the governor had his "trouble squads."

After the armistice Illinois was in somewhat more parlous shape than most other states by reason of the radicals in the coal and steel groups. By the consolidation code the executive was able to keep in the closest sort of touch with the situation, even in the remotest parts of the state.

As fast as the pot began to simmer he had tactful men on the spot who worked to bring antagonistic forces together.

For example, Peoria was a storm center—radical leaders among the miners told the regular union chiefs to jump in the lake. Unauthorized strikes were called; a little rioting followed; a general strike was set. But it never got anywhere—Lowden shot in Adjt. Gen. Dickson and others, who called in the strike leaders and the employers and got them around the table in a hotel room. It was over before it started. When the state troops got there, their only maneuvers were to march from the armory to the restaurant at meal times.

That is a sample of what was going on in many quarters of the state, although it has never been generally known. In the steel strike South Chicago, potentially, was quite as troublesome a spot as Gary, a few miles away in Indiana; conditions were almost identical. Federal troops were needed in Gary, but not in South Chicago, simply because the governor had quietly been on the job.

Son of Village Blacksmith.

Lowden is able to think in terms of almost any group—he came up through the school of adversity. He was the son of the village blacksmith in Sunrise, Minn., and as a boy went to Iowa by prairie schooner. He taught country school from the years of 15 to 20 and then earned his way through the University of Iowa. He was graduated in '85, valedictorian of his class.

He came to Chicago and worked his way through law school by serving as a law clerk at $8 a week and living in an attic. It was hard sledding, but he polished up the two years' course in one and here again was valedictorian of his class, winning first prizes for scholarship and oratory.

At the bar he soon made a reputation for brilliance; within eight years he had built up a law practice that paid him more than $50,000 a year. He had a chair in Northwestern law college and had piled up a neat fortune.

Wins at Industry, Farming.

His wealth grew when he reorganized large manufacturing enterprises, such as the National Biscuit company and the American Radiator company. He augmented this, especially by agricultural holding in Arkansas and other southern states, where he applied modern methods. Contrary to reports in some quarters, Lowden's wealth did not come through marriage.

In 1896 he married Miss Florence Pullman, daughter of George M. Pullman. Recently in seeking to hand Lowden the conge, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania remarked: "No candidate can ride to the White House in a Pullman." Lowden opponents have sometimes pulled that line in Illinois, but only to drop it like a hot potato. In the 1916 governorship campaign it was used by the Democrats—but Lowden got the largest vote ever cast for a candidate for governor in Illinois, or for president, either, if one counts only the male votes cast for Hughes (the women voted on president).

Puts Through New Code.

On becoming governor Lowden's first feat was to get through his administrative code, by all odds the most important piece of constructive legislation in Illinois in a generation.

To fill the nine big executive jobs he went after the most expert talent available. Politics cut no weight. Most of the men in the "cabinet" probably wouldn't know how to carry their home precincts if asked to.

The politicians sobbed bitterly, but the governor was adamant—he is a man of great independence of thought and act; on a big question he will seek advice from all possible sources, but once he makes up his mind he puts his decision through on the jump.

His record as "war governor" was such that the Democratic state convention in 1918 gave him an uproarious indorsement.

In the present industrial situation he has denounced both reactionaries among employers and radicals among employés—his leaning, if any, has been toward the side of labor. In 1916 organized labor fought him bitterly, but two years later, at the convention of the state federation of labor, John H. Walker, then its president, and himself quite radical, said Lowden had proved "an exceedingly agreeable surprise."

On suffrage—well, Illinois was the first state to ratify?

His Economic Platform.

These are only the high spots. One can't touch everything in a brief sketch. But here are three simple economic statements which Lowden stresses in his program:

"In looking for more equable distribution of the world's goods it still is true that you can't divide what you do not produce.

"The only safe way to reduce the price of commodities is to produce more and consume less.

"You still must live within your income if you would prosper, and that rule is equally sound whether applied to the individual, or the state, or the nation."

POLITICAL NOTES

Senator Borah, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Michigan, where he was campaigning, expects to have tomorrow the details of Gov. Lowden's campaign receipts and expenditures.

Gov. Samuel V. Stewart of Montana has become an announced candidate for the Democratic nomination for vice president. His petition was filed yesterday for the Montana direct primaries.

While Mayor Thompson is speaking today at the Eighth Infantry armory in behalf of his candidate for Second Ward Committeeman Edward H. Wright, three large meetings will be in progress for colored voters who are said to be in revolt against the attempt of the city hall to deliver them in a block. These meetings will be at Olivet Baptist church, South Park M. E. church, and at Odd Fellows' hall.

George F. Porter, president of the Young Men's Lowden league, will speak at the political tea given for business women tomorrow afternoon in the Elizabethan room of the Congress from 4 to 5:30 p. m. The Misses Florence and Harriet Lowden, honorary members of the young woman's division of the Woman's Lowden league, will be the guests of honor.

Mrs. Douglas Robinson of New York, sister of the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt, is expected to arrive in Chicago Friday to assist Miss Harriet Vittum at the Wood women's headquarters.

Former service men of the Twenty-seventh ward met at the aldermanic headquarters of Christ Jensen and elected officers of a Jensen Doughboys' club. Lieut. Leo R. Kelley is president; M. J. Sullivan, secretary, and Anthony J. Hojka, sergeant at arms.

The Chicago Building Trades council has indorsed Michael J. Browne for alderman in the Eleventh ward to succeed the late Ald. Cullerton.

NO QUARTER IN ILLINOIS FIGHT FOR PRESIDENCY

Lowden-Wood Row Hot in Last Week.

Illinois, this week, witnesses the climax of the attempt of Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood to capture the home state of Gov. Frank O. Lowden. Immediate prospects are for seven days of knockdown and drag-out fighting between the forces arrayed behind the two presidential candidates, preceding the direct preference primaries on April 13, one week from Tuesday.

Early Position Abandoned.

At the getaway, the Wood plan of campaign, it was claimed, was simply to place his name on the Illinois ballots so that he would be in easy position to take on the Illinois delegation of fifty-eight as second choice. The next day, Col. William Cooper Procter, in New York, announced that Wood would carry Illinois and that such was his intention, if possible.

The next step was notification to the Lowden candidates for delegates—the Wood management having failed to put up Wood candidates in any congressional district—that they would be expected to stand morally bound to vote for Wood in the convention, should their districts be carried by Wood in the April 13 primaries. Then started the billboard and advertising campaign.

Lowden Men Active.

That all this has stirred the fighting blood of the Lowden people is to put it mildly. The Lowden managers haven't had much to say, but it is known that the final week of the campaign will open with the Lowden camp all set for retaliation in kind of whatever style of attack is launched by Gen. Wood against the governor.

The ultimate result may depend upon what happens in Cook county, where the decisive vote may be cast.

Gen. Wood, accompanied by Col. N. W. MacChesney, his Illinois manager, and Chief Justice Harry Olson of Chicago, will start tomorrow morning upon the Illinois tour. They will be at Springfield tomorrow night, Cairo, Tuesday night; Peoria, Wednesday night; Rock Island, Thursday night; Rockford, Friday night, returning to Chicago after a Saturday afternoon meeting in Elgin.

You give more of your trade to one store than to the others in the same line. Why?

Your opinion of a store; your willingness to give it your patronage; the reasons you give your friends for going to that store, are all based on what you get when you trade there; what you get in goods and in service.

And of course what the store gets in your good will and patronage is based on exactly the same things; namely, what it (the store) gives to you in goods and service.

Store service is too often thought of as the activity of salespeople and prompt delivery of goods: you get waited on quickly and the goods arrive at your home promptly. These are a part of the proper operation of any good store, but real service is much more; it includes everything that can be done to help you get exactly what you want for your money, even if that means advising you to buy of another merchant.

We've grown in our understanding of real service, and you've probably noticed how the business has grown as a result.

Buying the best obtainable is one of the things necessary for the store that is to sell the best in goods and service.

DON'T BUY THE TRIBUNE—BORROW IT.

THE TRIBUNE may seem to be standing on its head, but it is forced to ask people not to buy it. It wants to keep every one of its readers and gain new ones, but it cannot sell them all the paper. The paper shortage makes it impossible to do so. If two families would use one TRIBUNE we could keep the readers and they could have THE TRIBUNE. We want the readers; they evidently want THE TRIBUNE. Better days some day, but just now borrow and don't buy THE TRIBUNE.

RAILROADS AND THE NATION.

Congressman William B. McKinley recently delivered in the house a speech on the railroad bill which was as pithy as it was brief. We should like our readers to ponder the following paragraphs:

"I regret to see expressions by certain classes of newspapers, and also occasionally by a congressman, of a desire to confiscate railroads. There are outstanding in the United States 40,000,000 life insurance policies, policies owned by you and by me for the purpose of protecting our loved ones in case death comes to us. I wonder if these people who so glibly talk of confiscation, or, what is the same thing, cutting off the railroads' power to earn interest, realize that the security back of his insurance policy is in a large part railroad mortgages. About one-fourth of all railroad bonds are owned by savings banks and insurance companies.

"Now, we have come to the point where, in my mind, we must decide whether we will have private ownership and operation under government supervision or whether we will have railroad bankruptcy, and, of necessity, government ownership. The population of the United States grows at the rate of 2 per cent a year. All the people and every industry are absolutely dependent upon efficient railroad service. Efficient service and prompt freight distribution are vital. Without them our present civilization would collapse. One hundred years ago my grandfather, upon a southern Ohio farm, with his family of eight children, felt no need of railroads. They cut their trees for fuel, spun the wool grown upon the backs of their own sheep for clothing; they raised their own tobacco, took their wheat to the mill to be ground; dried their own fruit and sorted their own vegetables Even their shoes and boots were made by the village cobbler from hides taken off the backs of their own cattle.

"Today the dweller in the towns, comprising two-thirds of the population, is dependent upon the railroads for everything. Even the farmers—outside of fruit, vegetables, and salt pork—must come to their railroad station for every necessity. Ten years ago James J. Hill, the wisest railroad builder of all time, said that in order to keep up with the demands of the population the railroads of the country must spend $1,000,000,000 every year of new money for additional track, terminals, cars, and engines on account of the strangling policy of the interstate commerce commission; the railroad credit was so impaired they could not borrow the money to make this expenditure. Consequently we suffered from the awful railroad breakdown when the stress of war came upon us.

"It is now estimated that $6,000,000,000, an amount practically one-half of the present mortgage debt of the 250,000 miles of railroads of the country, will be needed to rehabilitate the railroads, rebuild and extend the necessary track, add to the present terminals, and buy more cars and engines to cover the demands for the convenience of the people during the next five years. This $6,000,000,000, over one-fourth the bonded debt of the whole United States roads, must be obtained by the railroads from the people through the sale to the people of railroad securities.

"The railroads when they go to the private investor in the money market must come in competition with the man that wants to borrow money to build a house, enlarge a factory, to start a bank, or to increase a growing business. The notes of the railroads must be as attractive as to interest and as sure of repayment as to principal as the notes of the concerns in other business. If there is any question as to the ability to repay both principal and interest, the savings of the people will not go into new railroad securities. If the billions of money needed cannot be borrowed, the railroads will go into bankruptcy and the government will be compelled to take them over to rehabilitate them. Unless the railroads are allowed sufficient earnings to establish their credit, all this will happen just as sure as 2 and 2 make 4."

A wider and more thoughtful consideration of these fundamental facts would produce a saner and more helpful public attitude toward railroad legislation and public policy. There have been evils in private ownership and will continue to be, since all men are fallible. But we should be wise if we stopped to think that public ownership must also be human and fallible and if we examined very carefully the easy promises of its proponents from this point of view. The basic truth of the whole problem is that the American nation needs and wants the best service at a reasonable expense. We doubt that public ownership and operation, which means political operation, will provide either efficiency or economy.

SOUTH AMERICA AND THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

La Prensa, the important paper of Buenos Aires, says that the American note on the anti-Peruvian disturbances in Bolivia was arrogant and then pounces on the Monroe doctrine. South American republics frequently are restless under this policy of the United States and probably because they get the feeling that they are under it.

When La Prensa says it is an economic policy to dislodge European influence it is intentionally or unintentionally misleading South American opinion. We have not had any cultural relations with the Latin republics and not nearly the volume of commerce which would be advantageous to both the United States and South America.

It has seemed virtually impossible to make an adjustment between the Latin and the American commercial minds or to reconcile their methods. The South American republics are connected with Europe by language, literature, art, politics and commerce and no serious American attempts have been made even to win over their affections.

Occasionally a mission or a conference or a congress tries it, but no real national effort is behind it and little comes of it. It may be irritating to a South American government, with a foreign trained army, to feel that it is under an imputation of wardship, that if its sovereignty is threatened by Europe it will receive American aid or if it tried to sell out its sovereignty to Europe it would not be allowed.

That implication is in the Monroe doctrine, but in the various changes which have been worked upon this policy since it was used to serve notice upon the Holy Alliance, it remains a merely protective declaration.

It is probably true that the time has gone when South or Central America could be Africanized by Europe, but the time has not gone when Europe would do it if it were possible or became possible. The United States will not have European wars fought in the western hemisphere if it can be helped and in the way of helping it the United States will not permit a further spread of European institutions in this hemisphere.

That ought to coincide with South American nationalistic impulses and policies and it can stick without putting the United States in the posture of arrogance.

WHAT THE FARMERS ARE THINKING.

There is no lack of public expression of the opinion of business or of labor. We hear less from a class upon which the whole fabric of the nation's prosperity is founded, the farmers. Recently the Farmers Loan and Trust company of Sioux City, Ia., asked for the opinions of farmers in that region on the subject of increased production. In a pamphlet it now publishes some of the replies, which taken together probably offer as fair a representation of the American farmers' state of mind and point of view as could be shown within reasonable bounds.

The most general and striking fact disclosed by the letters is the strong reaction against reduction of hours of work. There is no demand for reduction for the farmer. On the contrary, the assumption in virtually all cases is that men must work and work hard to have what they expect from modern civilization.

"All production," writes C. F. Hood of Leeds, "except from the farm, has diminished. Let other producers put the same hours that the farmer does into the day's work and continue it six days each week, and the 'high cost of living' will resolve itself into the 'cost of high living.' Even then the work of the women and the children of the farmer will not be requited. A thirty or even a forty-four hour day will not produce enough to keep the world going."

J. B. Smith of Moville writes: "The short hour day man can do a day's work, crank up his auto, and start out across the country to visit his brother farmer and congratulate him on his fine show of crops. The farmer has done his day's work after the plow, gone home, milked cows, fed calves and pigs until 9 o'clock, putting in from fourteen to sixteen hours a day. The world has never had such a wave of prosperity as during the last three or four years and never such a wave of unrest. Wages cannot be constantly raised. Idleness is one of the great causes of the high cost of living. About the only way to increase production is to be pinched to necessity."

As for the increase of production by the farmer, there is the common reply, which is well expressed by Fred H. Wright of Moville, who says: "To produce more the people in the United States must work longer hours, as the farmer does. But if the farmer does his share and produces more, union labor hangs back and the farmer is cutting his own throat because pork, beef, and foodstuffs flood the market and the farmer gets nothing for his work while the rest of the world lives off of him. Most all good farmers are overworked."

Many ask: Why produce more when the increase will lower prices on our products and wipe out what profit the farmer can hope for and that is small and diminishing steadily? Alexander Paul of Bronson says: "One great dread of the farmer is overproduction." Several point out that there is plenty of food in the country, but insufficient means of getting it to market. Al Rudholm of Lawton suggests some plan "to reduce the cost of handling between the farmer and consumer which would lower the cost of living and help stop the scrapping between capital and labor." "Then wages," he says, "would not have to be raised so many times to keep ahead of living costs."

But what must chiefly impress any reader of this significant little pamphlet is the emphasis on work, "increased cost of work per capita" as one farmer writes. There is little complaint that the farmer works too hard, but there is general demand that others shall work as hard as he does. City folks, the farmer tells us, must not ask the farmer to produce more while clamoring for shorter hours, more leisure, more luxuries and lower prices. He does not propose to pay much attention to appeals for more farm production while capital and labor quarrel over the profits of industry and cut down production of the things the farmer needs. The farmer, as Mr. Rudholm says, is "only a part of the circle."

Editorial of the Day

BETTER KEEP COOL.

[From the Escanaba Journal.]

There is altogether too much heat being engendered in the contest for the Republican nomination for president, and it bodes ill for the campaign and election which will follow the primaries and the Chicago convention There is no occasion for the heat, either, and the average Republican will note it with more or less disgust. So far as the average voter, who cares only for the welfare of his country, is concerned he doesn't care an iota which of the three leading contestants for the nomination is successful. He is ready to throw up his hat and hurrah for Wood or Lowden or Johnson, knowing that all three are big enough and good enough for the job. But with these campaign managers stirring things up—

Well, we believe they are making a large sized mistake.

The trumpet flower. Where'er I chance to go—
Beauty, as though the gods had passed my way.
So much of loveliness is everywhere,
I seem, forsooth, a favored worshiper,
A mortal wandered up from barren strands;
Elate, I muse, and breathe an odorous air—
As though an unseen altar, heaped with myrrh,
Awoke to flame at touch of vestal hands.

PRENATAL DIET THEORIES.

IN the vomiting of women during pregnancy it has long been the practice for the woman to stay in bed until late in the morning and to eat crackers or bread before getting out of bed and at short intervals during the day. Now comes Drs. Titus, Hoffman, and Givens, in the Journal of the American Medical Association, offering a scientific explanation and a treatment based on the theory.

The vomiting, they say, is due to sugar and starch starvation. When the woman commences to vomit, or is afraid to eat because of nausea, the starch and sugar starvation is made worse. If she takes much exercise the condition becomes worse, since muscle work burns up sugar. The developing child requires a good deal of sugar, as does the body of the woman.

Under these circumstances the surplus of sugar stored in the muscles and in the liver is used up. If the woman eats a good deal of lean meat, as she is likely to do under the theory that her growing baby needs protein, she is likely to throw her chemistry out of balance unless she eats a good deal of starch and sugar.

Practically the matter works out this way: The pregnant woman should have a diet rich in bread, cereals, sugar, and vegetables, and cotaining rather a small amount of protein. If in spite of this the woman develops nausea, she should eat more bread, cereals, and vegetables, and less meat and eggs. She should avoid long fasts.

For instance, it is a mistake to go without food from the evening dinner at about 6 in the evening until a morning breakfast at about 8. Some crackers or a cereal at bedtime, or as a midnight lunch or in the early hours of the morning. A few crackers midway of the morning and afternoon may also be advisable.

Some cases may require in addition two to four tablespoonfuls of a 10 per cent solution of glucose and 2 per cent bicarbonate of soda in water—taking this every few hours. About half a pint to one pint a day is taken.

If the vomiting is obstinate it will be necessary for a physician to take the matter in hand and give treatment along the same general lines, but given in a more scientific and better controlled way. He will put his patient to bed, see that she gets plenty of water by mouth or otherwise, give her no meat or eggs, perhaps starve her for a day, and feed her sugar solution by injections or into her veins, and, finally, gradually bring her back to a bread-cereal-vegetable diet.

ASTHMA AND CLIMATE.

J. P. writes: "1. Will you kindly tell me if you think a change to another part of the country would be of benefit to my hearing. My trouble is dry catarrh of the middle ear, I understand.

"2. Will you also kindly tell me where it would be best for a young man to go to try another climate for asthma. He is also troubled with rheumatism in his arms and hands. We are about seventy-five miles northeast of Chicago."

REPLY.

1. I have just read a letter from a Chicago man whose deafness was greatly lessened by a stay in Josephine and Taylor counties, Oregon.

2. Some find change of climate helpful in asthma. More do not. Asthma is due to hypersensitiveness to some substance. An asthmatic should try to discover the cause of his trouble and avoid it or have his sensitiveness removed.

DANGER SEEMS SLIGHT.

M. M. H. writes: "The dressmaker, already having material in her house before getting quarantined, is sewing on clothes for myself and little girl while under quarantine with scarlet fever. Her house will be fumigated before I get the clothes. Will there be any danger of germs lodging in the material, as I have two little children for whom I must be careful?"

REPLY.

The danger that scarlet fever will be carried by a dress is practically nil. However, in order that you may feel easy in your mind, sun and air the dresses for two days before having your children come in contact with them.

"GYM" HELPS ROUND SHOULDERS.

I. C. U. writes: "1. How can one cure round shoulders?

"2. Is there any change of the voice if the tonsils are cut out? Will a person have a better voice for singing by having the tonsils cut out?

"3. Is there any method or cure for a cross eyed person?"

REPLY.

1. By work in a gymnasium. The proper exercises are those which develop the muscles of the neck and back. Among them are rope climbing, work on the bars, swinging, and wrestling.

2. No. That is the rule, though there are slight departures from it.

3. Properly fitting glasses cure some cases of cross eyes. Operation is effective in curing others.

AMERICAN LEGION.

Chicago headquarters, 111 West Washington street. Since the consolidation of several Legion posts there are now a total of 135 in Chicago and six others forming. The local headquarters has been districting the city with the idea of having a big representative post in every community. It has also started the formation of six new posts where heretofore no posts have existed. These are in the vicinity of Humboldt, Oakley and Madison streets, Hamilton Park, Marquette Park, Clearing, and Wendell Phillips High school. It is the hope of the American Legion to have every Legionnaire registered in his community post.

Any member wishing to make transfer to another post should apply to his post adjutant for a transfer card and it will be taken care of.

Above is printed an application form to be filled out by any eligible wishing to join the Legion.

The office of the Friend of the Soldier, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, has a large supply of the American Legion booklets, a copy of which will be sent upon request and receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope.

SELLS UNIFORM.

Geneva, Wis., March 31.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—Tell me, please, if it is unlawful for any part of the United States army uniform to be sold at a sheriff's auction. I recently saw an army overcoat sold and am under the impression that they had no right to do it. To whom should this be reported? J. M.

No one is permitted to sell such an article at auction. Report the case to the army intelligence officer, central department, war department, 230 East Ohio street, Chicago, Ill.

EXPENSE OF TRANSPORTATION REMAINS.

Chicago, March 29.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I have a cousin who was attending a college under the vocational training board. While there he died, and of course his body was brought back here for burial. The war risk insurance bureau has paid $100 toward the expense incurred by his death. The family are wondering if this is supposed to cover the transportation charges or whether the bureau of the vocational training board will pay anything toward the transportation expense. N.

The war risk insurance bureau does not pay in excess of $100 for funeral expenses.

At present the federal board for vocational training is not authorized to assume any of the expense, burial or transportation, of the men they have placed in training. However, there is now a bill pending in congress which, if passed, may enable the man's parents to collect for the transporting of the son's body.

COMPENSATION UNDER SWEET BILL.

Chicago, March 31.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—Please inform me in your column if you think I should have compensation due me after relating you my case. On July 9, 1919, I was discharged and compensation of $30 for total disability was awarded me. It was continued until Dec. 2, 1919, when I was placed in training and the compensation was discontinued. I am under the impression that I have some money due me provided by the Sweet bill, which allowed disabled soldiers $80 a month instead of $30. V. J. H.

Under the provisions of the Sweet bill, which was enacted into a law Dec. 24, 1919, you will receive the additional $50 from the time you were awarded compensation until you entered training with the vocational board. As you have not received the additional compensation yet, we suggest that you bring your case to the attention of the compensation and claims division, bureau of war risk insurance, Washington, D. C.

RESIDENT OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Chicago, March 30.—[Friend of the Soldier.]—I resided in the state of Massachusetts prior to my enlistment, but applied for enlistment while in the state of Iowa, and was accepted at Jefferson Barracks, Mo. As I entitled to the Massachusetts bonus? W. C.

We could not decide your case from the facts stated in your letter. Write to the adjutant general, Boston, Mass., stating complete facts and ask if you can collect the state bonus. It is probable that it will have to be submitted for the decision of the state bonus board.

No attention will be given to anonymous letters. To insure a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

ANOTHER CITIZEN.

Chicago, April 1.—[To the Friend of the People.]—In Germany husband deserts wife and child, a boy 2 years old; mother procures divorce, remarries and comes to America when boy is 11 years of age. Husband becomes United States citizen. Boy is raised by stepfather under his name, and when of age voted under stepfather's papers. Was this correct and is young man a United States citizen? About twelve years later first father comes to America, but does not become citizen. Did his presence here make young man an alien? Was there a new law passed in New York, about 1908, that would make him an alien under these circumstances? First father has since passed away. F. M.

Under the provisions of section 2172, R. S. U. S., the minor children of persons who have been duly naturalized under any law of the United States shall, if dwelling in the United States at the time of the naturalization of the parent, or before they reach the age of 21 years, be considered as citizens thereof.

Under the provisions of section 1994, R. S. U. S., any woman who is now or may hereafter be married to a citizen of the United States, and who might herself be lawfully naturalized, shall be deemed a citizen. The marriage of the mother of the person referred to, to a citizen, made her a citizen, under section 1994, and the courts have held that the mother's minor children derive citizenship through her naturalization by marriage.

It is believed that the person referred to has the legal right to claim citizenship through the naturalization of either of his parents. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, Chief Naturalization Examiner.

NOT SO GOOD.

Chicago, March 31.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Is a verbal lease good for two years? Have been here five years, every lease has been for two years. The owner was in South America when new lease was made. Her agent raised rent $5 and asked me if we wished to wait for owner to return for lease. We said yes. We are now informed our verbal lease was only good for one year. G. W. S.

An attempt to make an oral lease for two years usually results in a tenancy from month to month.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UNDESIRABLES.

Chicago, March 31.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can a complaint be made against a family owning the house in which they live and who cause a great annoyance to the neighborhood?

2. Would the neighborhood as a whole have to make the complaint or could one neighbor, who because of the position of the flat in which he lives receives most of the annoyance, make a complaint and receive any satisfaction?

3. With whom should a complaint be filed? READER.

1. Depends on the character of the neighborhood and the nature of the nuisance.

2. A single individual could obtain relief on proper facts.

3. Depends on the facts. On some your aldermen or the department of health might act. On others you should employ an attorney to file a bill for injunction.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

AND THE LEASE RUNS ON.

Chicago, April 1.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Does the selling of the building break the tenant's lease? A. F. B.

No. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CAVEAT EMPTOR.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Honorable, self-respecting, high minded Americans, by some peculiar trait of character, stoop to unheard of things and trail their citizenship in the mud, to be seen in the company of almost any foreign character who wears a decoration or has inherited or acquired a title.

To secure one themselves, apparently no trust is sacred, no virtue respected, and to be known as a "friend" of some foreign country they seem willing to put in jeopardy the integrity of their patriotism. Like the ordinary tourist traveling in a foreign country, where unfamiliar money is stage money, and everything is considered cheap at whatever the price asked, so it seems American men of state affairs, of finance, of commercial life, or intellectual achievement, lose all power of reason or comparison, and on bended knees prostrate themselves in the slime of the centuries of corruption, apparently to boast that they are in it because some foreign politician, seeking to increase his power, has flattered the American by permitting him to eat at his table, forever thereafter holding him in his service as a faithful vassal by the chantage of "noblesse oblige" and the hypnotic power of the flattery of "You noble Americans," "You generous Americans," "You chivalrous Americans," "O, how we love you and your charming women of devotion and sacrifice."

America has repeated by 10,000 citizens, decorated or seeking to be decorated, the chant of eternal gratitude for all it is, has, or ever hopes to be, when, as a matter of history, the freedom of the world is the result of the moral grandeur of American civilization.

The fate of the power and freedom of the American peoples lies not in the bravery of its men or the devotion of its women, but in the "gullibility" of its "distinguished citizens."

In this year of campaign and elections let us raise the banner for American patriots.

Let us put in power unmuzzled and uninfluenced American citizens, whose integrity has not been placed under suspicion by "love of foreign distinctions," and let us demand that our candidates for public office wear no foreign decorations or distinctions except for "personal heroism on a field of battle."

America alone is the "balance of power for good." LLEWELLYN LANE DAVIS. Of Philadelphia.

SOCIETY BUSTED IS SOCIETY STILL.

Chicago, March 29.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I suppose society—if there is really anything that can be called "society" nowadays—will continue in the same way for some time. We must remember that Providence allowed the Germans to be victorious for a period, and so with this topsy-turvy state of things at present existing.

If the public wants onions, what's the use of offering them lavender? Few of the young women of the present day are shy about their legs and bosoms. They have to wash their faces ere you can tell their beauty, or otherwise—exactly. At 23, owing to the incessant application of cosmetics, girls look like faded virgins. They talk so much that most of them go about with their mouths partly open, and with eternal colds. The word "ladies" is almost extinct. It is now spelled "lydies."

Men are growing morbid. Faces that used to show fairer, smiles that used to be brighter, actions that used to be more kindly, when seen across the wine cups, are all disappearing. How many generous actions, how many unselfish deeds have been solely prompted by temperance? Are there many even now who would appeal from Philip drunk to Philip sober rather than from Philip sober to Philip drunk? After all there is a good deal to be said for the prisoner at the drinking bar. Very soon the majority—and there never has been a majority in prohibition—the majority of vegetarians will have the moral right to enact laws prohibiting the production, sale, and use of meat; the majority of Hebrews will have the right to prohibit the sale of ham; the majority of nonsmokers will have the right to prohibit smoking; the majority of infidels will have the right to abolish Sunday schools. In fact, the individual will have no rights that a fictitious majority must or should respect.

Kitchen maids wear diamond rings; stenographers set the fashion and spend anything from $100 up on gowns. Millionaires are wearing rags, and, lastly, the painters are getting $8 a day and doing work in my house that a child of 7 would be ashamed of. Where is it all to end? H. L. T.

ALL IN FAVOR OF THE SHIRT AMENDMENT, SAY AYE.

Chicago, March 28.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—At last the secret is out. Mat Sprague has tipped us off. He let the cat out of the bag. He has gone and put us "hep" to the cause of the high cost of living. (Whisper.) It is silk shirts and porterhouse steaks. And to think we couldn't see it all along.

Now for the remedy. Constitutional amendment. Prohibit those two curses and the problem is solved.

How simple. H. G. WOLF.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Last week's best sellers in a leading Chicago bookstore were:

FICTION.

"Poor Relations" [Harper], by Compton Mackenzie.
"Miss Lulu Bett" [Appleton], by Zona Gale.
"Sheila Intervenes" [Doran], by Stephen McKenna.
"Treacherous Ground" [Moffat-Yard], by Johan Bojer.
"Basil Everman" [Houghton-Mifflin], by Elsie Singmaster.
"Burning Glass" [Dutton], by Marjorie Bowen.

NONFICTION.

"The Inside Story of the Peace Conference" [Harper], by Dr. E. J. Dillon.
"The Soul of Abraham Lincoln" [Doran], by Dr. Barton.
"Russian People" [Scribner], by Countess Cantacuzene.

"TREACHEROUS GROUND"—that is what Johan Bojer aptly calls his latest novel of the conflict of conscience with fate. Treacherous ground it is upon which ideals are built, upon which penance is offered for injustice, upon whose foundation is built a bulwark against the cowardice which conscience inspires in all men. It is a terrible book, an awful book in the pure sense of those words—a book to fill one with terror and with awe. It is so grimly uncompromising. Erik Evje is so unceasingly plagued by the furies of his conscience, and fate makes of little things great spiritual landslides for him. Erik is obviously a neurotic, and yet, so great is the power of Bojer's pen that he seems not so much the individual who has spiritually gone to pieces, but the mass of men who are tossed into the air by fate and whose bounces grow less and less until finally they sink into utter inelasticity. "Treacherous Ground" must have preceded "The Great Hunger," for there is in this novel an undercurrent of the great hunger of man for God, for some explanation of things as they are. The hero of "The Great Hunger" finds God in the most bitter tragedy which fate has scored against him. "Treacherous Ground" ends with the crash of Erik's dream castles and with one of the most magnificently tragic scenes I have ever read. Sometimes I marvel at the popularity of Johan Bojer in America. He is, without doubt, a man of power and, at times, a man of genius. But he is uncompromising, grim, tragic. And we are almost blatantly a nation of optimists. Perhaps American readers like him because they can say, "Of course, this is only a story!" or "Isn't that just like a Norwegian!"

If we can't move we can do our houses over. The public library has posted a list of good books on decoration and remodeling.

If Adriana Spadoni goes on writing novels as good as "The Swing of the Pendulum"—her first—foreshadows she will be a member of the literary hall of fame some day. "The Swing of the Pendulum" [Boni & Liveright] has many of the faults of the first novel. It is amateurish. It is powerful in spots, delicate in spots, hopelessly dull in spots, threadbare in others. But it has the greatest of the gifts of the novelist, sincerity! And it is completely and wholeheartedly American. The incident might happen anywhere in the world. The psychology is indigenously American, the psychology of the new American woman. The pendulum for Jean swings through marriage without desire, desire without marriage, back to the nadir of a normal longing for companionship and children.

"Poor Relations" [Harper] is Compton Mackenzie at his lightest, most delicate best. It is sheer comedy-farce, fluffier than any literary cream puff that was ever made by a deft chef, hilariously funny at times, and horribly true, as all of us who have ever been or had poor relations know full well. After the stodginess and melodrama of the later Sylvia Scarlett, "Poor Relations" is a joy and a good omen that Compton Mackenzie is still, or again, one of the young English novelists worth keeping our field glasses trained upon.

George Ade's "Hand Made Fables" [Doubleday-Page], illustrated by John T. McCutcheon, almost makes one think that there has never been the seven lean years without one of their jolly collaborations. It is so like the other Ade fables, with that same quality of always seeming better than the last and always seeming better than any one could hope for. The criers after the American language forget that George Ade has not only been writing it but creating it for a literary lifetime. Some day—fifty years after he is dead—a literary critic is going to discover George Ade and make the all-American O. Henry boom sound like a pebble dropped into a pond.

"The Matrix" [Century], by Maria Thompson Daviess, is the fictionization of the love story of Abraham Lincoln's father and his mother, Nancy Hanks, of whom their son said: "All that I am, or ever hope to be, I owe to my angel mother; blessings on her memory."

Philip Gibbs is busy on a "true" record of the war. Now that the censors have folded up their tents and departed all of the war correspondents seem to have dusted off their parlor statuettes of The Truth and are displaying them as though they were marvelous new conceptions. It's like those wondrous hours of childhood when after a whole afternoon of pretend we finally decided to play real for a little while. After all, playing real is just as much playing as playing pretend. I, for one, would much prefer their playing another kind of pretend—frankly. But one must admit that men like Stephen Graham, who fought as a private and whose whole beings were stirred by injustices and who waited until after the job was done to complain of their bosses, that writing a book like "A Private in the Guards" [Macmillan] isn't playing. It is deadly earnest and vital.

What Rear Admiral Sims said about the American navy sounds like "a fanfare of joyful trumpets without" compared to what Lord Fisher tells of his own guv'ment. He, as one Englishman just returned from America aptly suggested, has certainly spilled the beans. His "Memories and Records," just off the Doran presses—even though they are two volumes in weight—are going to furnish material for much sophisticated chatting.

Two volumes of war sketches have come from the Doran presses this week—"Soldiers All," portraits and sketches of the men of the A. E. F., by Joseph Cummings Chase, and "Days of Glory," the sketch book of Frederic Villiers, an English correspondent at the front. "Days of Glory" has an introduction by Philip Gibbs.

"Ashes to Ashes" [McBride], by Isabel Ostrander, is a new kind of mystery story, the criminal exploits of a man who thought that he "could do anything and get away with it if he had brains enough." After almost unintentionally committing murder and not being caught he thinks he is above the law. It is only fair to the powers of righteousness to admit that he eventually found himself under its thumb. But the suspense spins a good yarn.

George E. Brown's "A Book of R. L. S." [Scribner's] is a volume which no person who wants to feel that he is supplied with Stevensoniana can be without. It is a practical working cyclopedia of Stevenson and his friends and the places he visited and everything connected with the man, whose devotees today are, twenty-five years after his death, greater in number and devotion than they were in the heyday of his literary life. Henry James once said of him: "It is as if he wrote himself outright, rose straight to the surface of his prose, and still more of his happiest verse. We grew to possess him entire." That personal and spiritual contact with the man in his work is what has kept the love for Stevenson so green in the hearts of those who know his charm.

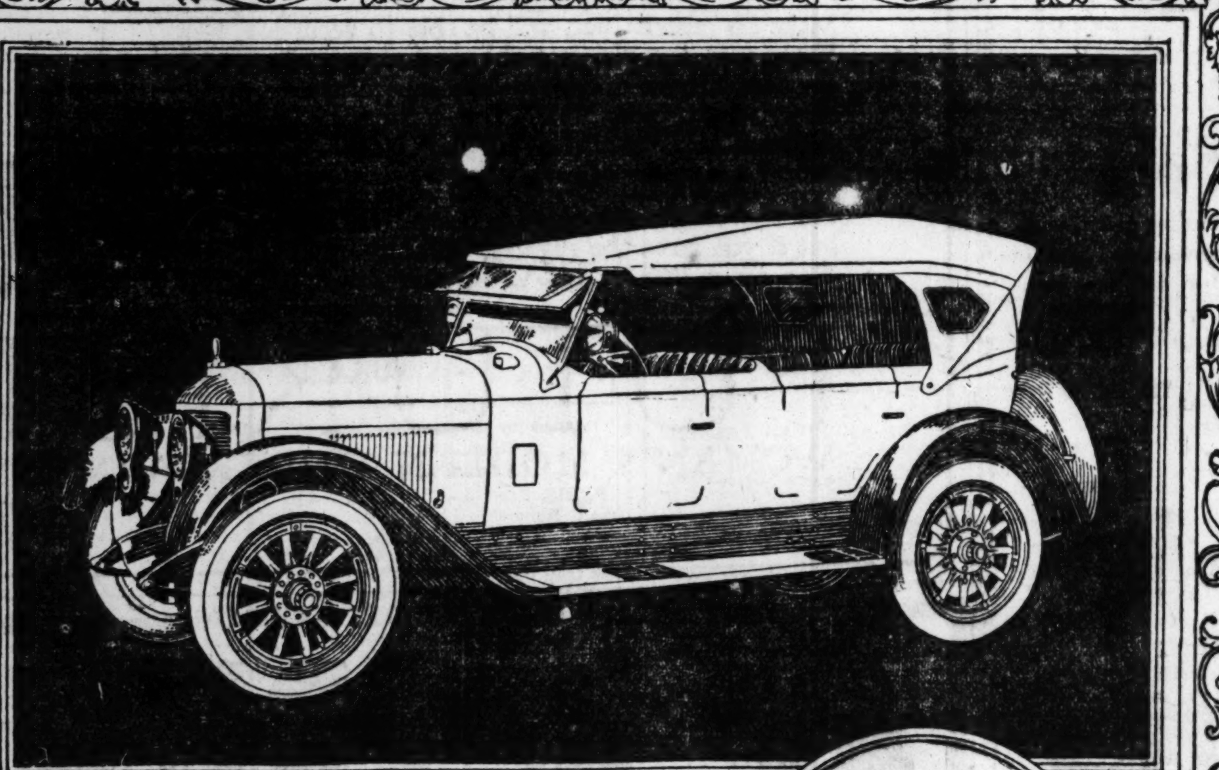
Two books on aircraft, its past and future, are Evan John David's "Flying" [Scribner] and "The Romance of Aircraft" [Stokes], by Laurence Yard Smith. Mr. David suggests that with the perfecting of rapid air communication, we may be deserting the raw, rude climates and living in pleasant garden plateaus, whose drawback evidently has been the fact they were inaccessible. A thought to toy with! We may take our morning dip off the rocks at Carmel-by-the-sea, hop into our little solo planes, spend our allotted union hours in the loop, see the newest Broadway farce, and amble home, perhaps a trifle late, to the murmuring pines and the hemlocks of Carmel's melancholy beauty.



Premier Model 6-D Four-Passenger Open Car $4300, f.o.b. Indianapolis

PREMIER is, today, the only American built car with a genuine aluminum motor. Premier stands alone as the only car built with the Cutler-Hammer magnetic gear shift as regular and standard equipment. These two dominant advantages give Premier an exclusiveness over all current motor cars; and, by the same token, they mark every Premier owner as an advanced thinker and leader.

Premier's most distinctive feature is without doubt, from a standpoint of design, the new "Grecian Edge", owned by Premier and protected under U.S. patent Number 54200.

BIG WEEK FOR G. O. P. POLITICS OPENS TOMORROW

Nearly 200 Delegates Will Be Named.

BY E. O. PHILLIPS.

This week will be one of the most important and significant in the preconvention campaign for the Republican nomination for president. Nearly 200 delegates will be actually elected and the various results are certain to have vital bearing upon the political fortunes of more than one of the avowed candidates.

Michigan starts the week with a direct preference primary tomorrow and will choose the machinery that will name the Chicago delegates.

Seven names will appear on the Republican ballots: Lowden, Wood, Pershing, Johnson, Hoover, Poindexter, and William G. Simpson, a perennial Detroit entrant. The active campaigning has been between Lowden, Wood, and Johnson. The primary results are not legally binding upon the delegates at large to be named at a state convention or upon district delegates elected at congressional district conventions. Michigan has thirty delegates in the Coliseum convention.

The Rhode Island state convention will be held at Providence tomorrow and will elect ten delegates. The sentiment in the state is reported to be friendly to Gov. Lowden and unfriendly to Gen. Wood. The chances are that the delegates will come to Chicago without instructions.

Primary in New York.

On Tuesday, the eighty-eight delegates from New York—the biggest single block in the convention—will be elected outright at direct primaries. There is no test vote to be taken as between the rival candidates.

The regular party organization of the state, including New York City, has a complete slate of candidates for delegates at large and for district delegates. These were chosen in conventions. By official action of such conventions, the regular candidates are to have no instructions. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, who is closely in touch with the organization, withdrew from formal consideration for the presidency, in order that the uninstructed program might go through without difficulty.

Johnson Enters State.

Senator Hiram Johnson entered the state against the wishes of the organization and made a whirlwind campaign there last week. Candidates for delegates pledged to Johnson are running in the seven congressional districts in Brooklyn and in five in Manhattan. In one district two candidates pledged to Herbert Hoover are fighting the regular organization.

Private reports from New York have it that the bulk of the regular candidates who will be without instructions favor the nomination of Lowden and Gen. Wood's strength is figured as between fifteen and twenty of the eighty-eight.

The Wisconsin direct primaries, at which twenty-six delegates will be elected outright, will be held on the same day as New York's—Tuesday. In Wisconsin there are two complete tickets of delegates. The state organization, now controlled by opponents of Senator La Follette, is backing a ticket that is made up of men from both the old stalwart and La Follette factions, agreed to in a state convention. It has the support of Senator Lenroot and also of Gov. Philip and the state administration.

La Follette a Factor.

The La Follette ticket is headed by James Thompson, La Follette candidate for United States senator. Both tickets are uninstructed, but a majority of the regular slate is said to favor Lowden, while the La Follette delegates, if they get to the convention, will be guided largely by Senator La Follette.

The state convention of the regular party organization in Georgia will be held Wednesday at Atlanta. It looks like a three-cornered contest from this state at the convention. The old Bull Moosers already have elected four delegates at large, uninstructed. The contest Wednesday will be between the Wood interests, which will try to get an instructed delegation, and the regulars who want an uninstructed delegation.

Kansas Blow to Wood.

During the week just ended the Kansas state convention was held and elected an uninstructed delegation. The Wood managers claim that Kansas acted according to the program and that the twenty delegates are safely and surely for Wood.

It is said, however, that the delegation will be for Gov. Henry J. Allen as the most formidable dark horse that could be trotted out, and will govern itself accordingly.

Contest in Mississippi.

The state convention of the Howard or Negro faction was held in Mississippi and instructed twelve delegates for Wood.

The regular convention, called by National Committeeman Mulvihill, who controls a majority of the state committee, is called for May 5, and probably will elect an uninstructed delegation.

Maine was the only state to elect Democratic national convention delegates. The twelve are sent to San Francisco without instructions.

HOUSE BODY TO SIFT CAREFULLY 68 BONUS PLANS

Washington, D. C., April 3.—Five subcommittees of the house ways and means committee will consider all sixty-eight pending soldier relief measures, Chairman Fordney said today.

The American Legion advocates adjusted compensation at the rate of $1.50 for each day of service; extension of vocational training privileges; home building aid, and priority in land settlement.

LOCK UP DOG, ROB SAFE.

After imprisoning a watch dog in a rear room, burglars knocked the combination off the safe door at the Liberty Yeast corporation office, 2218 Flournoy street, and escaped early yesterday with $300. Charles Fagin, head of the company, discovered the theft. Finger prints were found on the walls. A former employé is being sought.

5 N. Y. SOCIALISTS PLAN OFFENSIVE TO REGAIN SEATS

New York, April 3.—[Special.]—The "special committee of eight" in charge of the fight of the five ousted Socialist assemblymen, formulated three plans of action at a meeting this afternoon at the Rand School of Social Science.

The first contemplates a demand on Governor Smith, that he call a special election to fill the vacancies in the five assembly districts. Lawyers for the Socialists argue that although the vote by which the members were expelled was not taken until the calendar day of April 1, the session was continuous from March 31, and that therefore the expulsion occurred on the "legislative day" of March 31.

The second plan contemplates the institution of suits by the ousted assemblymen to force the payment of their salaries, to get a ruling that they were members at least until the vote on expulsion wa staken.

The third plan is to bring a suit in the Supreme court of the United States attacking the validity of some law passed by the present session. This suit will be based on that provision in the federal constitution which guarantees to each state "a republican form of government."

Hoover Name Off Primary Ticket in Pennsylvania

Philadelphia, Pa., April 3.—The Hoover Republican committee of Pennsylvania announced tonight that, "in deference to Mr. Hoover's general policy, the name of Herbert Hoover will not be put upon the ballot at the primary election in Pennsylvania."

The Spring, trà la

By Anita Allison

Spring is here. The early bird has returned to the suburban lawn and the beach parasol to the department store window.

Soon the mere male will discard the black derby for the perennial straw, and brides-to-be-in-June will nervously take inventory of cedar chests now fragrantly prophetic of orange blossoms and honeymoons.

Even those of us who are not agog with the ecstacies of impending matrimony are eagerly poring over railroad folders and hotel guide books.

The debutante, not long returned from southern seas, now turns her gaze toward Banff and Broadmoor.

The Goddess of the Typewriter, from her window in the skyscraper looks down upon the Loop and wonders whether she should take the last two weeks in June or the first half of July.

But the true feminine instinct impels both the stenographer who belongs to a Vacation Savings Club and the debutante who says, "charge these to father, please." One and all are invading department store and shop in quest of Futurist.

And after all, I started to tell you about these dainty underthings, when a stray sunbeam actually filtered through the Chicago smoke and sent my thoughts vacationing.

I've never seen a garment which has so quickly entrenched itself in the feminine heart. Everybody seems to be wearing Futurist.

Even if you have "always intended to, but never tried them," you will surely want a goodly supply for your vacation wardrobe.

Not only are they beautiful garments, flawlessly made, but they fit so perfectly and give absolute comfort and freedom to the body.

If you play golf or tennis, there is nothing to compare with Futurist for sport wear. For dancing they are simply indispensable.

Make no mistake, you will be able to secure Futurist in just the materials you desire. It comes in sheerest nainsooks, voiles, marquisettes, batistes and dreamy silks. Wear Futurist while on your vacation and you'll never think of going back to the other kind.

All the better stores and shops sell these garments, but if you have the slightest difficulty finding them, drop me a line at 310 West Erie Street, Chicago.

MONDAY ONLY

LITSINGER AIDS ALD. WALKER IN 21ST WARD ROW

Final Elections to Be Held in Nine Districts.

Edward R. Litsinger, leader of the Deneen Republican group in the Twenty-first ward, last night came out strongly for the reëlection of Ald. Earl J. Walker, at Tuesday's supplementary election. Competent North Side political judges say that this closes the breach, temporarily at least, between the split opposition to the City Hall, and substantially assures victory to Ald. Walker over Charles J. Agnew, the City Hall candidate.

The Twenty-first easily holds the spotlight in Tuesday's aldermanic elections. Supplementary elections will be held in nine wards, necessary because no candidate received a majority of all of the votes at the preliminary elections in February. In the Eleventh ward, the preliminary election is to be held for a successor to the late Alderman Edward F. Cullerton. Two candidates each are running in the nine wards. There are nine candidates for the Cullerton seat.

Twenty-first Storm Center.

Piled up allegations of fraudulent registration, a grand jury investigation, the striking off of more than 2,000 names from the registry books in the Twenty-first, have brought interest in Tuesday's election there to fever heat.

The aldermanic election is a showdown between Ald. Walker and Charles J. Agnew. Ald. Walker is ending his second term in the council, with an enviable record. He is a valuable member of the finance committee and has done much for the lake shore improvement plan, the bathing beach system and the cleaning and paving of alleys in his ward. He is especially marked for slaughter by the city hall faction. His city hall opponent is Charles J. Agnew, a former Democrat, was formerly a member of the police department and secretary to the superintendent of police and is now an electrical contractor.

Result of Primary.

In the preliminary election, the Litsinger-Deneen organization had a candidate, William C. Scherwat. Agnew polled a total of 4,477 votes; Ald. Walker ran second with 3,880, and Scherwat was third with 1,386. Walker and Scherwat between them had 5,266. On these figures it would appear that the Litsinger contingent holds the balance of power, and this is believed to be the case. The aldermanic contest is hopelessly involved, however, with the fight for ward committeeman. James F. Burns is the candidate of the Brundage or regular organization that also supports Ald. Walker. Mr. Litsinger is a candidate himself. The city hall candidate is Charles A. Peace. For national convention delegates, the Brundage organization candidates are George F. Porter and William Wrigley. The city hall candidates are Eugene S. Pike, former city controller, and Michael J. Faherty, president of the board of local improvements. All four are pledged to vote for Lowden for president.

Others Wards to Elect.

Supplementary aldermanic elections in addition to the Twenty-first will be held in the Fifth, Eighth, Ninth, Twelfth, Twenty-second, Twenty-fourth, Twenty-sixth, and Twenty-seventh wards.

In the Fifth the fight is between Ald. Robert J. Mulcahy and Thomas A. Doyle, former alderman and now member of the house of representatives at Springfield. Feeling is said to be running high with a close finish in sight. The M. V. L. indorses Doyle on his previous city council record.

The Eighth ward contest is between Ald. Martin S. Furman and Martin A. Green. Furman got 4,457 votes to 2,160 for Green in the preliminary bout, with a field of five starters. Green is a lawyer and former assistant state's attorney who has been getting heavy support from organized labor. The M. V. L. made no choice between the two candidates.

Govier Seen As Victor.

The issue in the Ninth is whether Ald. Sheldon W. Govier, with an excellent council record, can defeat Charles V. Johnson, an avowed Socialist and former Socialist member of the council. Ald. Govier's February lead over Johnson was 1,465 votes and he is expected to win Tuesday. Ald. Govier is indorsed by the M. V. L.

In the Twelfth ward Ald. Joseph I. Novak had a hard time finishing inside the money with a starting list of twelve candidates. Joseph Cepak, who was a Democratic candidate for assessor in 1916, is his competitor Tuesday. The M. V. L. indorses Ald. Novak on a record of five terms in the council.

Ald. John H. Bauler in the Twenty-second has been forced into a hot finish by Leo C. Klein, a former saloonkeeper. Factional politics and local ward conditions make this a doubtful result. The M. V. L. has indorsed Bauler.

There is a scrap in the Twenty-fourth between Ald. John Haderlein and Joseph A. Weber, both Democrats. Haderlein had serious opposition in the preliminary election. Weber, a former legislator, has made a thorough canvass. The M. V. L. has indorsed Weber.

In the Twenty-sixth, Ald. George Pretzel faces a combination made against him by the Democratic organization in the ward and the city hall forces for Thomas R. Caspers, a former deputy county clerk. Ald. Pretzel is strongly indorsed by the M. V. L., but it is realized that the contest will be close.

Fight in Twenty-Seventh.

In the Twenty-seventh ward, Newton Jenkins, who fought before Verdun both with the French and the United States armies was the leading candidates in the February voting. He didn't get a clear majority because of the lengthy field of candidates. His opponent Tuesday is Christ Jensen, who is backed substantially by the Democratic organization in the ward. Jenkins is understood to have the support of all three of the Republican factions and carries the indorsement of the M. V. L.

For the Cullerton vacancy in the Eleventh ward, Ald. Herman Krumdick is believed to be the leading candidate. He was not a candidate for reëlection to his own seat, but after Ald. Cullerton's death became a candidate for that place. He has the indorsement of the M. V. L. as against these candidates: John C. Kruse, Dennis A. Horan, Joseph J. Belinski, Michael J. Brown, William J. Riordan, Julian J. Sykes, Michael Lewandowski, and William P. Hayes. If no candidate gets a majority of the votes Tuesday a supplementary election will be required four weeks hence.

LITSINGER'S PLEA FOR ALD. WALKER

Edward R. Litsinger issued a statement last night, advocating the reëlection of Ald. Earl J. Walker in the Twenty-first ward at the supplementary aldermanic election Tuesday. It follows:

"I desire to call the attention of the voters of the Twenty-first ward to the aldermanic situation. Ald. Earl J. Walker is a candidate for reëlection. Mr. Walker has served in the council and has been an energetic, straightforward representative. He is supported by the Brundage faction. Opposed to him is Charles J. Agnew, supported by the Thompson-Lundin city hall machine.

"It is to be deplored that all of the forces in the ward should not have united in support of Ald. Walker. I proposed different forms of compromise whereby the regular organization and the Twenty-first Ward Greater Republican club could have united on a harmony arrangement to make a solid fighting front against the city hall machine. All my offers were rejected. Therefore the elements opposed to the city hall machine remained divided.

"However, there is a greater issue at stake in the Twenty-first ward than that of factional politics or the personnel of the candidates for alderman. The issue is decency against gambling, vice, corruption, and privilege.

"The election of Agnew means that the city hall would fasten its fangs on the political and civic control of the ward. It would mean that floaters, repeaters, stingers, and habitués of the Twenty-first ward would join in a moral debauch from which the ward would never recover. This shameful prospect must be throttled. It is up to the decent citizens of the ward to form themselves into a vigilance committee and not only to stop but to drive this vicious element from the ward. The city hall would not be able to make a respectable showing were it not for its gathering in of the undesirable Democrats. In view of this threatened peril no man can remain silent.

"I am a candidate for Republican committeeman of the Twenty-first ward. Although my very prospects may be jeopardized by this announcement, nevertheless, I would be a slacker in the cause of decent government if I did not raise my voice in violent protest against the Thompson-Lundin faction stealing the control of this ward. While our organization has taken no formal action, I am asking every individual member thereof and every decent citizen of the ward, whether Democrat or Republican, man or woman, to support and vote for and help elect Ald. Walker and thereby drive this threatened menace from the bounds of the Twenty-first ward."

ELECTION BOARD GETS PROOFS OF BOND BALLOTS

Issuance of $34,500,000 Is Proposed.

Printers' proofs of the four bond propositions, which will be on the ballot April 13, were received by the board of election commissioners yesteray. The proposals call for the expenditure of $34,500,000, as follows:

For extension and rehabilitation of the street lighting system and the construction of warehouses and other buildings necessary therefore—$15,000,000.

For new bridges—$9,500,000.

For the construction of playgrounds, parks, natatoriums, and bathing beaches and purchase of their sites—$5,000,000.

For construction of a municipal convention hall and the purchase of its site—$5,000,000.

The four proposals had a hard fight before they got the approval of the finance committee and of the city council. In both bodies aldermen declared the present or the near future is not the time to embark on extensive improvements.

Force Playground Issue.

West side aldermen, seeing that the finance committee was intent on putting the $15,000,000 for new lights on the ballot, asserted that they would oppose it in the council unless some proposition for more playgrounds went along with it. They had their way.

The west siders also were responsible for the bridge bond proposal, which will do no more than complete the 1911 and 1915 bridge building programs. Bond issues in those years were found too small, owing to the rising costs of material and labor, to build or complete the construction of twelve bridges.

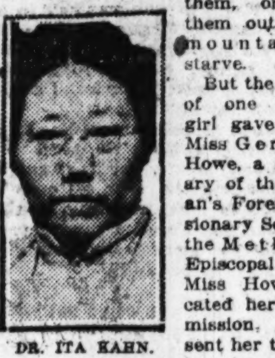
These bridges and their estimated costs are One Hundredth street, $900,000; South California avenue (to complete approaches), $30,000; Clark street, $900,000; Crawford avenue, $500,000; Fuller street, $850,000; La Salle street, $1,000,000; One Hundred and Sixth street, $900,000; Polk street, $950,000; Adams street, $850,000; One Hundred and Thirty-fourth street, $100,000; Taylor street, $900,000; Van Buren street, $950,000; removal of Rush street bridge, $150,000, and construction of temporary bridges, $250,000.

Maypole Champions Bill.

Ald. George Maypole, backed by the Association of Commerce, made the fight before the finance committee for the convention hall proposal. No site has been selected, but the tentative plans call for a hall which will be a memorial to Chicago's soldiers, sailors, and marines.

Ald. Ross Woodhull stood sponsor for the light bonds and tentative plans for the use of the $15,000,000 have already been drawn up by Commissioner of Gas and Electricity William G. Keith.

CHINESE DOCTOR, MISSION PROTEGE, TO SPEAK HERE



DR. ITA KAHN.

The Chinese don't like girl babies. They used to throw them away, drown them, or leave them out in the mountains to starve.

But the parents of one Chinese girl gave her to Miss Gertrude Howe, a missionary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal church. Miss Howe educated her in the mission school, sent her to America to complete her schooling, and in 1896 the girl was graduated from the medical department of the University of Michigan. She now is in charge of the government hospital in Tien Tsin.

She is Dr. Ita Kahn, who will address the quarterly meeting of the northwestern branch of the missionary society at St. James Methodist Episcopal church Thursday afternoon.

WORK TO START THIS WEEK ON COUNTY ROADS

Work on Cook county roads begins this week under the $5,000,000 bond issue, although probably only about fifty miles will be built this year. It was intended at first to build about seventy miles, but President Peter Reinberg of the board of county commissioners has held back to await a reduction of price in asphalt and concrete. In this he has the support of Commissioner Frank J. Wilson, chairman of the roads and bridges committee of the county board.

President Reinberg has signed $1,000,000 of the bond issue and these bonds have been subscribed at a fraction less than par value, as also have the bonds of the county for the $1,000,000 juvenile home to be built at Ogden avenue and Roosevelt road. Plans for the institution are under way.

Following conferences with dealers in materials, the county's expectation is that a saving of from $10,000 to $12,000 a mile will be effected under figures tendered to the state highways commission at Springfield.

Ring Leads to Charge of Murder Against Husband

Jack Beyda, 31 years old, of 1034 West Roosevelt road was booked early yesterday for the murder of his wife, Mrs. Frances Beyda, who was found apparently choked to death in her home a few days ago. The recovery of a ring which Mrs. Beyda had worn led to the arrest of the husband. The ring had been pawned by him, it is said, a day after the crime.

FAINTS; IS ASPHYXIATED.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 3.—Louisa Hamm, 62, wife of Henry Hamm, head of a produce company here, was found dead of asphyxiation in her home tonight. Relatives believe she fainted as she was lighting the kitchen stove and was stunned by the fall to the floor.

WOMAN YIELDS HER JEWELS AT LANDIS' DEMAND

Marcuse Man's Wife Hands Them Over.

to make you think that I suspect you of having an ulterior motive?"

"I just thought of the bracelet—I didn't think of the chain."

Disgust was shown plainly on the judge's face as he turned to the wife.

"Mrs. Morris," he said, 'I want your husband to tell you that he purchased these things with money that belonged to other people.

"Yes, that's true," replied Morris, his voice bespeaking eagerness to please the offended judge.

Offers Her Jewels.

"Then I think they ought to go back to them," murmured the wife.

"That's the way you feel about it?"

She silently nodded her head.

The judge held out his hand and the jewel case and its contents were placed in it.

Then came other questions revealing bank accounts containing $1,900. Mrs. Morris was not so willing to give them up. The judge talked to her, however, and after hesitating she said she was willing to surrender them.

The judge then issued a restraining order against the banks in which the money was placed, forbidding the transfer of the money until it was turned over early this week.

Lawyer Is Rebuked.

The hearing before Judge Landis assumed a lively tone as soon as it opened. Clement and George Studebaker of South Bend, who were scheduled to appear and explain their share in the Hecht-Finn pool, failed to appear and Marcuse was accordingly called as the first witness.

"Mr. Marcus—ee—," began Attorney Louis Jacobson, counsel for a number of creditors.

"How do you pronounce that name?" interrupted Judge Landis, turning to the witness.

"Marcuse," he replied.

"See that you call him that hereafter. That extra syllable seems to me to be just a waste of energy."

"Did you not know that on June 30, 1917, the day you drew a check for $60,000 on the Central Trust company to pay your share in the Hecht-Finn trust, that you didn't have enough money in the bank to cover it?" was the opening salvo.

"I did—I had $46,000 in the bank—," faltered Marcuse.

"Then why did you testify before Referee Wean that you only had $21,000 in the bank that day?" was the next broadside.

Marcuse hesitated, then launched into an involved explanation of the original financing of the firm, in which he mentioned the activities of Hecht, Finn, the Studebakers, Hoffman, Brown and Morris in the firm. Judge Landis broke into the recital.

"What do you know about Account No. 10?" he asked. "Was it your own account?"

"It was."

"Who handled it?"

"I did."

"Did Mr. Morris know about it?"

"Yes."

"Tell me, Mr. Marcuse, do your books show any transactions by any one not a customer of the house—bearing in mind that you are not a customer?"

"No—they do not."

Attorney Louis Jacobson produced an audit made of the Marcuse books.

"Isn't it a fact, Mr. Marcuse, that you received from a customer an order to purchase 1,200 shares of Baldwin Locomotive stock, and that you have not received orders to sell this stock?" he asked.

"I Don't Know."

"It may be—I don't know."

"Isn't it a fact, Mr. Marcuse, that this stock was sold through account No. 10, and is not on hand at the present time?"

"I don't know."

"Could it be that you had this stock on hand and it was sold without your knowledge?"

"I don't know."

"Isn't it a fact that this stock was given to your New York correspondents, Pynchon & Co., and Miller & Co., for sale?"

"I don't know. It may have been sold to protect other accounts."

"Then isn't it a fact that those 'other accounts' you speak of were not customers' accounts, but protection for Marcuse & Co. to enable them to keep afloat?"

"I don't know."

"By the way," said Judge Landis, leaning over his desk and facing the witness, "were you buying or selling Betty A or Betty B (Bethlehem Steel) on your own account?"

"I don't remember."

"Well, that's just one of the things that has been brought to my attention. I have received hundreds of letters regarding stocks and bonds which you have handled and of which there are apparently no record at the present time. I can't go into them all today, however, and I must ask the attorneys to confine their discussion to generalities."

Admits Use of Mails.

"Did you use the United States mails in sending out margin calls?" was the next question, from the judge.

"Yes; but I have never sold any stock to customers through the mails."

"Did you know of the company's insolvency on Jan. 1, 1920?"

"Do I have to answer that question?" said Marcuse, appealing to Judge Landis.

He was then instructed as to his constitutional right to refuse to answer any question on the ground that it might incriminate him.

"Do you fear that you might be incriminated if you answered this question?" the jurist then asked.

"No—o!"

"Then, what's the answer?"

"I don't know."

Further questioning developed that, while the company was alleged to be insolvent as far back as Oct. 1, 1917, the witness said he had no knowledge of it. He testified that he had received money and securities intended to close or protect margins, and that he had deposited that money or securities as collateral in New York and other banks, and that he had permission to use it as collateral.

Tells of Gifts.

Further questioning developed that Marcuse had purchased 500 shares of Indian Packing company stock from Miller & Co. of New York for $12.50 a share, and that the stock had risen to $50 a share, making a profit of $18,650.

"What became of that stock?" he was asked.

"Why, it was given to our employés as a bonus?"

"To whom was it given?"

"Why, the profit from 100 shares was given to my partner, Morris; another 100 to our manager, Engstrom; another 100 distributed among the bookkeepers."

"That's 300. How about the other 200?" asked Judge Landis.

"Why, 100 went to Mr. Hecht and the other 100 to myself."

"Why did you give the profit for a hundred shares to Mr. Hecht?"

"Well, he was in the office, so I just gave it to him."

"Are you in the habit of handing out money to people who came in the office, or was it just because Hecht was a partner and you were feeling good that day?"

"I guess it was because I was feeling good."

"And all the time you were making these gifts you knew you were head over heels in debt, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"Now about that 300 shares of Bethlehem Motors stock that Mrs. Fannie Spechter bought from you?"

"Why, I don't remember that deal. I think Mr. Morris handled that."

"Morris! Bring him in."

Morris on Stand.

Lew H. Morris took the stand.

"Mr. Morris, how much did you make last year?"

"About $17,000, possibly."

"Possibly? Where do you get that word?" Judge Landis interrogated. "Marshal, take this man to "53" until he can make up his mind to answer my question. A five minutes recess."

When court reconvened Morris was called to the stand.

"Are you interested in "The Menace of the Moron," that picture Jack Lait wrote?"

"Yes."

"You helped finance it, didn't you?"

"I had a deal on for 7 500 shares of stock, I believe."

Judge Landis: "Do you think that if you tell me something untrue, that 'I believe' will help to mitigate the perjury?"

"The stock was valueless, in my opinion."

"Then why did you want to buy it?"

Morris was not clear as to that.

Might Incriminate Himself.

"How long, Mr. Morris, has the Marcuse firm been insolvent?" the court then asked.

"I refuse to answer, for fear I might incriminate myself."

"Were you consulted regarding sales of stock under account No. 10?"

"I refuse to answer, for fear I might incriminate myself."

"Do you in good faith say that if you answed that question your answer will tend to incriminate yourself? Think that over carefully."

"No."

"Did you think you could get away with anything like that in this courtroom? Where did you get that idea—that you could hide behind your constitutional rights just because a question might embarrass you? Did you know of the opening of account No. 10?"

"I was not consulted."

Reticent in His Replies.

"You accepted customers' money knowing that it was wrong?"

No answer.

"Mr. Witness, how old are you?"

"Thirty-four."

"How long do you have to take to consider whether you can answer this question?"

"I previously stated it was wrong."

"With this fake account No. 10 and all other things on Dec. 7 of last year did you think the firm was solvent?"

"I did not know the status of the firm."

"Marshal—Take this man back to a warm and comfortable place until I send for him. I want him to think over whether or not he wants to answer my questions."

Manager on Stand.

Emil O. Engstrom, manager and chief clerk of the Marcuse firm, was called to the stand.

He testified to the various steps through which a stock order passed until it was recorded on the ledgers.

"Did Mr. Morris know of the workings of account No. 10?" he was asked.

"Certainly, Mr. Morris knew. My impression was that he was consulted about it."

"When did you first suspect that the Marcuse firm was headed for the shoals?"

"Early in 1918."

"Morris knew of it then?"

"Yes.'

Judge Landis: "Marshal, bring Mr. Morris back." Morris entered the courtroom.

"Mr. Morris, shake hands with Mr. Engstrom."

"I know him," Morris replied.

Admits Insolvency.

"Well, Morris, I again ask you the question if at any time in 1918 or 1919 the firm was insolvent? Do you know Engstrom?"

"Yes."

"Is he an honest man?"

"Yes."

"Then I again ask you that question?"

"Yes, there was."

"There wasn't any doubt about it, was there?"

"Yes—no, sir."

"It was insolvent on Jan. 1, 1920?"

"Yes, sir."

"And on Dec. 14, 1919?"

"Yes, sir."

"No doubt about it?"

"No."

"The blow-up had been inevitable for months, hadn't it?"

"Yes."

Morris then admitted receiving money after he knew the concern was insolvent, the sale of stocks given as security by customers, the use of the mails and bucket shopping. Then came the story of the jewels given to Mrs. Morris and the result.

While the court was waiting for Mrs. Morris, Engstrom again took the stand, and under questioning admitted that bucket shopping tactics had been part of the general daily practice of the firm.

In Lieu of a Wage Increase.

Arnold Hohenberg, formerly an employé of the Von Frantzius brokerage house and later with Marcuse, testified that he owed the firm $30,000 on an open account which Marcuse had granted him when he asked for a wage increase.

Isadore Feigel, 1939 West Division street, was called. He testified to signing the original petition asking involuntary bankruptcy proceedings, that he had been asked to sign the petition by Morris, and that he did not read it or know what was in it. John Janka, 4951 Sheridan road, another signer, testified likewise.

At the end of the hearing Marcuse and Morris were released in the custody of their counsel until the next hearing, scheduled for April 6.

Some fifty creditors of Von Frantzius & Co., predecessors of Marcuse, held an executive meeting in the Hotel Sherman yesterday afternoon, and after discusisng their claims and standing, appointed a committee to engage counsel and otherwise look after their interests generally.

HICKSON HERE TO CONDUCT SECOND HEALING MISSION

J. M. HICKSON.

"Healer Hickson" has returned to Chicago and will conduct his healing mission at various Episcopal churches this week. His whereabouts could not be discovered yesterday.

He will be at the Church of the Redeemer, Blackstone avenue and Fifty-sixth street, tomorrow from 10 to 12; at St. Chrysostom's church, 1424 North Dearborn street, on Tuesday morning, and at St. Peter's church, Broadway and Belmont avenue, on Wednesday and Thursday mornings. It was at the latter church that he conducted his first mission in Chicago several months ago.

James Moore Hickson is an English layman who has been in this country since last October conducting healing missions by the laying on of hands.

When he was last in Chicago a protest was made against his practices and teachings and those of the two Chicago clergymen who coöperated with him.

WIDOW TO BURY HEAD OF ORDER OF THE MAGI

Olney Hoffman Richmond, grand master of the Order of the Magi, will be buried tomorrow in the grave prepared by his widow, Mrs. Verona Richmond of 509 South Marshfield avenue.

Mrs. Richmond was of the opinion that there was "something suspicious" about her husband's death and asked the coroner for a post-mortem examination. The coroner stopped the funeral, which was to be held by the Magi under the leadership of Miss Arline Richmond, the grand master's adopted daughter.

But when the post mortem showed that death was the result of natural causes the widow's fears were quieted. A death certificate was issued. The coroner decided not to hold an inquest; and Mrs. Richmond had the body taken to the undertaking rooms of Edward Shute, 743 North Clark street.

The widow confronted Miss Goethe in the coroner's office yesterday.

"For eight years I have been deprived of my husband through this woman," she said. "When I learned of my husband's death I tried to get possession of his body, but I was once more restrained. Now that I have the body and know how my husband died I am willing to have everything dropped."

TYRO MOTORIST IN CRASH, WOMAN PIONEER KILLED

Auto Victim a Resident of City 81 Years.

Mrs. Mary Jane Scranton, 89 years old, who came to Chicago in 1839 in a "prairie schooner," was fatally injured yesterday when an automobile driven by a 17 year old boy of four days' motoring experience, collided with another car at Sixty-eighth street and Stony Island avenue.

MRS. ALFRED L. SCRANTON.
[Gibson & Fowler Photo.]

The boy is Milton Chesler, 1542 East Sixty-seventh place, son of Charles Chesler, a tailor. The machine with which his auto collided was driven by Mrs. Henry M. Mahin, whose husband is head of the Mahin Shipping and Storage company, 129 West Sixty-third street.

Mrs. Scranton, who resided at 6853 Harper avenue, was crossing the avenue with her daughter, Miss Annie L. Scranton. Mrs. Mahin saw them and slowed down.

"I was going north," said Mrs. Mahin. "A car came from the east and crashed into the front of my automobile, turning it around so that it struck Mrs. Scranton. The boy didn't stop his car at all. I put Mrs. Scranton into my auto and took her to the Illinois Central hospital. But it was no use."

Milton was found in his father's shop. He admitted he had driven a car for the first time only four days ago and that he had been in the accident, but said he had stopped and helped Mrs. Mahin put the victim into her car. Then, he said, he became frightened and hurried away. Neither he nor Mrs. Mahin was arrested.

Remembered Fort Dearborn.

Mrs. Scranton was one of that ever diminishing little group of Chicagoans whose memories go back to the days of old Fort Dearborn. As a little girl, Mary Jane Lamb, she came to Chicago with her parents from Ohio in a prairie schooner. The same year, 1839, Alfred L. Scranton, whom she afterwards married, arrived here on a lake boat. Mrs. Scranton's first home was at Michigan avenue and Randolph street. Mr. Scranton died in 1903.

She remembered when some of Chicago's best paved streets had signs posted, "No bottom here," and lived to see five successive court houses built on the same square. Besides the daughter with whom she resided, she is survived by three other daughters, Mrs. John L. Atwater of Chicago; Mrs. Ada S. Jones of Minneapolis, and Mrs. George M. Huss of Washington, D. C., and by one son, Alfred Herbert Scranton of Chicago.

Girl 9 is Killed.

Helen Gurka, 9 years old, 1830 West Austin avenue, was killed instantly late yesterday when she was struck and crushed beneath the wheels of an automobile owned and driven by Edward J. Novak, 439 South Paulina street, as she attempted to cross North Lincoln street at West Grand avenue.

"She walked directly in front of my car," Novak told the West Chicago avenue police, who are holding him for the coroner's inquest.

Boy Cyclist Hurt.

There was $40,000 in small bills and change in the automobile driven by Lewis Kuhn. Henry Paschen of Paschen Brothers, contractors, and two policemen were with the driver. At Montrose avenue and Broadway the car struck and seriously injured Donald Durnell, 11 years old, 4241 Broadway, who was riding a bicycle. The auto took the boy to the Lakeview hospital. Paschen said he'd stay until the operation was finished. He was asked "how about the money." The money was to pay employés. "Never mind the money," he said. "The boy comes first."

PALMER ORDERS COURT WAR ON COAL PROFITEERS

Washington, D. C., April 3.—[Special.]—With coal prices already soaring as a result of final settlement of the coal strike, Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer has telegraphed to District Attorney Clyne in Chicago and those in other cities to be on the lookout for coal profiteers.

"Now that the government regulations of prices has been discontinued," said the attorney general. "There are indications of an excessive increase in the price of bituminous coal. Our total annual production is approximately 500,000,000 tons.

"It is estimated that the total increase in wages will be approximately $200,000,000 per annum. If this entire amount is added by the operators to the price, it would only make an increase of 40 cents a ton.

Profiteering on Storm Sufferers Is Charged

The contractors' division of the Evanston Commercial association began yesterday an investigation of charges that certain contractors were "profiteering" at the expense of tornado victims in Evanston and Wilmette. That is, the contractors were accused of charging more than the union scale for labor. One instance, it is said, is that of E. A. Scowly, 2627 Virginia terrace, who has been paying 25 cents an hour above the scale to a Chicago firm.

Five More Coal Operators Give Bond of $10,000

Francis S. Peabody and five other coal operators in Chicago, who were indicted last week by a federal grand jury in Indianapolis, appeared yesterday before United States Commissioner Lewis F. Mason and were released in bonds of $10,000 each. This makes a total of ten of the fifteen indicted coal dealers that have surrendered to the federal authorities here.

FIVE YEAR FIGHT FOR ESTATE LOST BY MRS. MATTERS

The $250,000 estate of Fred Matters, Arcola, Ill., theater owner, the subject of a sensational hearing in the Probate Court in 1915, when Mrs. Anna Dollie Ledgewood Matters, the widow, sought unsuccessfully to obtain two-thirds of the estate with the production of an alleged posthumous heir, was closed quietly yesterday.

MRS. DOLLIE MATTERS.

Judge John H. Williams, in the Probate court, approved the final account of the administrator and directed the distribution of the personal property among the heirs.

Collateral heirs, successfully opposed the claim of Mrs. Matters for $30,000 in addition to what she had received, the court ruling that she is entitled to only $3,900 additional.

PARIS, April 3.—[Havas.]—German ships seized by Brazil will be taken over by a syndicate of French ship owners on payment of $26,000,000, according to the Journal, which says the matter has been definitely settled.

DESOLATION OF STORM LINGERS; MANY HOMELESS

Open New Schoolhouse; 30 Families Pile In.

FOR TORNADO VICTIMS

The Tribune will accept contributions offered for the relief of the hundreds of destitute and homeless victims of Sunday's storm. All contributions, checks, or currency should be sent care of The Cashier, The Chicago Tribune.

In the path of the tornado there is still desolation, according to Ald. Edward R. Armitage, chairman of the relief committee.

Despite the committee's swift work in throwing together portable schoolhouses for shelter, many victims have not yet been cared for.

Money is being raised rapidly to finance rehabilitation. In the devastated area those who escaped with their lives are working to aid the victims and neighboring towns and villages are rapidly subscribing money. Oak Park has pledged $10,000; Oak Forest, $1,500; Melrose Park and Hillside, $1,400.

Open Another School.

Another portable schoolhouse was thrown open yesterday to victims and was filled at once with thirty families.

Numerous agencies are adding daily to the city's fund for the relief of stricken families.

An attempt to coördinate the activities of the relief agencies was made by Ald. Armitage in a trip to Melrose Park and the other towns where funds are being collected.

A movement was started in Irving Park to obtain the help of suburban moving picture theaters. The theaters will be asked to donate a day's receipts.

Thanks the Soldiers.

Maj. C. J. Wolf of Melrose Park sent a letter to Col. James E. Stuart of the 11th infantry, Illinois reserve militia, congratulating the men of the command upon their efficiency and thanking them for their assistance in the emergency relief of the suburb after the tornado swept through it.

The relief committee wishes to acknowledge receipt of the following donations: Oscar Adler, $5; Anna M. Skene, $5, and Theodore Rocek, $10.

BUDGET FOR U. S. TO STOP WASTE, CHAOS AND FOLLY

McCormick Will Submit Many Reforms in Bill.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., April 3.—[Special.]—Exposition of the retention by the administration of the army of war workers on the pay roll sixteen months after the end of the war, of the extravagance of the administration in asking larger appropriations for next year than for this year, and of the complete lack of coördination of the money demands of the departments has accentuated the need of a scientific budget system.

Senator McCormick of Illinois, it was learned today, is preparing to submit to the senate shortly the recommendations on budget legislation framed by the special committee of which he is chairman. A revised draft of the proposed bill has been tentatively completed, subject to the action of the committee, which will be called together within a few days for a final meeting before the submission of its report.

Early Action Seen.

Early action on budget legislation is anticipated in the senate. The house passed the Good bill several months ago, and the measure reported to the senate will be in the form of amendment to the house measure.

The revised bill now awaiting the approval of the senate budget committee provides for the creation in the treasury department of the budget bureau. The commissioner and two assistant commissioners of the budget bureau are to be appointed by the president and confirmed by the senate. The commissioner shall receive an annual salary of $10,000, and the assistant commissioners $7,500 each.

It is provided that the head of each department shall submit budget estimates to the commissioner of the budget on or before Oct. 1 of each year for the ensuing fiscal year. In a case where the head of the department includes estimates and items in excess of the amount previously provided for he shall set forth in detail the reasons for such increase.

Secretary Can Revise.

The secretary of the treasury shall have authority to revise, consolidate, unify, coördinate, reduce, or otherwise change any item or items of the budget estimates submitted by the departments.

It shall be the duty of the commissioner of the budget in the period prior to the submission of the budget estimates to make a detailed study of the organization, activities, and methods of business for the purpose of determining the changes which, in his opinion, should be made in the existing scheme of operations, or in the appropriation of money. The results of these inquiries, together with recommendations of the commissioner of the budget, are to be submitted to the secretary of the treasury.

The secretary of the treasury on or before Nov. 15 of each year shall submit to the president the budget which shall contain a statement in summary and in detail of the budget estimates for the ensuing fiscal year as devised by him.

To Congress in December.

The president shall have authority to revise budget estimates submitted to him by the secretary of the treasury except those of the library of congress, the Supreme court of the United States, and the legislative branch of the government, by the increase, reduction, or elimination of any item therein contained or by the addition of new items.

The president is authorized to submit the completed budget to congress on or before Dec. 10 of each year.

The completed budget shall include:

"(a) Balanced statements of current treasury resources and obligations, setting forth in detail the condition of the treasury at the end of the last completed fiscal year or series of years, the estimated condition of the treasury at the end of the year in progress and the estimated condition of the treasury at the end of the year to be financed, if the financial proposals contained in the budget are adopted.

"(b) Statements setting forth in detail all essential facts regarding the bonded and other indebtedness of the government.

"(c) Statements setting forth in detail the amounts of appropriations, whether annual, permanent, or otherwise, including balances of appropriations for prior fiscal years, available for expenditures during the year in progress.

"(d) Statements setting forth in detail the revenues of the government accruing or actually paid into the treasury during the last completed fiscal year or series of years, the estimated revenues accruing or to be paid into the treasury during the year in progress, and the anticipated revenues to accrue or to be paid into the treasury during the year to be financed, if the revenue proposals contained in the budget are adopted.

Estimate of Expenditures.

"(e) Statements setting forth the expenditures of the government during the last completed fiscal year or series of years, the estimated expenditures during the year in progress and the expenditures as represented by the budget estimates as revised and approved by him, which in the opinion of the president should be authorized for the year to be financed.

"(f) Such other financial statements as data as in the opinion of the president are necessary or desirable in order to make known in all practicable detail and fullness the financial condition, operations, and estimated future revenues and expenditures of the government."

SMYTH CROOKS, CITY'S PIONEER SHOE MAN, DIES AT AGE OF 70

Chicago lost its pioneer retail shoe merchant yesterday in the death of Smyth Crooks, who came to Chicago in 1868 and opened a store at 1203 North Clark street. He was 70 years old and was born on a farm near Crookstown, Ireland. He left there when he was 6 years old, with his mother, who first settled at Kingston, Canada.

SMYTH CROOKS.

Mr. Crooks' store was destroyed in the Chicago fire, but he rebuilt at the same location. He once enjoyed the distinction of knowing everybody of prominence in the city. He was a leader in many Masonic bodies. He is survived by four daughters, five sons, and sixtene grandchildren.

The funeral will be held at Oriental consistory, Walton place and Dearborn street, Tuesday afternoon, under the auspices of Apollo commandery No. 1, Knights Templar, of which he was past commander. Burial will be at Rosehill.

Homer N. Bartlett, Noted Organist-Composer, Dies

IN MEMORIAM.

BRABAND—Mary Braband. Passed away, April 4, 1919.
How we love and miss you, mother,
Tongues or pen cannot impart,
But we know you sought your loved one
With a tender, breaking heart.
You have gone to our dear father,
What a glorious meeting there,
And when we shall join you two
It will be a grand Amen.
FROM YOUR DEAR CHILDREN AND GRANCHILDREN.

OBITUARY.

W. H. LAKE DIES; BROKER, HEADED LORIMER QUIZ

William H. Lake, a member of the stock and grain house of A. O. Slaughter & Co, and a director of the Board of Trade, who was known in all the grain markets of the country, died Friday night at his home, 1422 North State parkway, of double pneumonia.

W. H. LAKE.

He recently returned from a month's stay in Florida, but took cold and rapidly grew worse.

Mr. Lake was born in East Division street. He was foreman of the special Cook county grand jury that investigated the old Lorimer senatorial bribery charges. He is survived by his widow, Mary Grace Lake; two daughters, Mrs. Robert Middlekauff and Mary June, a son, William West Lake, and by his mother, Mrs. Julia Lake.

The funeral services will be held at 3:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Graceland chapel.

E. M. Paulding Falls Dead While Dressing

E. M. Paulding, 50 years old, 5057 Blackstone avenue, died suddenly at his home yesterday. Chronic Bright's disease is believed to have caused his death. Mr. Paulding had been in Fort Wayne attending a convention and became ill while there. He was taken to a hospital there, where he remained for three days. He returned Friday night apparently in good health. As he was dressing yesterday morning he fell dead.

CHANDLER SIX

The Most Closely Priced Fine Car

We Let You Know What The Chandler Price Is

THE Chandler Motor Car Company, ever since the first Chandler Car was built seven years ago, has, in every advertisement issued to newspapers and magazines and all other forms of publications, stated the list price of the Chandler Car.

It states it now and will continue to do so. There is good reason for this and many thousands of motor car owners know it. This is the reason—The Chandler Six is the most closely priced fine car in the whole medium priced field.

Look through the pages of this paper or a magazine that may be lying on your table. There are probably from ten to twenty automobile advertisements. How many name the price of the car?

True, the cost of automobile production has increased in the past year, and is still increasing. But the Chandler Company, throughout 1919, with all its production greatly oversold, held to its price.

The Chandler Six of today is a highly perfected development of the Chandler Six of seven years ago, which started the trend toward lightweight sixes. All the engineering skill and production efficiency at the command of the Chandler Company has been devoted to this one chassis, and that fact is one of the reasons for the Chandler's leadership in its field today.

All Chandler bodies are mounted on the one standard Chandler chassis. Simple, sturdy and dependable throughout, its features embrace, as for years past, the really marvelous Chandler Motor, solid cast aluminum motor base, annular ball bearings, silent chain drive for the auxiliary motor shafts, and Bosch magneto ignition.

HYDE PARK TEAMS SWEEP CITY PREP TRACK CONTESTS

Take Senior and Junior Indoor Titles.

Table of Points

Senior.		Junior.
Hyde Park	36½	Hyde Park	30½
Senn	32	Crane	26 5-6
Crane	24½	Senn	13
Lake View	17	Harrison	10½
Bowen	12	Lane	8 1-3
Tilden	7	Tilden	6
Harrison	1	Lake View	5
Hibbard	1	Hibbard	3
		Morgan Park	2

Hyde Park took both senior and junior trophies in the annual indoor track and field meet of the Chicago High School league at Patten gym yesterday. The senior meet was featured by two new league records—in the running high jump and half mile events. Senn was a close second in the senior meet. Crane placed second in the junior.

The well balanced Blue and White team placed in all but one senior event, the shotput, while Senn failed to place in two and Crane missed out in four. Crane's high standing was due to the individual work of Morris Meyers, who took first places in the 50 and 220 yard dashes and fourth in the twelve pound shotput.

Crane Sprinter Is Star.

Meyers beat Schweger of Senn by a four yard margin in the 220 yard dash, after running neck and neck for a lap and a half. Meyers won the 50 yard dash in great style, leading all of his opponents by six feet. Meyers was high man of the meet with 11 points.

The low hurdles was the best race of the afternoon, Sweeney of Lake View pulling up two feet on Heshin of Hyde Park in the last six yards, ending in a dead heat. Brandenburg of Bowen was easily the class of the field in the high hurdles, tearing over the fifty yards within two-fifths of the record time.

Stumpe, Hyde Park's star miler, came within one-fifth of a second of the record and finished fifty feet ahead of his nearest rival.

Fast Finish in Relay.

Orr of Hyde Park, a last minute entry, clipped five seconds off the half mile record, breasting the tape in a whirlwind finish in 2:06. The relay was a seesaw affair, Senn grabbing the race by the fast finish of Zak, who made up eight feet on the Lake View man in the final lap.

No exceptional times were recorded in the junior meet. Hyde Park led in points all the way. The entrance of seven teams in the junior relay necessitated the running of two heats. The points were distributed as if the heats had been two separate races, each winner being awarded 5 points.

Yarnell of Hyde Park took junior honors with 10 points, winning the 50 yard dash and low hurdles. Summaries:

MAROONS LOSE TO BADGERS ON MAT; GYMNASTS WIN

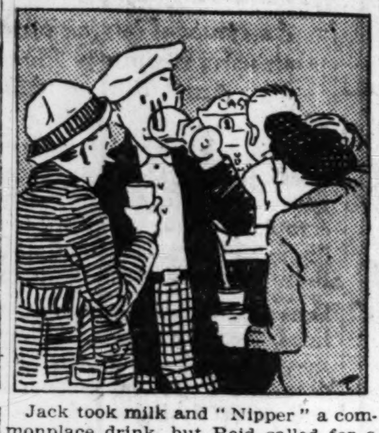
Madison, Wis., April 3.—University of Chicago gymnasts defeated Wisconsin today, 193.075 points to 174.75. Tasche of Wisconsin, with 35.626 points, was high individual scorer, four-tenths of a point higher than Inlow of Chicago.

Chicago forfeited four of the dual wrestling bouts and lost the decision in the two staged. The Maroons also forfeited the broadsword match.

Anderson of Wisconsin won his fencing bout with Wood of Chicago, 5 points to 1.

TALES of A TEE-BOX TOURIST

JACK BURKE, the former Wheaton golf professional, now at St. Paul, was playing in an eastern tournament. He had shot a 75 and was feeling fine, but "Nipper" Campbell, the diminutive Scotchman, followed with 72. "Nipper" felt fine enough to invite Jack to a nip, and included Wilfred Reid, the English professional.



Jack took milk and "Nipper" a commonplace drink, but Reid called for a "Bulldog." The bartender rang up $1.05.

"Nipper" supposed he had made a mistake, but found that the "Bulldog" was rated commercially at 85 cents.

"I was lucky he did not order a Great Dane," remarked "Nipper," as he left the coaling station.

Later in the afternoon "Nipper" returned and modestly ordered a 10 cent "Dog Collar."

ILLINI BEATEN IN CALIFORNIA MEET, 74 TO 66

Berkeley, Cal., April 3.—The University of California defeated the University of Illinois track and field team today, 74 to 66. The meet was unusually close, first one university and then the other being in the lead, and the final event, the mile relay, decided the meet, California winning by less than two yards.

California was superior in the field events, but Illinois had the better of the distance races and dashes. Merchant of California, a fieldman, was the high individual point winner of the day. He won fourteen points, while Emery of Illinois was close behind with thirteen. Grunsky of California was third with 11 points. Summaries:

440 yard run—Won by Emery [Illinois], Donohoe [Illinois], second; Hendrikson [California], third. Time, 51 1-5 seconds.

880 yard run—Won by Sprott [California]; Brown [Illinois], second; Spink [Illinois], Schuh [Illinois], tied for third. Time, 1 minute 58 1-5 seconds.

Discus throw—Won by Bennett [Illinois]; Wilson [Illinois], second; Weiss [Illinois], third. Distance, 127 feet 10 inches.

One mile run—Won by Yates [Illinois]; Sprott [California], second; Whartou [Illinois], third. Time, 4:27.

220 yard dash—Won by Hendrikson [California]; Emery [Illinois], second; Prescott [Illinois], third. Time, 22 seconds.

120 yard high hurdles—Won by Grunske, Cal.; Henderson, Cal., second; Drew, Cal., third. Time, 15:4.

High jump—Osborn, Ill., and Cottrell, Cal., tied for first; Hendrixson, Cal., third. Distance, 6 feet ¼ inch.

Pole vault—Peterson, Cal., and Sterling, Cal., tied for first; Osborn, Illinois, third. Height, 12 feet.

Shotput—Won by Majors, Cal.; Weiss, Ill., second; Merchant, Cal., third. Distance, 41 feet ¾ inch.

Hammer throw—Won by Merchant, Cal.; Bennett, Ill., second; Wilson, Ill., third. Distance, 155 feet 11½ inches.

Broad jump—Won by Starling [California]; Merchant [California], second; Kenny [Illinois], third. Distance, 22 feet 4¼ inches.

Javelin throw—Won by Merchant [California]; Wilson [Illinois], second; Majors [California,] third. Distance, 181 feet 6 inches.

Relay race—Won by California. Time, 3 minutes 25 seconds.

"CHUCK" MELLOR FINISHES FIRST IN DETROIT RACE

Detroit, Mich., April 3.—Charles L. Mellor of the Logan Square A. C., Chicago, Marathon champion of the American expeditionary forces, today won the Auto City Marathon from Pontiac to Detroit. His time was 2 hours 30 minutes and 4 seconds.

Willie Kyronen of New York finished second in 2:38:07. Third and fourth places were taken respectively by Sidney Hatch, Illinois A. C., and Michael Dwyer, Mohawk A. C., New York.

Hatch was literally pushed into third place. He was staggering as he neared the finish and Dwyer, coming fast behind him, inadvertently bumped into him, pushing him across the line a step ahead.

The first three to finish are to be entered in the official trials for the Olympic games.

Miss Weld and Nat Niles in Olympic Fancy Skating

New York, April 3.—Entries of Miss Therese Weld and Nathaniel W. Niles, both of Boston, for the figure skating contests to be decided at Antwerp April 20 to 30 have been accepted by the Belgian Olympic committee. This information was contained in a cable today to Secretary Rubien of the American Olympic committee. Miss Weld and Mr. Niles, accompanied by Mrs. Niles, will sail from here Wednesday with members of the United States hockey team.

I. A. C. Enters Two Girls in Calerton Roller Race

Miss Rose Johnson and Miss Catherine Judge of the Illinois A. C. have entered the one mile women's race, which will be one feature of the roller events to be conducted by Carleton A. C. over northwest side streets next Sunday afternoon. Paul Drew and Bill Skrivans will wear Opal A. A. colors, and Paul Quirk will skate for Lightning A. C. in the ten mile race.

MAXINE MAY NOT BE U. S. WITNESS IN DEMPSEY CASE

Champ Can Exclude Her, Rules Washington.

DEMPSEY CASE DELAYED

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 3.—The cases of Jack Dempsey and his manager, Jack Kearns, indicted by a federal grand jury in connection with Dempsey's alleged evasion of the draft, were called in the United States District court today and went over for two weeks, at which time, it was announced, the cases will be set for trial. Neither Dempsey nor Kearns appeared.

Washington, D. C., April 3.—[Special.]—Maxine Dempsey, divorced wife of Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, probably will not testify against the champion when his trial comes up in San Francisco in two weeks on charges of evading the draft law. If the champion waives the right of excluding her, which is a privilege accorded to the defendant under the federal court procedure, she may be called to the stand, but otherwise she will not figure in the trial.

This was disclosed here by Miss Annette Adams, United States district attorney for the northern district of California, who left tonight for San Francisco after consulting the department of justice regarding Dempsey's prosecution scheduled to begin on April 17.

Two Counts Against Jack.

There are two counts in the indictment against Dempsey, the first charging conspiracy with intent to evade the selective service law. The second count charges him with the violation of the law itself. Jack Kearns, his manager, will be tried on a conspiracy charge, as he was in no way personally involved in the charge of actually evading the law.

"Unless Dempsey waives his right and is willing for his former wife to testify, she will in all probability not be called to the witness stand by the government," declared Miss Adams. "The case against Dempsey interests us only in that it is a case of a violation of the federal law. We have other defendants awaiting trial in San Francisco on similar charges. The case against the champion will be handled in exactly the same way that the others are tried."

Col. Thomas Named Prosecutor.

Miss Adams said it was improbable she will personally appear in court in the trial of Dempsey and Kearns. She has assigned the task of prosecuting the champion and his manager to Col. Thomas, an assistant United States attorney, who served in the war.

Questioned as to whether she knew if Dempsey ever worked in a shipyard during the war, Miss Adams replied that so far as she knew he did not.

The statement of the California district attorney indicates that all the preparations that were made to have Maxine Dempsey testify at the trial, and her avowed purpose of "getting even" with the champion, will come to naught.

Officials of the district attorney's office here said that under the federal procedure Maxine was barred from giving testimony, as the fact of her divorce would be considered as lending the fact of malice to her statements.

LEDOUX, PAPIN, FRENCH CHAMPS, WILL BOX IN U. S.

New York, April 3.—Georges Papin, lightweight champion of France, and Charles Ledoux, bantamweight, will sail for America on April 17, according to a cable received by their manager, Francois Descamps. Descamps conferred with New Jersey promoters who are dickering to get the two champions in action with two of America's little fellows, but no agreement was reached.

Ritchie Mitchell, the Milwaukee light lightweight who knocked out Lew Edwards, the Australian champion, and outpointed Willie Jackson recently, was suggested as an opponent for Papin, while Pal Moore, Joe Lynch, or Kid Wolfe was offered for a bout with Ledoux.

"If the conditions are right, I will send Papin or Ledoux against any man in their class except the champions," Descamps said tonight. "I want them to get acclimated before they go into a championship fight. In a month I will talk terms for Leonard or Herman."

JACK JOHNSON IS STILL IN PRETTY GOOD CONDITION

San Diego, Cal., April 3.—"It's the same Jack Johnson, with the same golden smile, and he looks as good as he did five years ago when I last saw him." So said Harry Woodbury, local fight promoter, over the phone from Mexicala, Mexico, today.

Woodbury will referee a bout at the Mexicala bull ring tomorrow, when the former Negro heavyweight champion will box Pete Jackson, colored heavyweight from Texas.

Johnson is only seven or eight pounds above his fighting weight, he tips the scales at 220, and shows no sign of dissipation, declared Woodbury. bury.

Within a month, Johnson declared today, he will be in the United States. He says he is waiting the arrival of some officials from Mexico City before crossing. He would not commit himself further.

YALE'S OARSMEN ROW TO VICTORY IN TWO EVENTS

Philadelphia, Pa., April 3.—Yale outrowed the University of Pennsylvania eight oared shell crews in both the varsity and junior varsity contests decided over the Henley mile and 550 yards course on the Schuylkill river today.

In the varsity contest Yale trailed Pennsylvania for the best part of a mile, then closed up in the final quarter mile and drew away, winning by two-thirds of a length in 6:44. Pennsylvania finished in 6:47 1-5.

Penn Away in Lead.

When Lieutenant Commander Morrison of the naval academy, the starter, sent the crews away, Pennsylvania, on the east course, got the jump and gained half a length in the first quarter mile. Nearing the half mile point Pennsylvania held its advantage, but in the next quarter mile Yale cut the lead to a quarter length.

Then Pennsylvania, rowing a much faster stroke than Yale, gradually pulled away. Yale again crept up and at Peters island, marking the final quarter mile, spurted and in a few strokes was even with Penn. Then the blue forged ahead and for a moment Stroke Thomas of Penn seemed to tire and Yale shot farther ahead and won easily.

Reserve Power Wins for Yale.

Yale got away in front in the junior varsity race and Pennsylvania caught the youthful rivals by a game rally at the mile, but once more the reserve power was found in Yale's long, powerful sweep, for the New Haven men raised their stroke and left Pennsylvania in the rear, crossing the finishing point with a quarter length of water showing between the shells. Yale's time was 7:00 3-5 and Pennsylvania's 7:07 4-5.

TILDEN ANNEXES NET SINGLES AND DOUBLES TITLES

New York, April 3.—William T. Tilden Jr. of Philadelphia defeated Vicent Richards, New York, in the final of the national indoor tennis singles championship today and, paired with Richards, successfully defended the doubles title against Samuel Hardy, and S. H. Voshell of New York. The singles score was 10—8, 6—3, 6—1, and the doubles 6—3, 3—6, 6—4, 12—10.

The fast service, superiority of volleying, and general accuracy of Tilden accounted for his victory in the singles.

The defeated doubles team made a better stand than was expected. Their uncertain team work, however, was costly in the close games, Tilden using fast passing shots through the center of their court for needed points. Hardy weakened on his service toward the end.

Wladek Zbyszko Lost for Two Days in Rockies

New York, April 3.—[Special.]—Wladek Zybszbo, the wrestler, is lost in the Rocky mountains, near Boise, Idaho, according to word received by Jack Curley. The grappler, who is fond of hunting, made up a party of five to go up into the mountains after lion and bear. The party separated and in the evening three of the members returned. When Zbyszbo and the other hunter had not turned up by the next morning, several posses sought them. The men have been missing for two days.

PHILLIES BUY INFIELDER.

Birmingham, Ala., April 3.—The Philadelphia club of the National league has purchased "Spuffy" Stewart, infielder, from the Birmingham club for a cash consideration and two players whose names were not announced. Stewart formerly played with the Pirates.

In the Wake of the News

OUR NATIONAL GAME.

BASEBALL, judging from attendance at the exhibition games played by major league teams on their training trips, promises to enjoy its greatest season of prosperity.

Whether the exuberance of the fans will reach the wild spasms which marked the Sox-Cubs world's series of 1906, or the Cubs-Giants National league struggles of 1908, or whether baseball has become an amusement or spectacle similar to the theaters and simply is enjoying the after-war desire of our people for entertainment, may be debated.

The fact remains, however, that spring attendance as well as applications for reservations to opening games, surpasses all previous records.

As a result of merely exhibition affairs, which often in the past have created scarcely a ripple of excitement, several clubs will clear not only their entire training expenses but will carry home a snug bankroll of heavy dimensions.

As an example of how soft the picking has been, Cincinnati's Reds and New York's Yankees were scheduled to play an exhibition at Palm Beach. There was no inclosed ball park, so the game was played on the Hotel Poinciana lawn. The hat was passed in lieu of an admission fee. The take was $3,700.

* *

Cincinnati, which boasts a world's championship team, has reserved its grand stand and boxes just as during the world's series, except, of course, that regular prices will prevail. The season does not open until April 14. More than two weeks ago, all reservations had been allotted.

* *

Locally, Sox and Cubs report a heavy demand for opening day accommodations, although Chicago never has been known as an "opening day" city.

Pot Calls Kettle.

Melbourne Beach, Fla., April 1.—Dear Wake: Just asked Brother Lichty of the Melbourne Times if he intended to visit Chicago again this summer. "No," he replied, "I'll come in October. I can't stand the Chicago heat in July and August." H. W.

P. S.—Bro. Lichty and Don Beaujean were entertained by Bill Buhl and the Woodland Bards. No wonder it was warm.

Speaking of presidential possibilities, would it not be better to pick one that is all WOOD rather than one with wood at one end only. O. M. A.

POLLYANNA STUFF.

I am the cheerfulest of men; I smile and take it easy,
Although I have no reason to be cheerful;
The well known world is cluttered up with propositions cheesy,
But still it gets you little to be tearful;
The rent hound gouges us, the cook insults us, and the tailor
Deserves the firing squad for constant nicking;
But I've observed the happy egg's no
worse off than the wailer—
There's nothing right, but what's the use of kicking?

The birds who steer our politics are awful hicks, but listen,
We should be glad they CAN'T get any hicker;
Our hootch is gone, but there's no kick that makes the optics glisten
Hid in a weeping jag without the licker;
Our street cars are so jammed it's hard to get a seat, but dammit,
There ain't no law to keep a guy
from walking;
The Universe is rotten, but it does no good to slam it—
There's nothing right, but what's the use of squawking?

"Did you ever meet a girlie in a little rolling chair?"

"O, tell me, pretty maiden, are there any more at home like you?"

"Just because she made those goo-goo eyes."

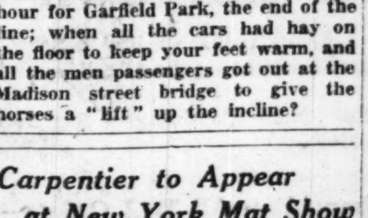
IF?

If prohibition should fall through,
What would you do, what would you do?
If such good news should e'er come true,
I'd hit the brew and so would you.



I'd resurrect my good old stein,
I'd want no booze—just beer for mine;
It would be fine, it would be fine!

"Since the Red Sox have parted with Babe Ruth," queries E. C. K., "would it be too much to suggest that they will have to wage a Ruthless campaign?"

Do You Remember Way Back When: The Madison street horse cars stopped at Western avenue, and you transferred to a car which left every hour for Garfield Park, the end of the line; when all the cars had hay on the floor to keep your feet warm, and all the men passengers got out at the Madison street bridge to give the horses a "lift" up the incline?

Harvard Likely to Race in National Regatta

Cambridge, Mass., April 3.—Harvard probably will have an eight oared crew in the national amateur rowing regatta at Worcester in July with a view to qualifying for the Olympic regatta in Belgium. Coach William Haines said today that he planned to assemble such a crew immediately after the Yale-Harvard regatta at New London June 25 from those members of the varsity and second crews who wish to make the trip.

Carpentier to Appear at New York Mat Show

New York, April 3.—[Special.]—Georges Carpentier, the European heavyweight champion, will make his first public appearance in this city at an early date in an exhibition of training, bag punching, and light sparring in connection with a star wrestling bout at Seventy-first armory. Carpentier, who will tour the leading cities for ten weeks, will travel in a private Pullman. He will not participate in a real glove contest until next summer.

VAUGHN TRAVELS FULL ROUTE FOR CUBS; WINS, 6-4

San Francisco, Cal., April 3.—[Special.]—Hippo Vaughn pitched the full route for the Cubs against San Francisco today, and beat the locals, 6 to 4. It was the first time the big southpaw twirled a complete nine inning game, and pleased Boss Mitchell, who is decidedly tired of seeing his charges bumped by Coast league teams.

The affair was an artillery duel, hits being lusty and rather frequent. The Cubs' fielding smoothed any rough spots in efficient style, however.

Due to Dode Paskert's rough treatment of local umpires, the Coast league clubs have declared a closed season on the Cub outfielder, and he will be permitted to play in no more parks of the circuit this season. Clarence Twombly subbed for Paskert in left and rose to the occasion with two doubles and a single. Score:

ROOKIE HURLER WINS FOR CARDS OVER BROWNIES

St. Louis, Mo., April 3.—[Special.]—The Cardinals won the first game of the spring city series this afternoon. Jess Haines, the big right hander obtained by Manager Rickey from Kansas City, shutting out the Browns with Allan Sothoron up, 4 to 0. What promised to be a grand pitching duel was shattered in the fifth inning when, with the breaks favoring them, the Cards tallied their four runs. The duel was resumed in the sixth, but a heavy rain put a stop to the contest after the sixth inning had been played.

Wind and cold weather held the attendance to 7,500, but the fans who braved the elements were treated to a variety of real baseball and the Cardinal adherents were repaid in the fifth inning, when, with the bases loaded, Burt Shotton doubled down the right field line to score the first two runs. Heathcote immediately sent a sacrifice fly to Williams, scoring Haines, Shotton following the pitcher across when Williams' throw to the plate was wild. Score:

FABER DISPLAYS HIS OLD CUNNING AS SOX WIN, 5-1

Hurler Gives Promise of Real Comeback.

Houston, Tex., April 3.—[Special.]—Red Faber added another paragraph to his startling comeback today when he beat Houston, 5 to 1, ably assisted by his colleagues, who played as good a game of ball as one might wish to see.

The Cascade chucker had a curve that broke too well for the local umpire. Even so, he struck out ten Texas leaguers, and might have had more to his string, but the arbiter was puzzled by the queer way the baseball tended to deviate from a straight line.

Felsch, Collins, Jackson and Jourdan drove in all the Sox runs. Jourdan has started hitting after a slow start, and he made two stabs of wild throws in a manner that made Manager Gleason forget that Chick Gandil is among the missing.

New Rules Are Bothersome.

The game was featured by three wrangles involving interpretation of the new and peculiar rules. In the second inning after three balls had been called, Schalk fell to the earth, escaping a high pitch, and the ball struck his bat, going foul. He was awarded a pass.

In the sixth Patterson drew back and created a fair grounder to Jourdan who dutifully trod upon first base, but Pat was called back, the pitch being judged a ball. He took advantage of the ruling by whacking out a triple, but died on third. Trout, local catcher, in the sixth swung half way, pulled back, making a foul and got the benefit of the doubt amidst much protest. He fanned on the next pitch, so nothing was lost.

Baggan Triples in First.

The lone run made off Faber came in the first inning, when Baggan tripled on the initial pitch. Leslie jumped one in front of the plate, and Jourdan was slow getting the ball back to Lynn, the runner scoring by a slight margin.

After that Red pitched easily, but effectively. He went the entire distance, and says his arm suffered none from the exertion. Gleason now is satsfid he will be one of the four pitchers to work regularly when the championship season begins.

Ed Collins had a big day. Twice he fielded grounders back of second base and went to his knees, but managed to make the throws in time. He also walked, stole a base, got two singles and two runs. The captain is as fast as ever and last year was his best in the American league

The Sox finish their series here tomorrow and start north. Score:

SOX GOOFS WIN BY SCORE OF 10-1

Wichita Falls, Tex., April 3.—[Special.]—The White Sox Goofs trimmed the local baseball clubs today, 10 to 1, the big league youngsters being able to follow the ball in the sandstorm much better than the natives. Reb Russell, who played in the outfield, batted three singles and a homer. Kerr and Sullivan pitched for the Goofs.

Toney and Nehf Pitch Giants to Victory, 6-0

Knoxville, Tenn., April 3.—[Special.]—Fred Toney and Arthur Nehf, working in the order named, baffled the Red Sox with ease today and the Giants romped to their fifth consecutive victory, 6 to 0. Harry Harper, the Hackensack southpaw, who started for the Sox, was wild and had little on the ball when he did manage to get it over. Benny Karr pitched the last three innings for Boston and kept the Giants away from the plate.

The Sox gathered only four hits, of which Mike Menosky made two, Mike singled in the fourth and again in the ninth. Not a single Boston runner got beyond second base and only three of them got that far.

He said he had accepted a business offer on the coast and would never play ball again, and had no comment about the Giants or Lee Magee. He said he began to realize last year that he was beginning to slow, and finally concluded his career as a player was over.

Yanks Win 4th Straight from Brooklyn, 2 to 1

Jacksonville, Fla., April 3.—[Special.]—The Yankees are beginning to play some real ball. Today they won their fourth straight exhibition, a pitcher's battle, from Brooklyn in the eighth game of the series, 2 to 1. Bob Shawkey pitched no hit ball for five innings and only one man reached base. Carl Mays reported that he sprung a Charley horse while practicing Friday, and he may be unable to pitch for several days.

ARMY AND NAVY SEEK PLACES ON OLYMPIC TEAM

All Camps in Competition to Qualify Athletes.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

That the army and navy are going to make great efforts to be represented on the American Olympic team for the world's games at Antwerp this summer is shown by the activity in the central district.

Capt. Ward Brennan of Camp Mills, L. I., is in Chicago to assume charge of all army trials in the central district. Capt Brennan has notified the commanders of the various camps that trials will be held at their cantonments early in June and a grand final at Camp Grant a week afterward.

Activity at Great Lakes.

While all this activity is going on in the army, Lieut. Com. A. S. Carpender, athletic officer at the Great Lakes naval station, is kept busy making room for the many naval boxers, wrestlers and swimmers who are being sent to the station. Great Lakes is sort of a concentration camp for the navy, and already men have reported from battleships and far off naval stations. There are many officers in this number who believe they have chances to make the team.

Although the army and navy have been robbed of the athletic stars who so easily won the inter-allied games in France, those in charge of activities in both branches of the service have hopes of discovering and developing men who will make a showing in Belgium. The athletic officers are sure army and navy boxers and wrestlers will be among the many chosen.

Compete in Olympic Trials.

The service athletes who qualify in their respective tryouts will have to compete in the Olympic trials, to be held in three sections of the country. These track and field contests will be held June 26. No dates have been announced for the boxing, wrestling and swimming tryouts.

According to Everett C. Brown, who will have charge of the Olympic tryouts in the central west, the boxing trials will be held in Milwaukee, where money can be raised to help defray expenses of the team. Boxing is permitted by law in the Cream City, although there are no known statutes to prevent amateur bouts in Chicago. If Milwaukee is not selected, Great Lakes will be the logical selection, according to Brown.

Swim Trials at Navy Station.

The swimming tryouts for the army men of the district will be held at Great Lakes. Lieut. Carpender gave Capt. Brennan permission to use the station's seventy-five foot pool for all tests. The men who will take part in the swimming trials will be mobilized at Fort Sheridan and taken to the naval station in motor trucks on the day of the contests.

According to Lieut. Carpender, the boxers and wrestlers sent to the station from all parts of the navy will be given daily drills. The regular weekly shows will be held and the contests decided out of doors as soon as the weather permits. As the time of the sectional boxing trials approaches elimination bouts will be held to select the best boxers in the various classes. Some of these will be sent to the trials in the east, while others may go to the coast to try to qualify in the Pacific tests.

Stiff Competition on Mat.

The same system will be true of the wrestlers, who will meet stiffer opposition than the boxers. There are any number of good amateur grapplers this year and the service men will have to beat them. The national swimming trials will be held in Chicago, so that the natators will have plenty of opportunities to practice over the course where the tests will be held.

Capt. Brennan announced a quarter of a mile track is under construction at Camp Grant. He also said other details will be attended to relative to holding the finals of the track and field events. He asserted the boxing and wrestling finals also will be held at Camp Grant. Capt. Brennan will start on a tour of the camps tomorrow.

SPORT BRIEFS

NEW YORK.—Willie Plant of the Morningside A. C., national walking champion, walked the fastest indoor mile ever recorded by an American, in the first annual indoor athletic meet of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics. Starting from scratch in a one mile handicap heel and toe race, Plant broke the string in 6:37 3-5, after one of the best races of his career. The champion's time eclipsed by one and two-fifth seconds, the best previous figures for an American walker, 6:39, made several weeks ago by Plant.

IN A FIVE MINUTE extra time session, Division Y. M. C. A. Clippers defeated Hamilton Park Bullets, 20 to 18, and qualified for the finals of the A. A. F. basketball championship, 125 pound class, at West Side Y. M. C. A. The other semi-final was won in more decisive fashion, Armour Square Palms beating Lake Shore Maroons, 20 to 12.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. —Yale overwhelmed the Annapolis midshipmen at tennis, taking five out of six strings of singles and three straights in doubles. Melzer scored Navy's only win over Wilder.

Grand aggregate team score for seven rounds, 6,869.

With one perfect 200 score and two 199s, the Rogers Park Rifle club team set a new record for competition by Chicago clubs in the national and interstate matches, ripping the bulls-eye for 992 of a possible 1,000 in last week's event, the seventh round of the national competition.

The seventh round was marked by brilliant shooting. Three 200 scores were shot by S. Middleton of Rogers Park, G. A. Gustafson of Commonwealth Edison company, and H. S. Ayres, Chicago R. C.

Irving Park Team Ahead.

Irving Park added to its lead over other local teams, now aggregating 6,890 of a possible 7,000. Chicago R. C., in second place, totals 6,883, the seven points being a big margin for Irving Park, for the three remaining rounds. The Rogers Park club began its brilliant shooting comparatively late in the season and is practically out of the first place race.

Capt. T. G. Lively of Irving Park leads in individual aggregates, with 1,389 of a possible 1,400. Capt. J. B. Sutherlund of Irving Park totals 1,385 for second.

Tribune Trophy to Winner.

The annual banquet of the Chicago Rifle association will be held April 12 at Central Y. M. C. A. Medals will be awarded members of the Chicago Rifle club team, winner of the last indoor championship tourney, and THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE trophy will be formally presented to the association. This trophy will go to the high scorer among local teams for the national and state tourney. Scores of the seventh round:

YOUNG WRESTLER WHO IS SEEKING CONTESTS

L. W. RICE.

L. W. Rice, who is in the United States public health service, has invaded Chicago in quest of wrestling matches. Rice is a husky youngster of 170 pounds, who is willing to hook up with any gent not exceeding 175 pounds. Among his victories he claims the championship of Canada, won from Jack Lewis April 5, 1918, at Montreal. He won the first fall in 45:00 and the second in 65:00. The lad is anxious to get on at some of the local shows before his work in the public health service takes him elsewhere. His residence is at 1744 West Jackson boulevard.

NATIONAL SEXTET
BUILT IN FIVE CUSTOM BODY MODES

The Secret of Sextet Style

The road-hugging lowness of the new National Sextet, which is the basis of Sextet beauty and the secret of Sextet style, has its genesis in a method of body mounting that is both original and unduplicated.

The custom-styled body of the National Sextet overlaps the chassis frame instead of sitting on top of it, as has been the common practice since automobiles were first built.

The exceptionally deep body sides are brought 3⅛ inches closer to the ground. They descend, without a break, to within a scant two inches of the running board.

The high and ungainly running board apron, common to other makes of cars, is replaced by a trim and slender valance.

Thus, a smart, low-hung appearance, unmatched by any other American automobile, is gained without the sacrifice of road clearance or the acceptance of other compromises equally as undesirable.

This exclusively National method of body mounting, moreover, has practical as well as artistic advantages.

Broad timbers, known as sills, form the foundation of every automobile body. In other cars, these sills are laid flat. In the National Sextet, they are set on edge for trebled strength.

Thereby is afforded a support of unyielding rigidity that eliminates the "weave" which imposes heavy strains on body joints and causes the squeaks, rattles and other noises that develop under a method of body mounting less secure.

Arrow-straight lines, individual front fenders, a high and narrow radiator unmistakably National, and a flat upper body edge are only a few of the many striking style features.

Our demonstrating cars are at your bidding.

POLL GOLFERS OF COUNTRY ABOUT RULE CHANGES

Common Opinion Sought for Confab Abroad.

BY JOE DAVIS.

The decision of the United States Golf association to secure opinions from various sectional associations regarding changes in the rules will be welcomed by two of the larger bodies, the Western and Transmississippi.

At the annual meeting of the Western, at which several leaders in the Transmississippi were present, the proposed conference between the American and British golfers was discussed. It was hoped that the U. S. G. A. would be broad enough to feel the pulse of the majority of golfers of this country, rather than leave so important a matter to a few members of its committee.

Pros to Have Say.

Not only has the U. S. G. A. asked opinions from the amateurs, but it is cooperating with a committee from the Professional Golfers' association, which is getting opinions from its leading players.

When the U. S. G. A. committee sails for England next month it will have definite ideas of the views of players on this side of the water, and it is hoped the conference will lead to the establishment of rules acceptable to all countries. There is no doubt the majority of American players, especially those of the west, favor the elimination of the stymie, and there also exists a strong sentiment in lessening the penalty for a lost ball.

Climatic Conditions Different.

The standardization of the golf ball is a more open question, as it involves playing conditions. Great Britain, with an equable climate, does not get the sun dried courses we get in this country, and it would seem advisable to make extensive tests with a standard ball under varied conditions before adopting it. One player recently suggested that what we needed was a standardized fairway rather than a standard ball.

There are scores of possible changes to be discussed in the wording of the present rules, and suggestions made by players should aid the joint committee greatly.

Havlick Elected Captain of Armour Tech Tossers

Fred Havlick, running guard of the Armour institute basketball team, was elected to lead next year's squad at a meeting of the varsity team yesterday. Havlick has played basketball with Armour for the last two years. Letters were awarded to the following players: Capt. I. Bready, Havlick, Schumacher, Kuehn, Ahlbeck, Erickson, and May.

SHOTS ON THE LINKS
By JOE DAVIS

PRESIDENT WILLIAM S. POWERS and his associates in the Evanston Community Recreation association yesterday decided a budget of $12,000 would be necessary to complete the golf course and maintain it. Work on the extra holes necessary to give the players eighteen is under way.

President R. W. McKinlay and several members of the Cook County Municipal Golf association visited the Palos Park course yesterday in company with Chief Forester Ranson Kennicott, Engineer Emmet Flavin, and M. H. McInerney, who will have charge of the links. The course, which has the best natural drainage of any in the Chicago district, was in excellent shape for this time of the year. The fairways have a thick growth of turf and the new greens have wintered well. Some tiling will be installed around the edges this week.

The small course at Jackson park was opened yesterday, and despite the cold breeze there were a fair number of "early golfing worms" out.

Managers of the golf and country clubs and those of city clubs are planning to form an organization with the object of mutual benefit, such as is aimed at by the clubs in the Chicago District Golf association. The managers met last week at the City club, primarily to discuss the matter of extra help during the summer months, and it was at this meeting that steps were taken to form a permanent body. L. J. Kreller of Ravisloe was appointed chairman.

OUIMET TO PLAY IN SEMI-FINALS OF NORTH-SOUTH

Pinehurst, N. C., April 3.—Francis Ouimet went around in 36—34—70 against J. M. Wells of Wheeling in the championship set of the north and south amateur tourney today and won, 5 and 3. Harold Weber of the Inverness club of Toledo, R. E. Bockenkamp of St. Louis, and Sam Graham of Greenwich all won against their respective opponents by a 3 and 2 margin.

Ouimet's great round against Wells was the best so far in the tournament. He started out with his accustomed eagle 3 on the first hole, which makes the fourth time he has played this hole in two strokes under par. A second eagle was registered on the par 5 fourteenth hole. Ouimet was then 4 up, and he brought the match to an end by going down in 3 on the short fifteenth.

Ouimet and Harold Weber will meet in the semi-finals on Monday in the lower bracket, while Graham and Bockenkamp will oppose each other in the upper frame.

MAROONS READY TO BEGIN TRIP TO FARAWAY JAPAN

Baseball Team Off Tuesday; Stars on Nine.

The University of Chicago baseball team will leave on Tuesday for San Francisco on the first lap of its long trip to Japan. On April 17 the Maroons sail from San Francisco for Honolulu, where they will spend one day before proceeding to Tokio for the series with six leading Japanese college teams. The return to Chicago is scheduled for the last week in June, which will get the men back in time to start classes in the summer quarter to make up the work lost this spring.

Coach Pat Page will not accompany the Maroons on the trip that he organized, but will move to Indianapolis to take up his duties as director of athletics at Butler college. Prof. Fred Merrifield of the department of biblical literature will be coach on the trip. He was captain of the Maroons in 1899.

Star Athletes on Team.

The twelve men who will make the trip represent one of the greatest collections of all around athletes ever assembled on the Midway. Four of the dozen have won the "C" in three major sports and three more are letter men in two sports. The personnel of the squad follows:

Capt. Clarence Vollmer, senior, Alma, Wis., has won two letters in baseball catching and two in basketball at forward, and was an all-conference selection on several teams.

Paul Hinkle, senior, Chicago, has won two letters in baseball, three in basketball, and one in football. He captained the basketball team last year, and again this winter, to a Big Ten championship, and was three times chosen all-conference guard. He played end in football, and in baseball has appeared at first base, shortstop, in the outfield, and as a pitcher in conference games.

Herbert Crisler, junior, Mendota, Ill., has won one letter in football at end, one in baseball pitching, and two in basketball at guard. He was all-conference guard this winter.

Robert Halladay, sophomore, Chicago, has won letters in football at end, in basketball at center, and is a promising right-handed baseball pitcher.

Moffatt Elton, senior, Oak Park, Ill., captained the football team in 1918, and has won three "Cs" at halfback and two in the outfield.

Robert Cole, junior, Oak Park, Ill., won his letter at half back last fall, and played center field last year.

John Mochel, Downers Grove, Ill., senior, will earn his third letter at third base.

Edwin Curtiss, senior, Downers Grove, Ill., will be graduated this summer with eight "C's." He has played forward in basketball two years, first base three years, and won three letters in track. In 1917 and 1919 he was western intercollegiate 440 champion, last year stepping a quarter mile in :49 1-5 after playing nine innings of baseball the same afternoon.

Four New Men to Play.

The four new men are George Fedor, Mount Olive, Ill.; Edwin Palmer, Leon Connolly and Henry Geertsma of Chicago. All are sophomores. Palmer was a substitute full back and basketball guard this year. Of the five sophomores selected, three are pitchers, Halladay, Geertsma, and Palmer. Fedor will play shortstop and Connolly second base.

ILLINOIS AND INDIANA FISHING LAWS.

ILLINOIS and Indiana are the first of the northern states to attract the attention of bass fishermen. This does not mean that fishing conditions are better in these states early in the season, but that you may catch bass in either state earlier without getting into trouble with the game wardens.

ILLINOIS LAWS MOST LIBERAL.

There is no state in the north that has such liberal hook and line fishing laws as Illinois. There is no closed season on game fishes, no daily or season limit on catches, no size limit. In other words, you may fish on any day of the year, catch 100 six inch bass on that day, take them home and eat 'em and the law will not frown upon you, although good sportsmanship will, of course.

Illinois does still more than this for the angler. The state laws reserve game fishes for the hook and line fishermen exclusively, and netters are not permitted to catch or sell them—in fact, black bass may not be sold in this state, no matter where they were caught; pike and pickerel may be sold if they are taken from waters outside of Illinois.

Besides all this, the Illinois fish and game department has the authority to set aside any waters they see fit as fish preserves, to be used for hook and line fishing only. There is no law prohibiting the use of set, trot, or throw lines in Illinois waters, but such lines, if used in state fish preserves, must not be "baited with minnow, chub, or frog, or anything but dead bait."

TRANSPORTING FISH.

The laws of Illinois permit an angler to transport in any one day one package only, containing not more than twenty-five black bass, pike, pickerel, or pike-perch, on any conveyance for which he has bought a ticket; the package may be shipped as baggage, but it must then be plainly marked with the owner's name and destination. A resident of Illinois may fish in the waters of the state without a license, but a nonresident must pay a license fee of $1.25.

SOME ILLINOIS "DON'TS."

Here are a few things anglers fishing in Illinois are not permitted to do:

Fish within 100 feet of a dam; take minnows in seines of more than twenty feet in length or with meshes less than one-quarter inch square; keep fishes other than minnows caught in minnow seines; take fish with the aid of poisons, spears, dynamite, or other explosives, firearms, or with the attraction of a light, although a light may be used for illuminating purposes.

HOOSIERS LESS LIBERAL.

Although no one can complain of their severity, Indiana's laws are not as liberal to the angler as those of Illinois. Like the latter state, Indiana has no closed season on game fishes other than trout—open season April 1 to Sept. 1—but the spawning beds are fenced off, and no fishing is permitted on them from March 20 to July 1. Such places are marked with signs reading, "State Breeding Grounds."

LEGAL LIMITS.

Indiana puts legal limits on the angler's catches as follows: Trout, 7 inches, 20 per day; black bass, 10 inches, 12 per day, except if two or more fish from the same boat, when the aggregate catch must not exceed 20; bluegills, sunfish, or crappies, 6 inches, 50 per day; pickerel or pike-perch (wall eyes), 12 inches, no daily limit specified.

LICENSES.

A resident of Indiana may fish in his own or adjacent county without a license; otherwise he must procure a resident license, which costs $1. License is not required of any honorably discharged soldier, sailor, or marine.

A nonresident must pay a license fee of $1, but this does not apply to children under 18, nor to the wife of a man who has a nonresident license.

Game fishes may not be shipped from Indiana, but the nonresident may take out with him, personally, not more than 24 fish, provided they are carried openly for inspection.

INDIANA "DON'TS."

It is unlawful to take fish in Indiana with the use of spears, chemicals, explosives, firearms, electricity, grapple, or gaff hooks, or with the bare hands, although spears and hooks may be used for taking garfish, carp, dogfish, or suckers. It is also unlawful to use minnow seines over 12 feet in length, 4 feet in depth, or with smaller than ¼ inch mesh. In using set lines the hooks must not be smaller than five-sixteenths of an inch from barb to shank, and no more than fifteen bottles, jugs, or other floating devices may be used at one time.

Speaking of Tailoring Values

A hundred dollars may or may not be a high price to pay for a suit of clothes tailored to your measure. We have some fine imported woolens at that price—less and more.

But it does not follow that a man must pay anything near that price in order to secure thorough tailoring satisfaction in fine all-wool fabrics.

Some American mills turn out woolens that stand up with anything imported, and large quantity buying gives us—and you—a marked advantage.

Add to this the economy resulting from efficient tailoring organization on a large scale, and you have the reason for the exceptionally fine selections we offer at, or about,

$65 to $75—Tailored to Your Individual Measure

Compare these values in woolens with those of any other good custom tailoring house, either inside or outside of the loop, and judge for yourself.

Why not drop in, today, and take a look at them?

FEW PROBLEMS LEFT TO PERPLEX MEN OF DIAMOND

Two Decisions on Ball Hitting Umpire.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

Remember the guy who set out to publish a book which would be perfect typographically? If so, you recall the multitude of tests the proofs were subjected to, even to posting each page in a public place for a considerable period and offering a liberal reward for the discovery of an error; but when the book finally was published there was a typographical mistake on the very first page.

The baseball rulemakers devoted a lot of care and time to revising the playing rules during the winter. Not only did the joint rules committees of the two major leagues concentrate much thought on the matter, but ideas were solicited from many sources, even the Baseball Writers' association being enlisted in the good cause.

Code Made Much Clearer.

The result was a vast improvement in the playing code, worth all the time and thought given to it, for many of the obscure points that have wrecked many a semi-pro or sand lot game in the past have been made clearer.

Yet the rulemakers, before the season is many days old, probably will feel just like the guy who tried to attain typographical perfection. There still are technical conflicts in the new code. These presumably will not seriously bother the major league umpires, although they may lead to an argument or two, but the embryonic arbitrator will still have his few troubles.

Runner Not Out if Hit.

One of the changes in the rules absolves a base runner from being declared out if he is hit by a batted ball which goes through an infielder without being touched by an opposing player. The old rule was that such base runner was out unless the ball had been actually touched by an infielder. But it was an injustice to punish a runner for being hit by a batted ball which he expected an infielder to touch, if the fielder missed his chance and the ball then hit the runner.

The change is a just one, but the rulemakers added it to section 8 of rule 56, and then overlooked section 12 of the same rule. According to section 12, the runner still is out if a fair hit ball strikes him before being "touched" by an infielder. The two sections conflict and the bush league player or umpire who is not intimately acquainted with the whole of the rules may get into trouble.

Needs Definite Interpretation.

In a similar connection there is chance for an argument even in the major leagues, unless the umpires receive a definite interpretation in advance of the season. According to the first section of rule 54, as revised, a batted ball remains in play if it hits an umpire after passing a fielder or has been touched by a fielder.

The intent of this revision obviously was to do away with the previous injustice of robbing a runner of the chance to advance when an infielder missed a chance on a grounder and the ball accidentally hit the umpire, as sometimes happened.

The rule worked just the other way in one of the Cubs' exhibition games in California almost before the ink on the printed rules of 1920 was dry. One umpire was working directly behind the pitcher with the bases full of Cubs in the first half of the ninth inning. The score was tied and one out. Paskert sloughed a sizzler past the pitcher so fast that the slabman didn't even reach for it.

Costs Victory for Cubs.

It was a sure hit over second base, good for a couple of runs, but the umpire couldn't dodge the drive. The ball hit him and dribbled back to the pitcher, who picked it up and made a double play by way of the plate. That game went fifteen innings and ended in a tie when obviously it was intended that Paskert should not have been robbed of his hit or the Cubs of at least one run by such an accident.

But the pitcher is a "fielder," technically speaking; so the tall grass umpire was right in his decision, according to the letter of the rule.

And rule 56 still says the ball is not in play if it hits an umpire before "touching" a fielder, making another conflict that will puzzle the amateur arbitrator.

George Dumont to Slab for Janesville Industrials

Janesville, Wis., April 3.—George Dumont, formerly with Washington and Boston Americans, has signed to play with the Samson Tractors nine in the Central Industrial Baseball league, composed of twelve middlewest cities. Dumont with Slim Walsh and Bill Lathrop, will make a strong pitching staff. Manager Perring expects to sign a first class southpaw in a few days.

West secured 10 tricks.

The declarer recognized the king of diamonds as a dominant card from the beginning of the deal. He therefore took the double finesse in the trump suit, hoping that he might keep north out of the lead altogether.

This left nothing for south but the ace of diamonds and he saved a beggarly eight points as the only thing remaining for his side.

North secured the lead, but was afraid to play the queen of diamonds, which could only win if south held both ace and jack of that suit.

The ten of clubs as an original lead would have saved a couple of tricks. At trick three it merely pointed the way to game for the declarer.

After securing the remaining trumps west was certain to secure ten tricks, provided south did not have more than two spades remaining. As he hoped, however, the ace and king of spades removed everything from the south hand except clubs and diamonds. Then the declarer led a club to place the lead with south and forced that player to go up to the king of diamonds in dummy.

South realized the danger and made a brilliant play in refusing to win with his king of clubs, intending to allow the declarer to trump that card on the next round. But west perceived his scheme and also played brilliantly by refusing to win at trick nine.

The next deal is a little study in forcing discards.

West secured a small slam.

The declarer's play at tricks four, five, six, and seven resembled that of a beginner who makes his aces and kings at once for fear some one will steal them. But every play was part of a careful plan, and after the sixth trick west announced that he would take all the rest, although he knew that south was well protected both in hearts and clubs.

At trick three, when it developed that south had no spades at all, the declarer knew that north originally had ten cards, which were diamonds and spades. He at once proceeded to take away from north the other three cards and rendered that player's hand worthless.

The play of the queen of diamonds at trick seven was the most important of all and it made the final discard of south fatal. Having prepared the stage the declarer then played out the spade suit, and at trick ten south was forced to choose between a discard of the last club, which would make the remaining club in dummy winner, or to unguard the heart suit, which gave west the remaining trick.

INTERLAKE YACHT REGATTA AT ERIE FROM JULY 11-17

Vermillion, O., April 3.—The Interlake Yachting association's 1920 regatta will be held at Erie, Pa., July 11 to 17, it was decided at a meeting of members clubs. The clubs accepted a flattering offer from the Erie organization which includes the towing of all sailing craft from home ports and back.

The regatta was set for one week earlier than usual to permit participation in the events of the international power boat racing union at New York. For many years the regatta has been held off Put-in Bay island.

MAROONS TO GIVE DINNER FOR PAGE

University of Chicago students and alumni will give a farewell banquet to H. Orville (Pat) Page at the Del Prado hotel Friday night. Pat leaves next week for Butler college at Indianapolis to assume control of athletics. He graduated on the Midway in 1910 and has been basketball and baseball coach for the last ten years. Page captained the football team in college and won nine letters in football, baseball, and basketball.

JOHNS HOPKINS DOUBLE WINNER.

Baltimore, Md., April 3.—Johns Hopkins easily defeated Cornell both at baseball and lacrosse, winning the former 13 to 10 and the latter 9 to 1.

CRASH OF BATS TO MAKE MUSIC AT PARKS TODAY

Many Semi-Pro Nines Will Swing Into Action.

Nearly all the big city parks will see some baseball action by local amateur and semi-pro ball teams today. Managers who have not booked games have ordered their players to report for the initial workout of the season.

At Normal park, Sixty-first and Racine, a real game will be played. The South Ends, who won the amateur championship of the city last season, will tackle Union Giants. At Fairchild's park, Armitage and Cicero avenues, the Cragins will meet the colored all stars.

Practice at Logan Square.

The Rival A. C. nine will make its first appearance of the year at Thirteenth street and Ashland avenue against the Rainbow A. C.

At Logan Square park Manager John Callahan will have a big squad of veterans and rookies out limbering up. Bill Harley, who starred in the outfield for the Squares last year, has again come to terms with Cal and will be in uniform this afternoon, together with Bob Meinke, Frank Foreman, Joe Weiss, Mike Hechinger, and a big squad of youngsters.

Pyotts Keep Old Regulars.

Bill Niesen of the Pyotts will look over a big delegation at Pyott field. He will have some of his last year's regulars, which includes Leo Kerins, Kilby, Paddy Driscoll, Joe Benz, and Pitcher Dougherty.

The Winton Six, one of the new semi-pro teams, has a good proposition to offer to two first class twirlers. Manager Schaller can be reached at Douglas 3268.

K. of C. Indoor Honors at Stake in Game Today

Championship honors in the Knights of Columbus Indoor Baseball league may be decided this afternoon at St. Alphonsus hall, Lincoln and Southport avenues, when Hennepin and De Soto clash. Shanley and McGuire will perform for Hennepin and Baggs and Spreitzer for De Soto. A win for Hennepin will decide the race, and a defeat will put them in a tie with De Soto. The game will start at 3:30 p. m.

Morris Supremes Capture Basket Title of Yards

Defeating Swift & Co., 30 to 13, in the final game, Morris Supremes won the heavyweight championship of the Stockyards Basketball league. At the end of the first half Morris & Co. led, 16 to 7, and in the second period had little trouble to score. Schotten was the star of the winning team, with six baskets. The game was witnessed by 1,000 rooters. The Supremes have won eighteen consecutive games.

Billiard Notes

FIFTEEN players from the Chicago district and five from other districts of the Illinois Billiard association will compete in the state amateur balkline championship. The Chicago men will play a round robin tournament to decide the winner here and the outside players will compete at Peoria. The two survivors will meet during the annual convention of the state association at Chicago May 3.

* *

J. H. Levis [200] and Mayne [100] are leading in the Class B balkline tournament at Mussey's, each with four wins. Holt [200] is third with four wins and one loss, while Barrett and Ewing have won two and lost two.

* *

Jim Shea moved into a tie for first place with Auguie Kieckhefer in the Chicago league last week, each having ten wins and four losses. Klatcher is third with nine wins and four losses and the Morin-Kenney combination fourth with ten wins and five defeats.

BRITTON TO FACE STIFF OPPONENT IN KENOSHA RING

Another champion will perform in our midst Wednesday when Jack Britton, kingpin of the welterweights, clashes with Dennis O'Keefe in a ten round bout at Kenosha. This bout should be an interesting one, made so principally because the Irondale fellow has practically jumped into prominence in one fight.

O'Keefe was thought to be up against it when matched with Eddie Fitzsimmons of New York recently, but he sprung a sensational upset by walloping the hard hitting Eddie to the canvas a couple of times and earning the decision by a wide margin.

Britton is a master hand at this game, even though he has passed his 35th milestone, and O'Keefe is certain to find the going tough. Britton has another bout arranged for May 10, which will see the two champs in action. He is to box Mike O'Dowd, middleweight titleholder, 12 rounds at Canton, O.

The Kenosha show will be run by John Wagner of Racine and tickets are on sale at 4 North Clark street.

OLYMPIAS MEET ST. LOUIS ELEVEN AT SOCCER TODAY

Semi-Final Tilt for Cup Is Billed Here.

For the first time since 1916, when the old Pullman Carbuilders met the famous Bethlehem Steel Works eleven, Chicago soccer fans will have an opportunity to witness a western semi-final match of the national cup competition this afternoon at Bricklayers park, Thirty-fifth street and Wentworth avenue. The contestants will be the Olympias of Chicago and Ben Millers of St. Louis.

Teams Wholly American.

Twenty-two American born players will line up against each other. Chicago's representatives in former years have been composed mostly of players who learned the game on foreign soil, but immigration practically at a standstill the last five years, the home-bred players have rapidly forged to the front.

The Ben Millers are one of the strongest aggregations that have visited Chicago in some years and only recently gave the Robins Dry Docks club, one of the leading eastern teams, a hard fight, losing 3 to 2.

Bring Former Navy Stars.

Three former members of the Great Lakes eleven wear the colors of the Mound City champs, namely: "Hap" Marre, Quinn and Rooney. Quinn is considered one of the best halfbacks in the country.

The teams will line up as follows:

Olympia.	Goal	Ben Millers.
Purdy	Right half	McGarry
Kratina	Right half	Shea
J. Gomorra	Left half	Murphy
Smith [Capt.]	Outside right	[Capt.] Quinn
F. Gomorra	Inside right	Reddou
Perch	Center	McHenry
		Rooney or Reidy
Kelly	Inside left	Dunn

United States Marine Corps School Has "Earn While You Learn" Courses

Hereafter young men enlisting in the Marine Corps will not only learn to be soldiers, but, if they wish, they may go regularly to school. After one, two, three or more years the Marine may be graduated as an expert automobile mechanic, chauffeur, plumber, or what not. Not only that, but the United States Government puts at his disposal its tremendous influence with employers in satisfactorily placing the U. S. Marine Corps Institute graduate in a well-paying job.

The young man who is facing the hard problem of making a living while working his way through high school, college or trade school should welcome the opportunity afforded by the Marine Corps Institute. By this plan he is not only enabled to gain the education he desires, but at the same time—

Lead a healthful, body-building outdoor life, receive free board, clothing, lodging and medical attendance—thus leaving his pay for "pocket money" or for a snug savings account.

To the average "red-blooded" young American, the Marine Corps, with its adventurous, carefree life, and its opportunity for travel by land and sea, at home and abroad, has always proved particularly alluring. When to these are added a chance of a good education—

Well, it makes a long apprenticeship at a trade, or weary hours at a night school, look rather unattractive by comparison.

The Marine Institute

The U. S. Marine Institute, which bids fair to become as famous as the Naval Academy at Annapolis, or the Military Academy at West Point, is already well under way at the Marine post at Quantico, Virginia.

Hundreds of young men are enrolled in courses that range from reading, writing and simple arithmetic to such subjects as higher mathematics and journalism.

If a man comes into the Marine Corps hardly able to sign his name, he can gain a grammar school education and continue to learn to the limit of his ability and the length of his enlistment. Among the courses open to the Marine are elementary and advanced English, mathematics in practically all its branches, French, Spanish, stenography and clerical work, automobile mechanics, horsemanship and care of horses in sickness and health, forestry, concrete and brick masonry, carpentry, electrical mechanics, plumbing, blacksmithing, house painting, band music, drafting, journalism, cooking and baking, etc., etc.

The instructors are not only competent teachers, but eminently practical men, and are selected for their proficiency regardless of their rank in the Marine Corps. For example, the teacher of Spanish is a corporal, who is a law graduate of a foreign university, and a former public school teacher. Many of the trade schools are in charge of instructors who are graduates of Annapolis, Massachusetts Tech., Stevens Institute, Colorado School of Mines, and other leading institutions. Others have received their training in such great industrial corporations as the General Electric Company, the Standard Oil Company, the Baldwin Locomotive Works, and so on.

All students enrolled in the Marine Institute courses receive their instruction on an average of three hours for five afternoons each week, all purely military training being confined to the morning hours. The evenings may be devoted to study, reading, or the various camp recreations, such as the free movie shows or the pool tables.

We hear a great deal about "college life," but it is extremely doubtful if any of our institutions of learning afford more opportunity for pleasant companionship with real good fellows than does the Marine Corps. For this branch of service attracts the sort of a man who has the makings of a "good fellow." Few colleges can offer any better facilities for baseball, football, boxing, swimming and other athletic sports—all under the direction of competent trainers and coaches. And no school, unless it is a military institution of the first rank, can approach the Marine Corps in giving a man that self-reliance, alertness and qualities of leadership which military training affords.

If you are even slightly interested, don't hesitate to call at a Marine Recruiting Office. You will not be urged to enlist, but you will be told the truth, and nothing but the truth, about the service. Send for booklet.

"Every improvement in the means of locomotion benefits mankind morally and intellectually, as well as materially."
Lord Macaulay

Just now it is but natural that there should be a great deal of interesting speculation as to the new product which Mr. Henry M. Leland, Mr. Wilfred C. Leland and their associates, are presently to place upon the American market.

The position of rank which these pioneer builders of fine automobiles have long held in the world of made things, has added a goodly measure of spirited interest to the undertaking.

It is gratifying to know that the general expectation has been that important refinements in modern methods of locomotion would naturally be involved in the announcement.

But immensely more gratifying to the Lincoln Motor Company is the certainty that that expectation will be justified.

ALMONDS

If all the people who have read our previous advertisements and those who are now reading this one were to wake up tomorrow morning and find themselves at Paso Robles, California, we seriously doubt if there would be an acre of desirable almond land in the entire Paso Robles district left unsold by sunset. For seeing is believing. And to see the almond orchards covering the hillsides—to drive through the country and watch the crews of men cultivating between the long, even rows with huge tractors, other crews pruning and otherwise caring for the trees—to note the wonderful growth of an almond orchard year by year (from little more than a twig as thick as your thumb when set out, to a bearing tree when 4½ years old)—to see these things and then to realize that every pound of paper shell almonds marketed from this district last fall sold for 30c to 32½c, is enough to convince the most skeptical that almond growing is bound soon to become one of the biggest, most important and best paying industries in the entire state.

You will not wake up in Paso Robles tomorrow morning. Therefore, you cannot verify with your eyes the true facts of the wonderful work we are doing in almond orchard development. But you can—and should—do the next best thing—or three things, rather:

1. Send for our beautifully illustrated book, "A Life Income Plus California," which tells the whole story of our remrakable co-operative plan.

2. Call at our office in the Lytton Building at any time, day or evening, that suits your convenience and talk the proposition over with us. Let us show you letters from people who have gone to Paso Robles with the "I've got to see it before I'll believe it" thought uppermost in their minds, who have, in many cases, bought two and three times as many acres as they had originally intended.

3. Attend the FREE illustrated lecture at Lypn & Healy Hall, 64 E. Jackson Blvd., tomorrow (Monday) evening.

Mr. Nehrhood, who is now in the city, will gladly answer any question you wish to ask him.

Do one or all three of these things—sure—and get all the facts.

A net income of from $2,500 to $3,000 a year is a very reasonable expectation from an 8½ year old 10-acre almond orchard.

"But," you ask, "what reasonable assurance can you give that an almond orchard in the Paso Robles district will produce $250 to $300 an acre net profit?"

We give you the assurance of past and present performances—of proved records of the profits almond growers in the Paso Robles district have made and are now making.

To figure the profits from anything that comes from the soil you've simply got to go back to the basic law of supply and demand.

Almond Supply: California produces practically all (99%) of the almonds grown in this country. Yet the total production supplies only 15% of the domestic demand. We import the other 85%. According to a late consular report we import $15,000,000 worth of almonds (mostly shelled) every year.

Almond Demand: Today almonds are used in many ways that were not thought of a few years ago. Think of the many confections in which they are used—of the large quantities of almond meal made every year—all in addition to their ever increasing demand as a choice table nut. Experts say that if every available acre of desirable almond land in California were planted to almonds we would still be unable to supply the domestic demand.

To each 10-acre tract we plant 700 sturdy, pedigreed almond trees. At 8½ years a conservative yield is 20 pounds per tree. In 1918 the price was 25c per pound. But last year (1919) with a far greater production, the price was 30c to 32½c per pound.

Now just figure the very moderate yield of only 20 pounds per tree and multiply that by the 700 trees comprising a 10-acre orchard — a total of 14,000 pounds—at last year's lowest price (30c)—and see what the returns actually are—$4,200! Allow $50.00 an acre for EVERY POSSIBLE expense of cultivating, pruning and otherwise caring for the orchard, harvesting and marketing the crop, and deduct this $500 from the 10-acre yield, and there still remains a net profit of $3,700.

Never Before An Opportunity Like This!

You know that California has piled up fortune after fortune from her soil, her gold mines and oil wells. Perhaps you have dreamed of some day making your own home in California and are saving your money with that end in view.

If such is the case you are not saving in vain, for California today offers a far better opportunity for big dividends on a small investment than ever before in the state's history. And it is doubtful if a like opportunity ever presents itself again—for the reason that good almond land is scarce and it is being rapidly taken up by far-seeing investors.

The men who blazed the trail and opened the eyes of the world to California's true greatness, dug into her mountain sides with pick and shovel for gold—and found it. They bored into her depths for oil—and found it. They put hand to plow and turned the sod and planted seeds of every kind—and California's wonderful combination of soil and climate did the rest.

You do not need to do any of these things. There is no experimental stage for you to pass through. In charge of our field work is a man who in horticultural pursuits is known from one end of California to the other—Mr. G. A. Nehrhood. After years of practical experience in growing different kinds of orchards he found that almonds were the surest, all around, best paying crop that can be grown in California.

Our Officers and Directors Backed Their Judgment With Their Own Money Mr. Nehrhood, as well as the other officers and directors of our Association, have invested large sums in Almond Orchards in the Paso Robles district. Mr. Nehrhood picked the land. He is one of the best soil expers in California. In the Paso Robles district he found certain sections the soil of which was ideally adapted to almond growing—what is known as sea marl adobe. This soil is rich in lime and potash and needs no fertilizers. It is spongy—holds water throughout the driest of dry seasons. Hence no irrigation is required.

When almond trees have been planted in this soil at the proper elevation and have been given proper care, there has not been an almond crop failure in this section for 35 years.

We Do All the Work—Your Crops Pay Half the Cost You do not need to know the first thing about almond growing in order to engage in this thriving California industry.

We plant and care for your trees until they come into full bearing and then harvest your crops—this for any term of years you may desire such service.

You pay nothing extra for the trees, the planting or the care of the orchard for four years, after which, if you so wish, we will continue the service for merely a nominal charge.

You pay only half the purchase price in cash. We will accept payment for the balance out of the crops from your orchard. This means that we must bring your orchard up to a profit-making basis before we are fully paid for it.

Easy Monthly Payment Plan To acquire one of these orchards you should be prepared to set aside $25 a month from your income. If you can do this you can own a Paso Robles Almond Orchard and look ahead to an income which will support a family and be a safeguard to your old age.

Act Now! We wish to impress upon you the vital importance of making an early reservation in order to secure a planting for this coming season. We were forced to decline many contracts for planting last season simply because our trees and acreage for that season were contracted for fully a month before the time we had set as the closing date. Hundreds were disappointed. Therefore, we urge your prompt investigation.

How Your Interests Are Absolutely Safeguarded We have created a trust fund for the express purpose of developing these orchard tracts, and which can be used for no other purpose. This fund is held in trust by one of the largest trust companies on the Pacific Coast. Money for development purposes can be paid out only on properly receipted bills and vouchers. Moreover, this trust company holds the title to our almond land holdings, and upon the buyer's completion of his contract with us the trust company delivers to him the deed and title to his property.

Our Money-Back Guarantee If you make a trip of investigation to Paso Robles—and we allow you 30 days in which to investigate—and do not find everything just as represented in our book, we will refund to you any payment you have made, together with your railroad and Pullman fares. This same offer holds good if, instead of going yourself, you have a representative make the trip of investigation.

Come to Our Exhibit

901-906 Lytton Building,
9 A. M. to 6 P. M.

Open Monday, Wednesday and Saturday Evenings or Any Evening by Special Appointment. Phone Harrison 8620 for Special Appointment.

Here we have a magnificent collection of enlarged and colored photographs showing Paso Robles Almond Orchards in all stages of development. We want to explain our entire plan to you—why 10 acres is enough for independence for life—how easily you can obtain one or more of these tracts on small monthly payments—how we select, plant, care for and bring your trees into bearing without a cent of cost to you. We want you to meet the officers of our company and convince yourself that you are dealing with honorable, high-minded men who under no circumstances would lend their names and influence to any enterprise of a doubtful character. Be sure to come any day or evening this week that suits your convenience. Let's get together and talk it over.

SPECIAL—Meet Mr. Nehrhood at the Free Lecture, Lyon & Healy Hall, 64 East Jackson Boulevard, Monday Evening, April 5th, at 8 o'Clock

Mr. Nehrhood, our Field Manager, has just come from Paso Robles. He says that he has never seen the almond orchards in a more flourishing condition—that the young almonds are hanging on the trees as thick as bees around a hive. By all means hear this wonderfully interesting and instructive lecture on California and the almond industry. See the colored lantern slides showing beautiful pictures of California's magnificent scenery, cities, cement highways, flower gardens and the ALMOND ORCHARDS as they are planted and cared for by our Association. Come EARLY—a few minutes before 8 o'clock if possible — to make sure of getting a good seat. You'll enjoy this lecture—you will want to hear what Mr. Nehrhood has to say. So be sure to come. No charge for admission.

ART MISSIONERS BRING GOSPEL OF BEAUTY TO HOMES

Diplomats of Institute Serve Whole Nation.

Shall the carpet be a woolen flower bed or a rational, restful floor covering?

Shall the mantelpiece be a what-not or a serene point in the decorative scheme on which the eye may rest undistracted by clutter?

So much can be done with so little; so much may be spoiled by too much. What can you safely send to the attic?

Do you think varnish indispensable to insure "class" in the scheme of home decoration? We think there are other ways.

Ask us! Ask us!

THE ART INSTITUTE.

BY EYE WITNESS.

One million and forty thousand persons went to and worked at the Art institute last year, not counting the persons the Art institute went to and worked with in twenty-four North American cities.

Wherever you are—at a state fair, or out in front of Barlow Brothers' Furniture emporium in a Mississippi river town, or in the reading room of the new chamber of commerce at Far Cry—the Chicago Art institute is ready to buttonhole you for a talk on home decoration, beginning with the proposition that much may be accomplished by starting to undecorate.

Missionaries of Art.

Every seven days the Art institute sends far afield a little band of missioners who carry, not Bibles, but a ton—just a ton—of paintings, draperies, collapsible interiors, doors, windows and mantelpieces.

One week you may find them in Terre Haute, Ind.; the next in Tulsa, Okla. They have been as far north as Winnipeg, and as far south as Little Rock.

They take no fees and seek not this world's goods but the good of this world.

They are colporteurs of a discreet culture and the preachers of art for every day and for every room in the house. Their gospel is the gospel of good taste and they spread through farm, hamlet and county seat the serene tidings of reticence in decoration.

They would uproot plush, and wipe away the shiny varnish from the abode of untutored well-to-do-ness, and drive out clutter. They bring not fire to destroy, but a tongue softly to persuade to the elimination of knick knacks and nonsense and nonessentials.

"We'll Show You," Their Policy.

Sometimes before the eyes of unbelievers they build up with their own materials—all disharmonized and overloaded and clashing—an American "parlor" that duplicates in so far as may be all the dire clutter and the red plush and the brittle gilt of the era of Hayes & Wheeler, plus certain "home hints" from Aunt Lily's column in the current ten-center.

Having done their damdest along those lines, the preachers then remark, "Now what is the matter with this room? What's wrong about it? Let's see. Shall we take this away?"

Then they eliminate, rearrange, harmonize, correct lines, open up wall spaces, simplify the color scheme, modify the tones, and show how much more gracious a thing in a given space is one good print that is what it pretends to be than are three counterfeiters in raw colors.

Briefly but tellingly, new effects are created with the rugs, with the lamp, with the furniture, and the urge is all toward simplicity and uncluttered grouping.

An Eye Opening Squad.

Many a purblind eye is cleared. Many hear the message. Many are plucked from plush.

The exhibition and the demonstration and the lectures go on for five or six days, invariably to increasing crowds and with increasing publicity in the local paper.

Then the chamber of commerce, or the civic association, or the enterprising daily, or the leading furniture store—but seldom the art club—in another town writes in to the heads of the Art institute in Chicago for a similar exhibition, and the missioners, headed by the unreverend Brother Ross Crane, or by his newly appointed assistants, Hunt Cook and H. D. Hemenway, pack up their goods and move on. To some towns they have had to go two or three times to satisfy the demand. They go to colleges, to state fairs. Today they are dated ahead into next February. Late summer and early autumn will take them to state fairs.

Help Out 75 Cities.

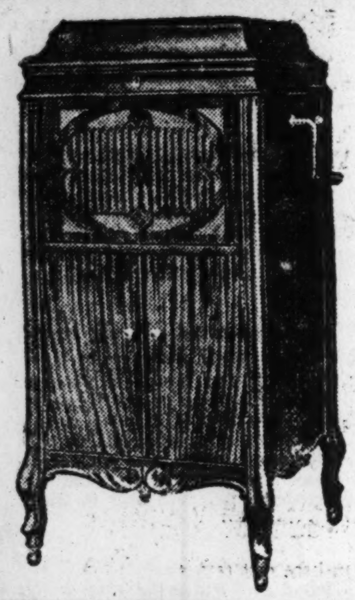
The Art institute makes no money out of these exhibitions. The towns pay the bare expense of them, which runs to about $700 for a week's show. Sometimes it is the Own Your Own Home association in a town that fathers the show and pays the bill.

The Art institute launched this service three years ago. Since then it has sent the missioners with their one ton equipment of paintings, furnishings, and walls to seventy-five cities. The annual report on all institute activities, issued yesterday, indicated that this missionary art service should and would be enlarged. The people want it.

SORORITY SELECTS GUDRUN M. HELVIG AS NEW PRESIDENT

GUDRUN HELVIG.
[Mabel Sykes Photo.]

The Delta Upsilon Kappa sorority has elected as its new president Miss Gudrun M. Helvig, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Helvig of 4307 North Spaulding avenue. Miss Helvig was graduated from the Carl Schurz high school of Chicago, where she was a leader in social and athletic activities. The election at which she was chosen president was held last week at the home of Miss Dorothy Anda of 4318 Keystone avenue.



Brunswick
PHONOGRAPHS AND RECORDS

Method of Reproduction

THE story of the Brunswick Method of Reproduction is, to Music Lovers, the sweetest story ever told. For, it is the story of True Music. That method is the right application of musical and acoustical laws and accomplished by means of the Ultona and the Tone Amplifier.

The ULTONA—plays all records truer, finer, sweeter. It is not a makeshift contrivance but involves a genuine principle of sound. A slight turn of the hand presents the right needle, diaphragm and weight for playing any record.

The TONE AMPLIFIER—is an oval shaped vibrant tone chamber. Like the sounding board of a fine piano or violin it is made entirely of wood and free from metal. Thus it gives the requisite tonal volume and eliminates all harsh, thin, metallic sounds. It meets all advanced acoustical and musical laws.

A Great Real Estate Offer!

"BUY YOUR FUTURE HOMESITE NOW!

You must prepare for your future independence in your own home. Rents, probably, will not be reduced for years."

This is a repetition of the heading of an advertisement which we ran in The Tribune about ten days ago, and as a result we entirely sold out a tract of land which compares very favorably with the property we are about to offer.

Do you realize the meaning of this heading and that this is really the opportune time to secure your future homesite? Imagine these prices:

Half-Acres, constituting FOUR 30-foot lots, for . . . . ONLY $875.00

60 feet, constituting TWO 30-foot parcels, for . . . . ONLY $675.00

Business sites . . . . ONLY $300.00

TERMS OF SALE: 10% down and the balance in easy monthly payments; no interest for one year.

These beautiful parcels are all located on and near the third largest business thoroughfare in the city, outside of the Loop.

Just think of it, for the last twenty-five years this famous cross-town thoroughfare has been the pivot of real estate development and now in the face of the very few locations suitable for subdivision purposes, accessible to transportation anywhere in the city, we will offer lots in this tract at the above quoted prices.

This allotment is located on a high plateau, many feet above the lake level, and is already served by street car transportation, schools, churches, stores, etc.

To meet the present demand for business, home and industrial sites, thousands of lots in Chicago must be consumed in the near future. People who are foresighted enough to see this great demand for building sites now, should make a large percentage on small and large savings safely invested in well located property such as this.

This sale will take place next Sunday morning, April 11th, at 10:00 A. M., rain or shine. Whether you will be one of the fortunate possessors of one or more of these lots will depend upon how quickly you act. The last one of these few pieces should be sold within a few hours after the sale opens.

Refrigeration is revolutionized.
Ice is dethroned.

Ice today takes its place along with the livery horse, the spinning wheel, and the kerosene lamp. Under the searching rays of the progressive Twentieth Century stand instead the motor truck and passenger car, the thousand-needle spinning machine, the versatile powers of electricity and iceless refrigeration.

Gentlemen: The day of iceless refrigeration has arrived. You no longer can depend on ice. You waste money in this day of national and international conservation by using ice. You are in the grip of uncertain, unreliable, wasteful, expensive refrigeration and you will find yourself losing many dollars by continuing the use of ice for refrigeration.

Although plenty of ice was cut last winter, the price, instead of coming down, is more likely to go up. Labor costs are high. All other costs of doing business are prohibitive. Ice is no exception. The summer of 1920, therefore, finds thousands of market men, grocers, hotel keepers, apartment house owners, hospital and club managers, florists, home owners, and other users of ice installing mechanical refrigerating machines. And out of these thousands the great majority are installing

McCLELLAN Refrigerating Machines for Perfect Refrigeration

Refrigeration that will never fail them---that will never be depleted—that will always, unceasingly protect food and perishables and eliminate every trouble, worry, and uncertainty heretofore inseparable from the use of ice—that will produce perfect, worryless electric refrigeration at a cost far below ice refrigeration.

COMPARATIVE COST	Ice Bills Averaging Per Month	Average with McClellan Refrigeration Per Month
	$40 to $ 80	$10 to $20
	$80 to $150	$20 to $36

What Are You Going to Do? Continue Taking Losses, or Put Your Refrigerator on a Money Earning Basis?

The McClellan Refrigerating Machine permits you to control your expenses for refrigeration as definitely as you know, in advance, the amount of rent that you are going to pay.

The McClellan has a remarkable record of over five years of perfect service on all kinds of installations. It is made in six sizes to meet requirements. The cost depends on the kind and amount of equipment required.

You can purchase a McClellan on time and pay for it monthly instead of paying ice bills. Every McClellan is sold with our ironbound guarantee to give perfect satisfaction or money back.

No matter what your refrigeration problems may be, we can prove to you that the McClellan will save you money over the cost of your ice bills. Phone or send the coupon for further information.

RENTERS FRAME VOLLEY OF LAWS FOR PROFITEER

Will Ask for Legislation on New York Plan.

Plans to follow in the footsteps of New York tenants, who obtained the passage of anti-rent gouging bills, dooming the rent profiteers, were revealed last night by A. E. Jessurun, a director of the Chicago Tenants' Protective league.

The New York legislature passed twelve anti-high rent measures within ten minutes and Gov. Smith signed eleven at once, making them law.

One of the features enables a New York court to grant a stay of one year in summary proceedings for eviction. The bills also provide for repeal of the law which enables a person entitled to possession of the premises to recover from a holdover tenant a penalty of double the yearly rental, with damages. Other features make it a misdemeanor for a landlord to refuse to furnish heat, water, light, or elevator service to a tenant and give the court power to determine the rent due when a counter claim has been established.

Sees Battle Next Fall.

"The greatest fight is to come in Chicago next fall," said Mr. Jessurun. "Many cases which have come up this spring are being settled by arbitration, and many other tenants have signed oppressive leases.

"Our organization will be in its prime this summer and during that time we will endeavor to get the same kind of legislation in Illinois as the New York tenants obtained. The tenants whose leases expire in the fall will then be assured of a 100 per cent victory."

He will explain the New York laws at a massmeeting of tenants Wednesday evening in the Graeme Stewart school.

Judge Answers Tenants.

Objection to the statement of tenants in an apartment building at 5724-26 Drexel avenue to the effect he has given them brief notices to get out was made yesterday by Judge John R. Caverly, the owner. The tenants said they have been informed since that the structure is to be remodeled. The judge said:

"I have owned the building for ten years, and Mrs. E. W. Nye, whom the tenants name as one of the owners until her death last fall, simply was living in the building under an agreement with me that she was to have an apartment as long as she lived. Thomas J. Lappin, also named as an owner, who died last week, simply was my agent.

"I wished to remodel the building last fall. The tenants protested, claiming they objected to paying higher rents for an improved building. I told them I would remodel in the spring anyway, thus giving them plenty of notice. I also am giving a month's free rent to those who vacate before April 15 and half a month's rent to those getting out before April 30. The rent has been $47.50 a month, and, after the remodeling is done, at an expense of about $4,000, it will be $60. This is for seven room apartments. I don't think that is profiteering."

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

Today's Question.

Should congress enact a new sales tax law in order to pay the soldiers a bonus?

The Answers.

F. C. BARTELLE, 4636 St. Lawrence avenue, millinery business—Yes. The boys certainly deserve a big bonus. Some of them are nearly broke. It wouldn't take long to collect it, and I would pay an additional penny for my movie show at night.

MISS CARRIE SHARP, Evanston, a club manager—I believe the soldiers ought to have the best, but this country is overtaxed right now. If many more taxes are levied there will be a revolution. Anyway, if you paid the soldiers a bonus today they would wish another tomorrow.

HENRY L. KRUGER, 2662 Warren avenue, bank employé—Yes, they ought to have another bonus. Let congress enact a law, but when they get the money I would suggest that the bonus be paid in installments.

WILLIAM FOSS, 1912 North Crawford avenue, an ex-soldier—By all means. It wouldn't take long to collect enough money to pay the bonus, and we all know the soldiers need one.

MRS. A. RUGGLES, 4032 Michigan avenue, a housewife—I am strongly in favor of giving the men an additional bonus, but I believe the public has had enough sales taxes. Why not pay the bonus from the war appropriation or some fund already collected?

DEFENSE COST IN MILK TRIAL SHOWN $65,219

$47,950 Paid Deneen as Chief Counsel.

Exactly $65,219.73 was the cost of the defense of officials of the Milk Producers' asosciation acquitted last fall on charges of conspiracy. Locals in the organization have been called upon by W. J. Kittle, secretary, to pay this amount, it was learned yesterday.

Charles S. Deneen, chief counsel, received $47,950. For looking up the records of the jurors, the Frank Tyrrel Detective agency was paid $990.45. Saterly & Binns, court stenographers, received $6,470.34. The law firm of Lyle, Harrold, Hoover & Dewitt, were paid $2,290.83. Former Judge Cutting's bill was $500; and a like amount was received by Lessing Rosenthal. Testimony before the state public utilities commission cost $1,030.42.

$2,156 to Wisconsin Lawyers.

Thompson, Meyers, and Kerney, Wisconsin lawyers, received $2,156.53. John L. Fisher, also of Wisconsin, was paid $1,124. Harry Markheim received $260, and J. H. Burr, $71.90. Miscellaneous expenses during the trial were $965.46. An expert accountant was paid $375. Bondsmen were paid $144.80, and a messenger sent to Springfield was given $120.

Figures of the association's treasury show that up to the last accounting $26,455.08 had been left unpaid by the locals. The Huntley local is credited with having paid $1,084, the largest single amount. The locals having contributed between $700 and $850 are Pecatonica, Ill.; Janesville, Wis.; Whitewater, Wis.; and Clinton, Wis.

Seventy-four locals are charged with not having made any contribution. Among them are Aurora, Antioch, Algonquin, Belvidere, Crete, Kankakee, Lake Zurich, Hinckley, Libertyville, Wauconda, Round Lake, Willow Springs, and Zion City.

Indicted After Raid.

The case started when operatives from State's Attorney Hoyne's office conducted a raid on the offices of the association in Chicago on Sept. 21, 1917. Eight officials were indicted and after two years the trials were held, resulting in dismissal of the charges.

PLEA TO RETAIN FATHER M'CABE HERE IS DENIED

"The Very Rev. Francis X. McCabe, C. M. V., De Paul university, Chicago, report for duty St. Vincent's church, Kansas City, Mo., on Low Sunday, April 11, 1920. Request of parishioners and Chicago citizens for the rescinding of order of transfer duly considered by special provincial council, and refused."

Such was the burden of the message received by Father McCabe from his superior general, the Rev. Thomas Finney of St. Louis, Mo., and made public yesterday.

Father McCabe will leave Chicago on Friday or Saturday. He would make no comment on the order.

His successor, the Rev. Thomas F. le Van, will arrive in Chicago this week. He has been president of the St. Louis Preparatory seminary. Previously he was president of St. Vincent's college at Cape Girardeau, Mo., and prior to that head of St. Thomas Theological college, Denver, Col.

Not one English tailored garment in our store

No sir; the Johnnie Bull can certainly produce good fabrics----

But when it comes to real tailoring---give us Chicago made clothes---they're the best in the world, and that's no joke.

Every buyer of fine clothes knows very well that America is 'way ahead on tailoring.

Why talk $85 London coats when the finest all wool garments money can buy are here at $45 and $50.

We make 'em in our big shops; they're all wool and hand tailored real quality coats, at $35, $40, $45 and $50.

Suits, too, made like the coats and sold on our low rent, plain store plan—all extras removed (no fancy fixtures or floorwalkers). Stylish suits that fit—at $35, $40, $50 and $60.

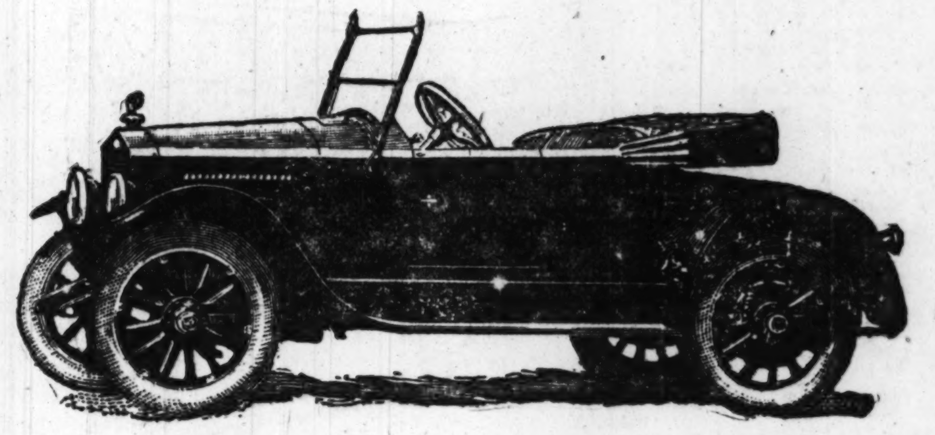
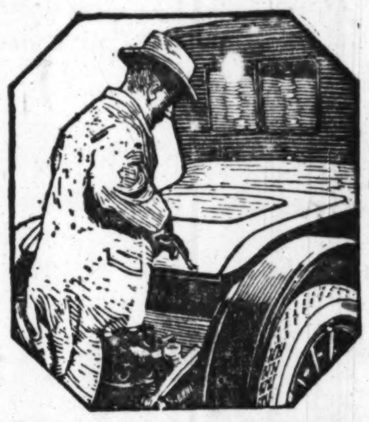
ESSEX MOTOR CARS

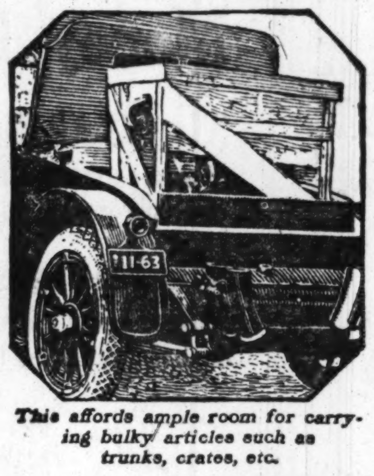


The Roadster, Too, Has All the Noted Essex Qualities

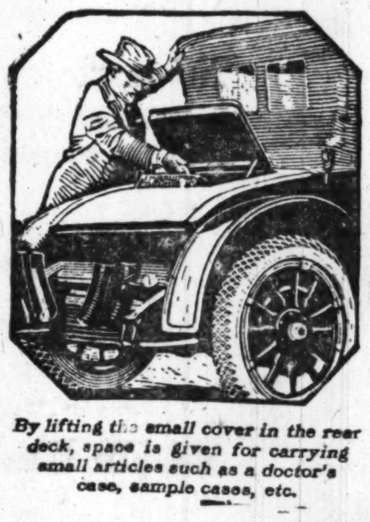
Speed—Power—Endurance—Economy—Utility.
It is an Ideal Car for Business as Well as Pleasure



By removing four screws the entire rear deck cover may be removed.



This affords ample room for carrying bulky articles such as trunks, crates, etc.



By lifting the small cover in the rear deck, space is given for carrying small articles such as a doctor's case, sample cases, etc.

A glance at the illustrations will show the wide business uses for which the Essex Roadster is adapted.

Its utilities are many. But note no evidence of them is revealed when the Roadster is used as a pleasure car. Every line is smart, trim and graceful. It takes but a moment to make the change.

A large class of its buyers are business men. They choose it for utility and dependable transportation. It becomes, in fact, a part of their business system. It must be on the job, keep all engagements on time, and be as responsible as an engineer's watch.

These same qualities, with its rare good looks, make the Roadster unsurpassed as a smart car for pleasure. Its speed and power rank it among the finest of costly cars. Its finish and beauty mark it with distinction.

A World Endurance Record Proves Essex Dependability

Economy, durability and train-like regularity are the standards set by Essex. These things have been shown in the hands of more than 25,000 owners, many of whom have driven their cars from 18,000 to 20,000 miles without a stroke of repairs.

It was more dramatically proved on the Cincinnati speedway when an Essex stock chassis set the world's long distance endurance record of 3,037 miles in 50 hours. The same car, in three separate tests, traveled 5,870 miles at an average speed above a mile a minute. Another stock Essex set the world's 24-hour road mark of 1,061 miles over snow-covered Iowa roads.

It is specially suited for salesmen, inspectors and others who must cover wide territory, quickly and frequently. Though not large, the Essex is commodious. There is plenty of room for passengers, and special arrangements for carrying sample cases, unseen, and even a trunk if desired.

See the Roadster's Business Conveniences

The size of the Essex makes parking space easy to find. It allows free handling in crowded traffic. The quick pick-up easily avoids "pocketing" behind slow cars.

Come see the Essex Roadster. Ride in it. Try its paces. Whether you want it for business or pleasure, you will appreciate why Essex in its first year set a new world's sales record. And you will understand why it is necessary to place orders in advance to secure such a wanted car, without waiting.

A DOLLAR WILL KEEP A VIENNESE FAMILY A WEEK

City Folk There Beg Food from Farmers.

One American dollar—because of the rate of exchange—will enable a family of four in Vienna, Austria, to subsist a week.

Such is the appeal of Franz Karl Buezek, a compositor in the government printing office in Vienna, for American charity for the Viennese through the American relief administration at 115 Broadway, New York.

Franz's letter is only one of scores which reach THE TRIBUNE asking for the most paltry donations to keep Viennese families from starving.

"Besides myself I have a wife and two children dependent upon me," wrote Buezek. "My salary is 255 kronen a week, which would about equal an American dollar at present rate of exchange. I humbly beg of you to help me in the name of my wife and children."

City Folk Beg from Farmers.

Hans Wagner of Linz sends a pen picture of conditions in the smaller cities, hoping to illustrate the difficulty in getting food in Austria at any price. He tells how hundreds of city folk go into the country to beg food from the few farmers who have a bit to spare.

"Few trains are running and one must be at the station at 4 a. m., and if luck is with us one may get a ticket after five hours of waiting," he writes. "At last, after much crowding, we are finally jammed in. Then the conductor often appears and announces that because of the lack of coal the train will not run.

"If one is fortunate enough to get away there is a three to five hours' walk upon arriving in the country to find a landowner or peasant who is willing to give up a portion of his supplies.

"How happily the children's eyes light up when, after a long and weary day, the mother or father finally returns at night with perhaps a kilogram of potatoes, a pound of apples, or a pound of butter.

$2.75 for 30 Days' Work.

"Our little state will probably die of starvation if relief does not come soon from the one and only place where relief can come.

"A monthly income of 1,000 crowns is actually but $5. Thus my salary in American money amounts to $2.50 to $3. I work for thirty days and get about $2.75. Two pounds of butter cost me 80 crowns. A noon meal is 20 to 25 crowns. If a few people would collect $40 or $50 and send it to an Austrian, he would have a fortune amounting to about 10,000 crowns."

'More and Better Papers,' Burroughs' Advice at 83

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., April 3.—John Burroughs, famous naturalist, gave a new message to the world today, his eighty-third birthday, which he is celebrating at his Yama farm, near Napanoch, Ulster county, the home of his friend, Frank Seaman. It is, "keep cheerful and get out more and better newspapers, that the world may be benefited."

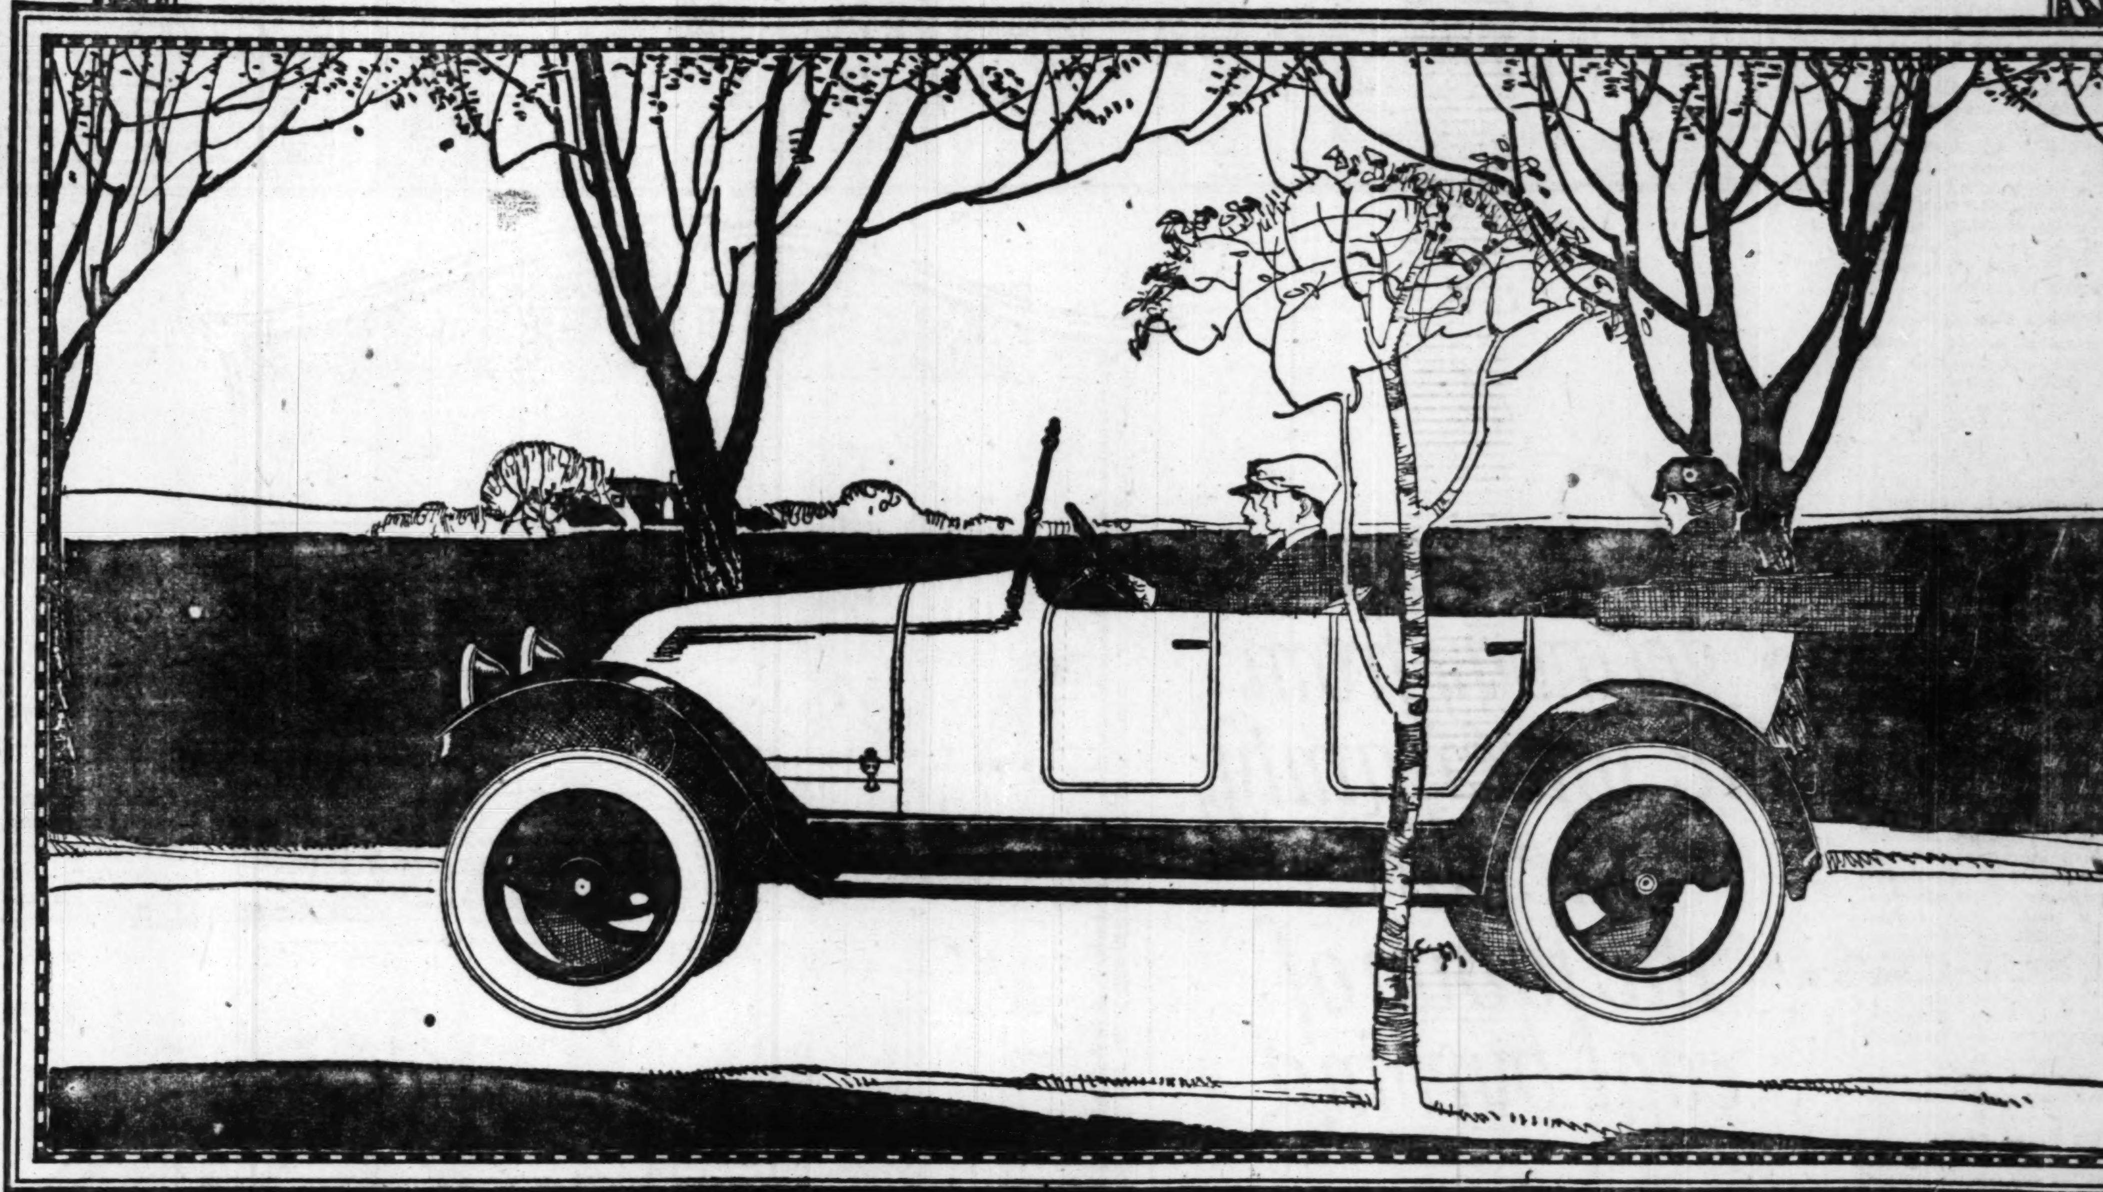
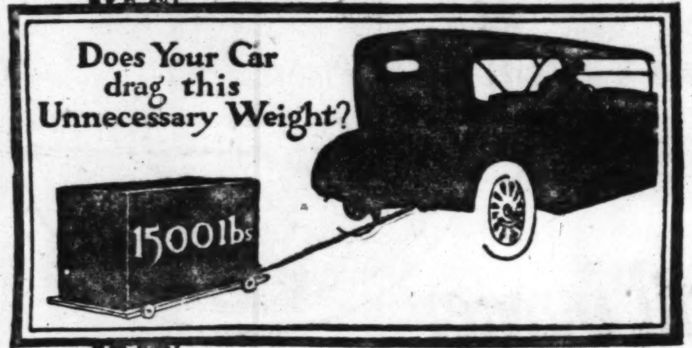
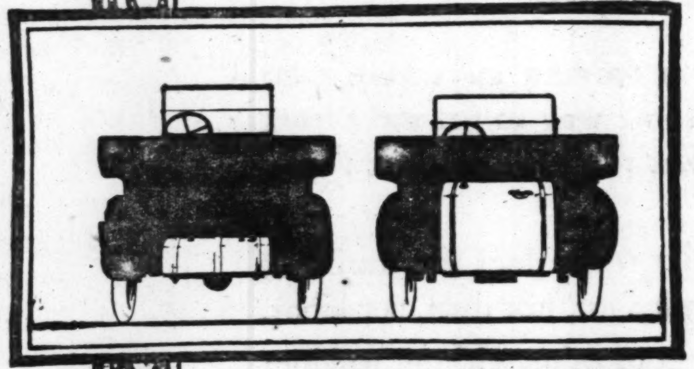
THE FRANKLIN CAR



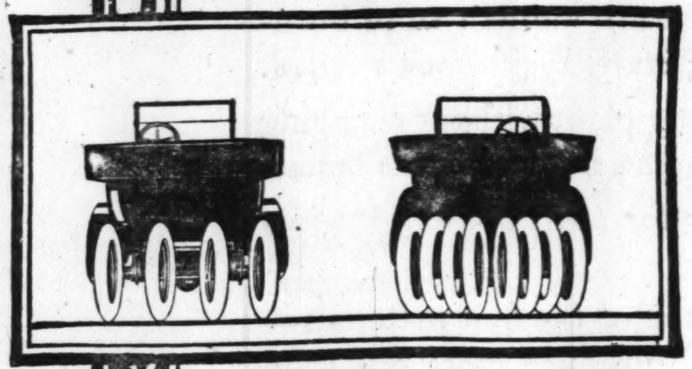


Does Your Car drag this Unnecessary Weight?
1500 lbs

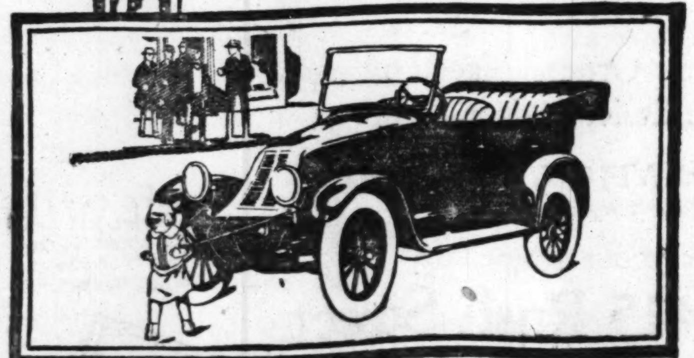
Most fine cars in America are literally dragging around 1500 pounds of unnecessary weight.



The average heavy and rigid car would require a cumbersome gasoline tank twice the size of the Franklin's, to go the same distance with one filling.



The heavy and rigid car needs twice as many tires as the Light Weight Franklin to go the same distance.



This actually happened in Detroit. The Franklin is easy to move—hence requires less fuel to move it.

The Light Weight and the Flexibility of the Franklin Car Enable It to Give Better Results at Less Cost

20 miles to the gallon of gasoline
12,500 miles to the set of tires
50% slower yearly depreciation
(National Averages)

TO FRANKLIN OWNERS there is nothing remarkable about these results, because they are based on owners' figures. And the figures are no more unusual to one who knows the Franklin Car than these facts of its road-ability:

New York to Boston and return (458.8 miles) in 12 hours, 5 minutes—
Indianapolis to Syracuse and beyond (832.6 miles) in 22½ hours—
Cincinnati to Cleveland and return (553 miles) in 15 hours, 45 minutes—
Boston to Syracuse and return (693 miles) in 24 hours, 20 minutes. Woman driver—
New York to Montreal (398 miles) in 9 hours, 59 minutes—
Waterloo, Ia., non-stop, dirt road record (865.4 miles) in 24 hours.

Opposes Technical Trend in Public Schools.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

Springfield, Ill., April 3.—[Special.]—Union labor has some ideas on taxes and schools it desires placed in the new constitution in addition to its fundamental demands of the right to organize, strike, collect and distribute strike benefits, and select its own representatives. The union labor program proper has heretofore been detailed in THE TRIBUNE.

Charles B. Stillman, chairman of the committee on schools of the State Federation of Labor[is expected to present the organization's school plan this week, probably on Wednesday, when labor is scheduled for a field day. Samuel Gompers was invited to be the headliner, but he wired President Woodward today that he cannot come until April 14. It is assumed he will be given a hearing on that date.

Fight Technical Education.

The con con committee on schools has all but agreed upon changing the purpose of the public schools. They propose that the children of Illinois shall be given such an education as will make them "useful and self-supporting citizens." To this, which is thought to grant much broader power than is now conferred by the basic law, the labor federation and the teachers' association are in opposition.

The former's petition reads: "Resolved, that we insist that section 1 of article 8 of the present constitution be retained just as it is." This section reads: "The general assembly shall provide a thorough and efficient system of free schools whereby all children of this state may receive a good common education."

As to School Income.

Labor also wants sections 2 and 3 of the old constitution reapproved. They provide for the faithful application of school income and prohibit use of school funds for sectarian purposes.

Another labor idea of the school program is an amendment of the constitution so that a teacher may obtain royalties in this state on books he or she writes, although the petition to be presented is so worded that a school officer could not be interested in a school contract. The Chicago Woman's club favors labor's idea on teachers' royalties.

The labor federation further asks that the constitution permit the appointment, if later deemed desirable, of the county superintendent of schools. This is opposed by a number of delegates on the con con committee on education.

On taxation the petition recommends "the liberal, ungrudging reorganization and increase of school revenues as the only basis for the expansion of our schools. England and France, with the resources strained by the last four years, have made huge increases in the appropriations for their schools. Surely the people who gave the world the conception of free, democratic education must not longer loiter behind."

SENATE O. K.'S ACT TO END GAMBLING IN STOCK MARKET

Washington, D. C., April 3.—The administration measure under which the federal reserve board hopes to effectually check speculation was passed today by the senate and now goes to the president.

Under the bill, discount rates at each of the twelve reserve banks, with the "approval, review, and determination of the federal reserve board, may be graduated or progressed on the basis of amount of advances and discount accommodations extended by the federal reserve bank to the borrowing bank."

Enactment of this measure as an amendment to the federal reserve law was recommended by Gov. Harding of the federal reserve board in his annual report.

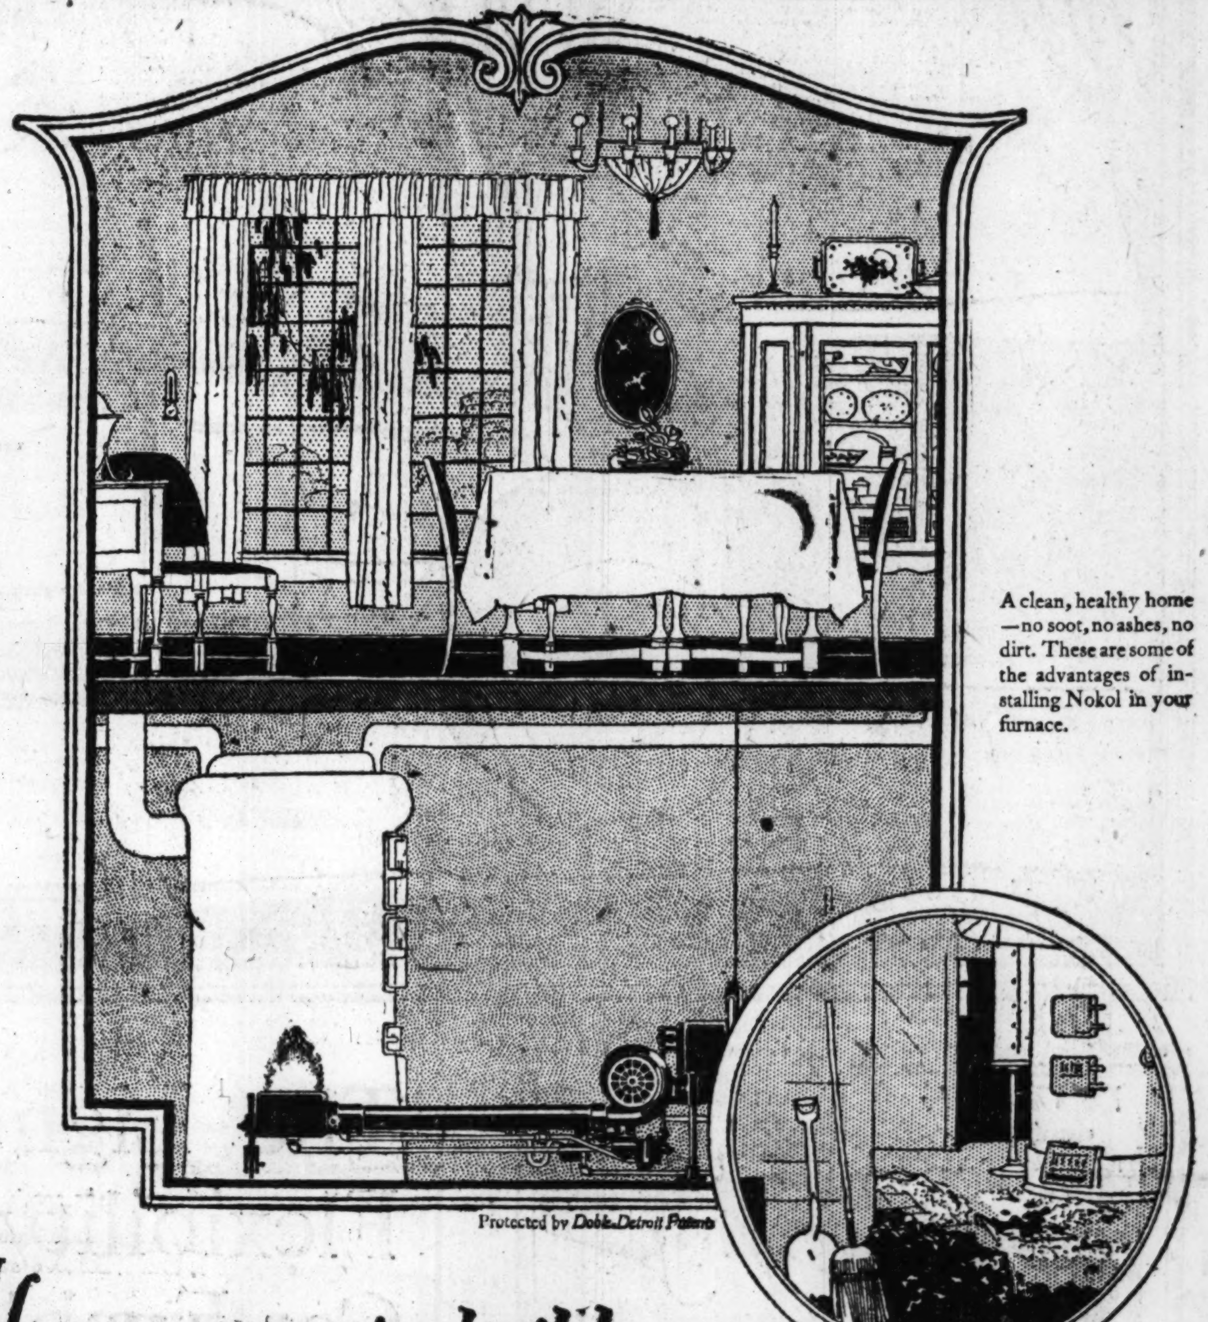
You can get away from the uncertainty, the dirt, the labor of coal-burning



A clean, healthy home—no soot, no ashes, no dirt. These are some of the advantages of installing Nokol in your furnace.

Protected by Dobb-Detroit Patents

You can't get away from dirt, soot and ashes as long as you burn coal.

Does your wife tend the furnace in the daytime and when you are out of town?

When you burn coal you must carry out the ashes. Nokol burns oil—no ashes, no soot, no dirt.

You know that coal dust ruins the wall-paper—is the cause of most house-cleaning—Nokol leaves no soot or dust; so wall-paper will last twice as long.

Here's a practical oil burner for your furnace

THERE isn't a man or a woman anywhere who doesn't wish there were some way to get away from burning coal. We all feel that way; we all know why we feel that way.

We have an oil burner here that really does the business; no dirt, no ashes; no smoke nor soot, nor dust, nor labor.

It burns oil; clean, safely, without odor, without residue; a white-hot flame. A thermostat upstairs controls it automatically; burns when heat is wanted; stops burning when the house is warm; starts again when needed.

It can be put into any heating plant without changing the furnace. It is proving a success in hundreds of homes. Fill out the coupon below for our booklet. It gives complete information.

Nokol is carefully constructed of the best materials—built to last for years. It will produce more real solid comfort than any investment in health and comfort you ever made.

Price, $325, f. o. b. Chicago. Orders placed now for Nokol will secure favorable delivery date.

THE SEASON'S SENSATIONAL SUCCESS

CASH OATS $1.02; SET NEW RECORD FOR THE TRADE

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Oats sold at the highest prices on record, $1.02 for No. 1 white, and other grains brought new high figures for the season, with shorts the principal buyers. Prospects of unsettled weather and a railroad tieup, owing to the strike of the switchmen, were leading factors. Closing prices were at nearly the top, with gains of 2½@4⅛c on corn, ⅛@1½c on oats, 3@3¼c on rye, and 2¾c on barley.

Grain prices were on the up grade all week, with corn 7½@8¼c higher, oats 2½@4c, May rye 11½c, and barley 7½c. Provisions were irregular, with lard 50@60c, short ribs 17½@20c, and pork unchanged to 25c lower than a week ago.

Corn in New Ground.

Persistent covering by shorts found offerings light until May touched $1.63½. Selling at that figure and above on scale orders was heavy, but the close was at the top, $1.64, the highest figure since last July. Deferred deliveries sold at new high figures on the crop.

There was a lack of large orders on the buying side, the bulk of the trade being in small lots. Orders were hard to fill on either side without affecting prices materially. Local sentiment was mixed, with more disposition shown on the part of longs to take profits, believing the situation was strained.

News was bullish. Eastern roads have promised to furnish more cars for grain, while the western roads are threatened with a tieup due to labor troubles. Receipts are expected to be light for some time to come, as farmers are busy in the fields, and the rains over the west will put them somewhat behind in their work.

Record Price for Oats.

Highest prices on record are being paid for cash oats in the west, sales at Chicago being made as high as $1.02. There were sales at $1.00 and over in all markets except Omaha and Minneapolis. Futures advanced sharply to new high figures on the crop and closed at the top. Profit taking was readily absorbed. Seeding delayed by wet weather. Weekly forecast was for fair and warmer the latter part of the week.

All deliveries of rye sold at new high figures on the crop, but the best prices were not maintained, there being free selling that looked like for a leading Omaha bull. The seaboard bid 17½c over May, track Baltimore, and 6¼c over May c. i. f. Buffalo at outside markets.

Barley in good demand, with prices unchanged to 2c higher. Spot sales were at $1.36@1.68. Receipts, 17 cars.

Provisions Higher.

Higher prices for corn and hogs, with increased speculative buying and with the main selling coming from packers and longs, featured the provision trade. Prices advanced and closed at the top, with good gains.

The British commission is in the market for refined lard and has made large purchases at 20½@21c free on board New York the last few days. Shipments of lard and meats for the week were under last year's. Packing here since March 1 aggregates 511,000 hogs, or 146,000 less than last year's. Prices follow:

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

Shipping sales at Chicago Saturday were 110,000 bu oats, mainly for deferred shipment. Exporters bid $2.82 for No. 2 red or hrad winter wheat c. i. f. New York at outside markets. Rye bids were on a firm basis. Cash wheat was strong in all markets. Local receipts 9 cars.

Demand for cash wheat and corn was fairly active with prices 1@2c higher. Industries were the best buyers of corn, while outside markets took oats.

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

May corn at the top yesterday was up almost 40c from the low on Feb. 9 at the highest of the season. All other grains have had a big advance and there has been covering within the last week of the largest short interest known in several years, mostly for eastern account. Every one who has been short and stood out has suffered losses, as the technical situation was favored higher prices for two months. With the big covering yesterday by eastern houses there was heavy selling by local and outside longs who had big profits. It was said at the close that practically all the big longs were out and that the holdings had been passed to weaker hands.

It would be no surprise to see sharp fluctuations in all grains and higher prices for oats, as many in the trade see it, although a big break in corn might result in a setback in oats.

Board of Trade directors have petitioned congress immediately to take such action and pass such legislation as will be necessary to increase the $300,000,000 fund to be loaned the railroads to $600,000,000. They ask that the money be made available as soon as possible, as the deplorable state of equipment and motive power prevents free movement of foodstuffs to market.

A car of No. 1 white oats sold Saturday at $1.02, the highest price on record, while No. 3 white brought $1.00¼, both cars being sold by F. J. Dolan, with Lamson Bros. & Co.

STERLING RISES; POUND NOW ONLY 90 CTS. BELOW PAR

New York, April 3.—[Special.]—Sterling exchange was in good demand in the foreign exchange market today and rose 3½ cents to $3.96½, the highest level attained so far this year.

At this price the English pound is only about 90 cents below par value, which is $4.8665, and shows an advance of 77 cents from the low quotaion in February of his year.

Business in the other foreign exchanges was quiet; price changes were insignificant.

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, April 3.—Quiet prevailed today in the dry goods market. Cotton goods and yarns were steady, raw silk and dress goods quiet, and linens and burlaps firm.

MORE CARS FOR GRAIN

Western railroads are making a stronger effort to furnish cars for moving grain from the country to terminal markets.

An order is out for the Minneapolis roads to furnish thirty-five cars a day in addition to those created by unloading of other freight for the movement of grain and flour at Minneapolis.

The Rock Island is bringing up 1,000 or more cars from Texas, where they are not needed at this season, and solid train loads of fifty to sixty cars are leaving Fort Worth daily for Iowa and Illinois to move grain.

The Illinois Central is bringing box cars from Louisiana into Central Illinois for grain and the other roads are making extra effort, although they are only supplying 40 to 60 per cent of their orders for grain cars.

Eastern roads are expected to furnish 300 cars a day to western connections, but if they get 25 per cent of the total in the next ten days, they will be lucky. There are many empty cars on eastern lines, but scarcity of motive power prevents their movement.

Grain receipts at Chicago last week were only 3,520,000 bushels, a decrease of 400,000 bushels from the previous week, 164,000 bushels from last year, and were 1,350,000 bushels below the average.

WHY PAY HIGH RENTS?

Paying high rent is the same as throwing money away! You have nothing to show for your expenditure but a bunch of worthless rent receipts. Chicago is virtually bankrupt as far as homes are concerned and will be so for years to come. This means that you will continue to pay higher rents each year. There is just one answer.

"Own Your Own Home"

We can show you an easy way to start on the road to freedom from your landlord in our new subdivision in

Beautiful Beverly Hills on the Ridge

This property is between 95th Street and 99th Street. Two and one-half blocks from Beverly Hills' 95th Street station on the Rock Island Steam Road. Only thirty minutes from the Loop; 60 trains daily. Fare on monthly tickets 9½c.

40 AND 50 FOOT LOTS

Paved streets, cement sidewalk; water, sewer and gas are in and paid for. You will not have special assessments to worry about. Schools, churches and stores are conveniently near.

The improvements were made at the low pre-war prices, so that our lots are 40% lower than the surrounding property.

Terms: 10% Cash, 1% Monthly

After you have paid for your lot we will build and finance a home for you, allowing you to pay monthly as you now pay rent.

Now is the time to start. Come out today and see this wonderful offer.

Our representatives wearing blue badges will meet you at the La Salle Street Station, Van Buren and La Salle Streets, gate No. 6. Trains leave the La Salle Street Station at 9:45, 10:55, 2:35 and 3:32 o'clock; Englewood 15 minutes later.

Autos take Western Avenue to 95th Street; drive east to Hoyne Avenue.

FEDERAL RESERVE GETS $8,000,000, ITS FIRST LOAN

For the first time in its history the Chicago federal reserve bank was obliged last week to borrow of other federal reserve banks in order to maintain its reserve above legal requirements. Heretofore the Chicago institution had continually made loans. The weekly statement shows the bank indorsed and turned over to other reserve banks paper representing loans to the amount of $8,000,000, this being shown as a contingent liability. In addition the Chicago bank called in loans of $7,605,000 made to other reserve banks, as shown in the preceding weekly statement.

With these changes the Chicago bank barely maintained its legal reserve, reserves against note circulation after deducting 35 per cent against net deposits standing at 40.47 per cent, compared with 44.3 per cent in the preceding week, the legal requirement being 40 per cent. Reserves against combined note and deposit liabilities fell from 41.3 per cent in the preceding week to 38.74 per cent.

Blame Credit Expansion.

A continued wave of credit expansion and an incessant demand for money in the middle west were responsible for the poor showing. The member banks increased their borrowings by $26,000,000, the total borrowings mounting to $422,561,582, a new high record figure. The increase in loans represented entirely borrowings on other than government securities.

The reserve bank's total gold reserves declined $26,000,000, but total reserves declined only about $21,000,000. Federal reserve notes in circulation increased about $3,000,000.

New York Reserve Improves.

The New York federal reseve bank's statement showed marked improvement in its reserve position. This was due primarily to an increase of nearly $54,600,000 in gold holdings. The ratio of total reserves to deposit and note liabilities combined was 42.2 per cent, compared with 39.1 per cent in the precedng week, and the ratio of reserves to net deposits, after deducting 40 per cent gold reserves on note circulation, rose to 44.8 from 38 per cent.

The bank reduced its loans by about $104,000,000 and paid off all of its recent borrowings of $32,000,000 from other reserve banks. Net deposits declined $104,515,000 and note circulation increased $13,593,000 Holdings of treasuy certificates of indebtedness increased $57,486,000.

Status of 12 Reserve Banks.

The consolidated statement of the twelve federal reserve banks shows a slight improvement in reserves. The ratio of total reserves to net deposit and note liabilities combined was 42.9 per cent, compared with 42.7 per cent the preceding week, while the ratio of gold reserves to notes in circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net pedosit liabilities, was 47.4, compared with 47.1 per cent.

Gold reserves increased $15,500,000 and total reserves gained $23,273,000.

Loans declined $76,555,000, net deposits gained $1,365,000, notes in circulation increased $29,284,000, and holdings of treasury certificates of indebtedness increased $82,494,000.

New York Banks Gain.

The weekly statement of the New York associated banks made a rather indifferent showing. The chief feature was a large gain in deposits, this item increasing by $112,000,000. The continued demand for credit was reflected in a considerable expansion in loans, which increased $67,646,000. There was an increase of $5,240,000 in cash.

As a result of these changes the amount of excess reserve above legal requirements fell off about $10,000,000 from the figures of the preceding week, but still stood at nearly $22,000,000.

The figures follow:

SALES SHOW HUGE JUMP.

Evidence of the strong demand for merchandise is given in the reports of three Chicago concerns. March sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co. increased 63 per cent over March, 1919, and sales since Jan. 1 increased the same percentage over the same 1919 period. March sales of Montgomery Ward & Co. gained 41 per cent over March, 1919, and since Jan. 1 increased 43.4 per cent over the same 1919 period. March sales of Albert Pick & Co. gained 90 per cent over March, 1919, and for February and March combined sales were double the same 1919 period.

CHICAGO BANK CLEARINGS

Chicago bank clearings for last week showed a gain of $6,961,596 over the preceding week, and an increase of $135,222,429, or 26 per cent, over the corresponding week in 1919. Clearings last week were $645,624,055, compared with $638,662,459 for the preceding week and $519,401,626 for the corresponding week in 1919. Tax Exempt Bonds.

Tax exempt bonds are exceedingly popular just now while the taxpayer is struggling with the assessment blank and his conscience at the same time. If he lists nonexempt bonds a third of his income from them will be taken by the tax collector. If he does not list them his conscience may cause trouble. Tax exempt bonds offer the only escape from the unpleasant dilemma.

A dozen or so states exempt from taxation the bonds issued by themselves and by cities, school districts, and other political divisions of their territory. Illinois is not one of these states. If you hold a bond of Chicago which yields 4 per cent the law says you must report it for taxation and must pay the same rate on it that your neighbor pays on a flat building, which may yield 10 per cent.

There is a long list of bonds legally exempt from taxation in Illinois. Liberty bonds and all other direct obligations of the United States government need not be reported to the assessor. There are also nearly $300,000,000 of federal farm loan bonds and $55,000,000 of joint stock land bank bonds outstanding, all exempt from local taxation. Besides these large issues, there is a variety of bonds put out by the governments of Hawaii, Porto Rico, and the Philippine islands and their cities and other political divisions which are exempt from assessment. The District of Columbia has an issue of nearly $6,000,000 which is not taxable.

Exemptions of bonds under the federal income tax law are not the same as under the state laws. United States bonds issued before the war, also 3½ per cent Liberty bonds and 3¾ per cent Victory notes, are wholly exempt, as are farm loan bonds, including those issued by joint stock land banks. Bonds issued by states, territories, or insular possessions of the United States are exempt, also all the obligations of cities, counties, or other political divisions of states. Liberty 4s and 4¼s are wholly exempt when the owner has not more than $5,000 par value of them. If he has more than $5,000 he must pay the surtax on the income from bonds held in excess of that amount, subject, however, to the following exceptions:

Fourth Liberty loan bonds to the amount of $30,000 par value are exempt until two years after the end of the war.

Bonds of the first Liberty loan converted, of the second converted or unconverted, and of the third up to a total par value of $45,000 are exempt until two years after the end of the war, provided the total is not more than 150 per cent of the amount of fourth Liberty loan bonds originally subscribed for and still owned by the person claiming the exemption.

First Liberty loan bonds to the amount of $30,000 or less, converted into fourth loan, are exempt until two years after the end of the war.

Bonds of the first Liberty loan converted, of second Liberty loan converted and unconverted, and of the third and fourth Liberty loans up to a total par value of $30,000 are exempt for five years after the end of the war.

Bonds of issues listed in the preceding paragraph are exempt for five years after the war to the amount of $20,000, provided the total is not more than three times the amount of Victory loan notes originally subscribed for and still held by the person claiming the exemption.

The foregoing provisions make possible a total exemption of $155,000 in addition to the original $5,000.

Cotton, Cattle and Hogs

Three Great Sources of Income in the South

THE prosperity of the Southern farmer is built on a solid foundation and is not dependent on one single crop or branch of the farming industry. He does not put all his eggs in one basket.

The Southern farmer has a monopoly on cotton production, 60 per cent of the world's supply of cotton being raised in the States South of the historic Mason and Dixon line, worth, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, on the farm, $1,616,207,000.00.

As to the number and value of cattle and hogs on Southern farms on January 1, 1919, the Southern agriculturists were feeding 17,201,000 head of cattle (or more than one-fourth of the total number of cattle in the United States), valued at $739,647,000; 23,209,000 hogs (or about one-third of the hogs raised in the United States), valued at $386,446,000, were being fattened for the markets in the South. Large packing houses have been established as a result of this activity.

For 35 years we have operated in the South and kept in closest touch with conditions there. Our system of investigation in determining the actual value of the farm land insures a security of absolute safety.

FORMAN FARM MORTGAGE investments pay 6% to 6½% interest and may be had in denominations of $500 and up.

After a strong to 15c higher start the hog market closed generally 25c lower than opening quotations. Speculators were the principal buyers at the start, while the big packers held off until late in the day.

The Junction railroad switchmen went on strike, which kept eastern shippers out of the hog trade. A speculator paid $16.30 for 194 lb butchers, with $16.15 top to regulars. Day's average price at $15.20 was 20c lower than Friday and 50c higher than a week ago.

Closing cattle trade was active at the recent advance in values. Packers were the only buyers, paying as high as $14.25 for heavy steers. Sheep and lambs sold actively at strong prices, with wooled lambs as high as $20.50 and shorn stock at $17.25.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 27,000 cattle, 36,000 hogs, and 15,000 sheep, against 1,330 cattle, 2,074 hogs, and 9,744 sheep a week ago; 15,939 cattle, 41,864 hogs, and 19,972 sheep a year ago, and 24,902 cattle, 67,583 hogs, and 15,143 sheep on the corresponding Monday of 1918.

There is a wide difference of opinion regarding next Monday's probable run of hogs. W. S. Nicholson marked 52,000; Edward Morris, 50,000; F. W. Waddell, 45,000; E. R. Gentry, 43,000; F. R. Burrows, 42,000 W. H. Overman, 35,000, and H. O. Booth, 30,000.

MONUMENT TO SPEARMINT TO TOP CHICAGO

Wrigley Building to Soar 398 Feet Skyward.

BY AL CHASE.

Pretty nearly every one of us has paid our nickels and worked our jaws toward financing what will be Chicago's tallest building—to loom 398 feet above the plaza at the north end of the new Michigan boulevard bridge. And the strangest feature of this great cloud tickling monument to spearmint is that, although it will be on the most commanding site in the middle west for a wonderful electric display of the virtues of William Wrigley Jr.'s chicle sticks, there won't be an advertisement on the building.

When one realizes that Mr. Wrigley pays a good fraction of a million dollars annually just to let the mazdas flash the fame of his gum to Times Square passersby in Manhattan, his modesty and restraint in keeping snaky electric advertisements from luring the eye of the boulevardier in Chicago to his magnificent building is something to commend.

Wrigley—That's All.

This $3,000,000 structure, which Mr. Wrigley is striving to make the finest office building in the world, will have a simple brass plate at the main entrance on the plaza, with merely the words Wrigley building.

The main part of the Wrigley building will be only 210 feet high, no attempt having been made to change the plans because of the new height limit. It will face 135 feet on the north bridge plaza, 75 feet on the river, 88 feet on Rush street, and 155 feet on North Water street. It will cover an area of 11,496 square feet. On top of the sixteen stories will rise a 188 foot tower forty-two feet square. It will have four clock dials each twenty feet in diameter.

The crowning feature of the tower is to be a searchlight lantern nine feet in diameter, to be treated as the principal part in an illuminated effect which will disclose at night the silhouette and architectural forms of the tower design.

All Outside Offices.

All the elevators, stairways, stacks, pipes, and utilities will be in the center of the building, giving space for offices on all four sides of the building. There will also be approximately 1,200 square feet of office space on each floor in the tower.

By a fortunate jog the boulevard link moves far enough eastward as it crosses the river to make the Wrigley building tower appear to the spectator in Michigan avenue south of the river to stand in the middle of the boulevard.

Chicago's Tallest Building.

Work is now under way on the foundation caissons, and the building is expected to be ready by Jan. 1, 1921. The Wrigley company will then move their general offices from the Kesner building across the river and use three or four floors and part of the tower, the rest of the building, about 120,000 square feet, to be rented to various concerns. The architects are Graham, Anderson, Probst & White. B. M. Winston & Co. will be the renting agents of the building.

The Wrigley building will be the highest building in Chicago, but will surpass the Tower building, at Michigan and Madison, better known as the Montgomery Ward tower, designed by Richard E. Schmidt, by only three and a half feet, it being 394½ feet to the tip of the weather vane on the Tower building.

Forest Preserve Adds 281 Acres in Two Months

During the last two months—February and March—the forest preserve district purchased 281 acres for $77,748. The largest tract contained 120 acres and is in Proviso township, north of Western Springs and west of La Grange. It was bought from Herman Valberding for $35,000.

Three tracts northwest were purchased, one of 11.39 acres from Henry Schwartz for $1,745, another of thirty-three acres from J. Lanczyk for $9,900 and a third from M. J. Kosabucki for $11,000. All three are contiguous to other holdings of the preserve.

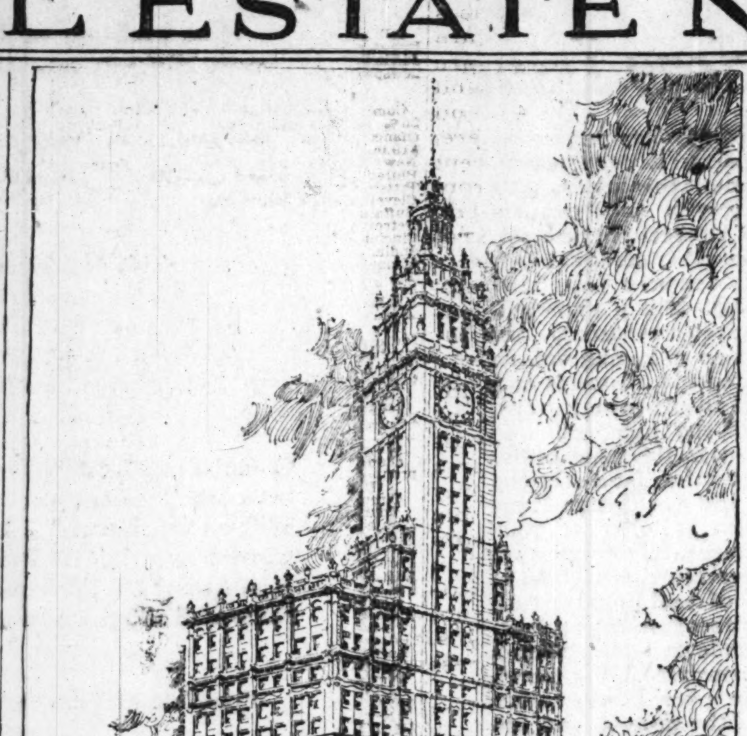
Southwest, in Palos township, twenty acres were bought from J. B. Walker for $9,128. This tract is half a mile south of Archer avenue and west of Kean avenue, where recently the forest preserve has greatly increased its holdings. West of this 48.7 acres, west of the town of Lemont and near the drainage canal, was purchased from the Western Stone company for $10,975.

Haverford Cycle Company Leases in Madison Street

The Haverford Cycle company of hiladelphia has sold the unexpired se on its quarters at 22 West Washgton street to the Economical Drug ompany for a cash bonus of $15,000. It also has leased from W. P. Adams the six story building, 40x175, at 222-24 West Madison street, now occupied by the Horrieton Market company, for fifteen years from May 1, at a term rental of $261,000. The building will be remodeled for use as bicycle and motorcycle salesrooms and for the company's general offices for the middle west. E. F. Keebler & Co. and Willoughby & Co. were brokers.

Ex-Chicago Banker Sells River Forest Residence

John J. Arnold, former vice president and general manager of the foreign department of the First National bank, and now affiliated with the Bank of Italy, San Francisco, has sold his brick and stucco residence at 341 Keystone avenue, River Forest, lot 160x229, to George W. Hayden to 538 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, for a reported $42,000 cash. Dunlop & Co. of Oak Park were brokers. Mr. Arnold and his family left for the coast on Thursday.



Looking north across the river from the plaza at the south end of the new two level bascule Michigan avenue bridge. The slight turn in the bridge to the east makes the new Wrigley building appear to stand directly in the middle of Michigan avenue.

Chicago to Be Sweetest Spot on Earth if Candy Boom Lasts

If Chicago doesn't watch out she'll wake up some day and find herself the sweetest spot on earth—that is, candyly speaking—for our local manufacturers of sweets are gumshoeing around buying sites for million dollar plants and starting work on others so quietly that few Chicagoans realize what a candy center we're fast becoming.

Mr. Bunte is so bashful about his tremendous plant—one of the biggest in the world—going up on Franklin boulevard that he won't think of having a picture of it in the papers, so we can't show you what it's like.

E. J. Brach Jr. of E. J. Brach & Sons (" pronounce it Brox ") is almost as sensitive about the growth of his candy company. Not until he was told that the transfers of property purchased by his company had been filed for record would he admit expansion plans.

Will Cost $1,000,000.

Here, in brief, is what was learned after long and tiresome cross-examination: E. J. Brach & Sons have purchased two city blocks a mile west of Garfield park, bounded by Ferdinand and Kinzie streets, Kilpatrick and Kenton avenues, and plan building next year a plant to cost approximately $1,000,000. The city will vacate Austin avenue between Kenton and Kilpatrick, giving the company a nine acre tract for future growth.

The new factory will be either four or six stories, with about 300,000 square feet of floor space, although no plans have yet been drawn. The company, which has been in operation fifteen years, now has four plants on the near north side with a total floor area of 350,000 square feet. Whether these will be abandoned has not yet been determined.

Good Transportation.

The new site is on the Belt Line and Northwestern railroad, one block from the Lake street "L" and the Cicero avenue surface cars.

Another Chicago confectionery concern—the Boston Biscuit company—with a three story plant at 514 Loomis street, is to build a three story addition, 54x125, to cost $100,000. The concern makes ice cream cones and candy.

MR. POTTHAST OF 10,000 BARREL FAME TO SELL NEAR BEER

Mr. Frederick Potthast, whose chief bid for fame before July 1 was his alleged record of selling 10,000 barrels of real beer every year over his basement bar at the northwest corner of State and Van Buren streets, which is said to be the greatest of any saloon in Chicago, has announced that he will continue to remain at the old stand for at least ten more years.

Yesterday he renewed his lease, through E. F. Keebler & Co., with the United Cigar Stores company, at a rental of $100,000 for the term. He will operate a near beer bar and a restaurant.

Another former loop real beer shop, Tuckhorn's, at 8 North Clark street, will fade away on May 1, to be supplanted by Goodwin's Novelty shop. The store has been leased through Keebler & Co. at an annual rental of $7,200.

Still another downtown wet goods emporium, the L shaped saloon in the Goddard building, at the southwest corner of Monroe and Wabash, is to become a drug store. A cancellation of the lease between David Mayer and the Consolidated Brewing company at $13,500 annually has been effected by the same brokers, and the store leased to Dick Wells for five years at an annual rental of $15,000.

The Best & Russell branch of the General Cigar Stores company has renewed its lease, through Keebler & Co., for the corner store in the same building, at an annual rental of $6,250 from May 1.

Former Yerkes Residence Site for $110,000 Building

The Murray-Van Sicklen company has purchased from the estate of Mary A. Yerkes the former residence of the late Charles T. Yerkes, for many years director of Chicago's traction destinies, at the southeast corner of Michigan avenue and Thirty-second street, 49x143, for an indicated $26,000. The company has started work on a two story $110,000 building to contain the general offices, sales rooms, and service station. The company is agent for the Prest-o-Lite and Union Carbide concerns. The Union Trust company has underwritten at $82,500 6 per cent bond issue, secured by the Murray-Van Sicklen property.

Motors Company Builds on Diversey Parkway

The Republic Flow Meters company has started work on a two story building at the northeast corner of Diversey parkway and Oakley avenue, which will double its present capacity. The Union Trust company has underwritten a $55,000 6 per cent loan on the property.

All Records Broken by Real Estate Transfers

Real estate transfers last week broke all previous records, totaling 2,026, aggregating $5,855,984, an increase of 808 deeds and $3,229,760 over the corresponding week last year.

MAJESTIC HOTEL AND HIPPODROME SOLD, $2,000,000

Great Northern Office Building in Deal.

A combination hotel, roof restaurant, theater, and office building, comprising the eighteen story Majestic hotel, the St. James grill atop it, the Great Northern Hippodrome, and the seventeen story Great Northern office building, was sold yesterday, together with the leasehold, for a reported $2,000,000.

The buyer is the Great Northern Majestic Building corporation, of which Andrew C. Thompson, formerly of Ladysmith, Wis., is the president and controlling interest. The seller is the Majestic Building company, owned by Washington Porter and the heirs of Nate Salsbury.

The leasehold is for 137 years at an annual rental of $43,000 for the first ninety-nine years, without revaluation. The land, fronting 100 feet on ackson boulevard and Quincy street, is 165 feet deep, and is owned by the Bradley, Dunham, and Sears estates.

Opened by Henry Miller.

The 1,400 seat playhouse between the hotel and office building was opened as the Great Northern theater in November, 1896, with Henry Miller in "Heartsease." It has fluctuated between high class legitimate, vaudeville, movies, popular priced legitimate, stock company, and art theater. It was for a time operated by the Shuberts as the Lyric theater. During the last few years it has been called the Hippodrome and played vaudeville.

The new owners say they intend to spend $50,000 in enlarging the auditorium and adding 500 seats. The present annual rental is said to be $40,000, but with a one year cancellation clause in the lease, and, theater managers rushing around the loop looking for available playhouses, it is possible this will be taken over by the Shuberts again.

Will Remodel Majestic Hotel.

The Majestic hotel, with 200 rooms, has been leased for fifteen years from May 1, at a net annual rental of $55,000 to W. E. Bayfield. He will spend $25,000 in alterations. Mr. Bayfield will take over the St. James grill when its lease expires May 1, 1921, and completely remodel it and also rename it.

The Century Trust and Savings bank has underwritten an $800,000 first mortgage 6 per cent bond issue on the entire property.

NEAR MOVIN' DAY FOR THE CHICAGO REALTY BOARD

It's getting near moving day for the Chicago real estate board. The last regular monthly meeting of the board to be held in the present quarters at 26 North Dearborn street will be on Wednesday at 2 p. m. Next Thursday at 12:15 the final luncheon in the old rooms will be held. Quin O'Brien, attorney, will speak.

The furniture and other property of the board will be moved to the new quarters on the second floor of the remodeled Inter Ocean building at 57 West Monroe street, directly across the street from the First National Bank building. The first floor of the building is to house Barbee's movie theater, which has been in the throes of opening for several months—the final date having been shoved ahead several times.

Secretary Cole of the board announces that all foreclosure sales and matters pertaining to judicial sales will be held in the new board rooms on and after May 1.

Health Institute Rents State Street Quarters

The Public Health institute has leased from the Hool Realty company, agents of the Reliance building, State and Washington streets, the entire fourth floor for five years from May 1 for a reported term rental of $60,000. The Public Health institute is a medical organization supported by business men to help in local and national campaigns against disease. The directors are Gen. James A. Ryan, Harold F. McCormick, A. A. Sprague, Capt. Myron E. Adams, Samuel Insull, H. M. Byllesby, R. T. Crane, Clyde M. Carr, Dr. Joseph G. Berkowitz, A. A. Carpenter, and Nathan M. McChesney.

Mortage Loan Firms Help Homebuilding Move

"Indications point to the fact that within the last few days the Chicago mortgage loan firms have resumed making building loans more generally, particularly on homes," said a member of one of the largest first mortgage banking concerns in the city. "Many firms are regarding it as a matter of public duty to assist in financing the home building movement to end the shortage. This is in line with the announcement of the Chicago Mortgage Bankers' club that its members would finance on a large scale the building of homes in 1920."

BUYS LAKE VIEW AVENUE RESIDENCE.

Homer L. Dixon, son of the late Arthur Dixon, has bought from John J. McCarthy his sixteen room residence in Lake View avenue, 100 feet north of Fullerton avenue, lot 50x186, for a reported $55,000. Hibbard, Porter & Bro., E. A. Wanner, and Franklin D. Eulette were brokers.

IN THE CANTERBURY BOX

Taste the Exquisite Flavor—the Sensation of CANDYDOM

In Chicago and for miles around, Brach's, the Perfect Almond Bar, is known. Everywhere it has created a sensation.

Half a million bars a week is Chicago's demand.

Over 10,000,000 bars have been relished by Chicago's host of candy lovers in the last three months.

Try it today! Let your own taste confirm the judgment of Chicago's candy connoisseurs. Learn why—in three short months—Brach's has become the most popular chocolate bar in Chicago.

E. J. Brach & Sons, regarded as America's greatest candy institution, has perfected this supreme chocolate bar.

A candy business with a capacity volume of 2,225,000 pounds of candy per week had to be developed before it was possible to put such unusual quality into a chocolate bar and yet maintain a moderate price.

Ask for "Brox"—the most popular confection of the day—made from choicest cocoa beans ground over and over again to a flour-like fineness—then blended and mellowed for 14 days and 14 nights and filled with fresh, crisp, roasted almonds.

Ask for "Brox"—the clean Milk Chocolate Almond Bar untouched by human hands in the making—produced by great, scientific machines—the most sanitary candy-makers in the world.

Don't wonder how it tastes. Step into the nearest candy shop. Stake a few pennies against a new flavor experience. Ask for Brox in the Canterbury Box.

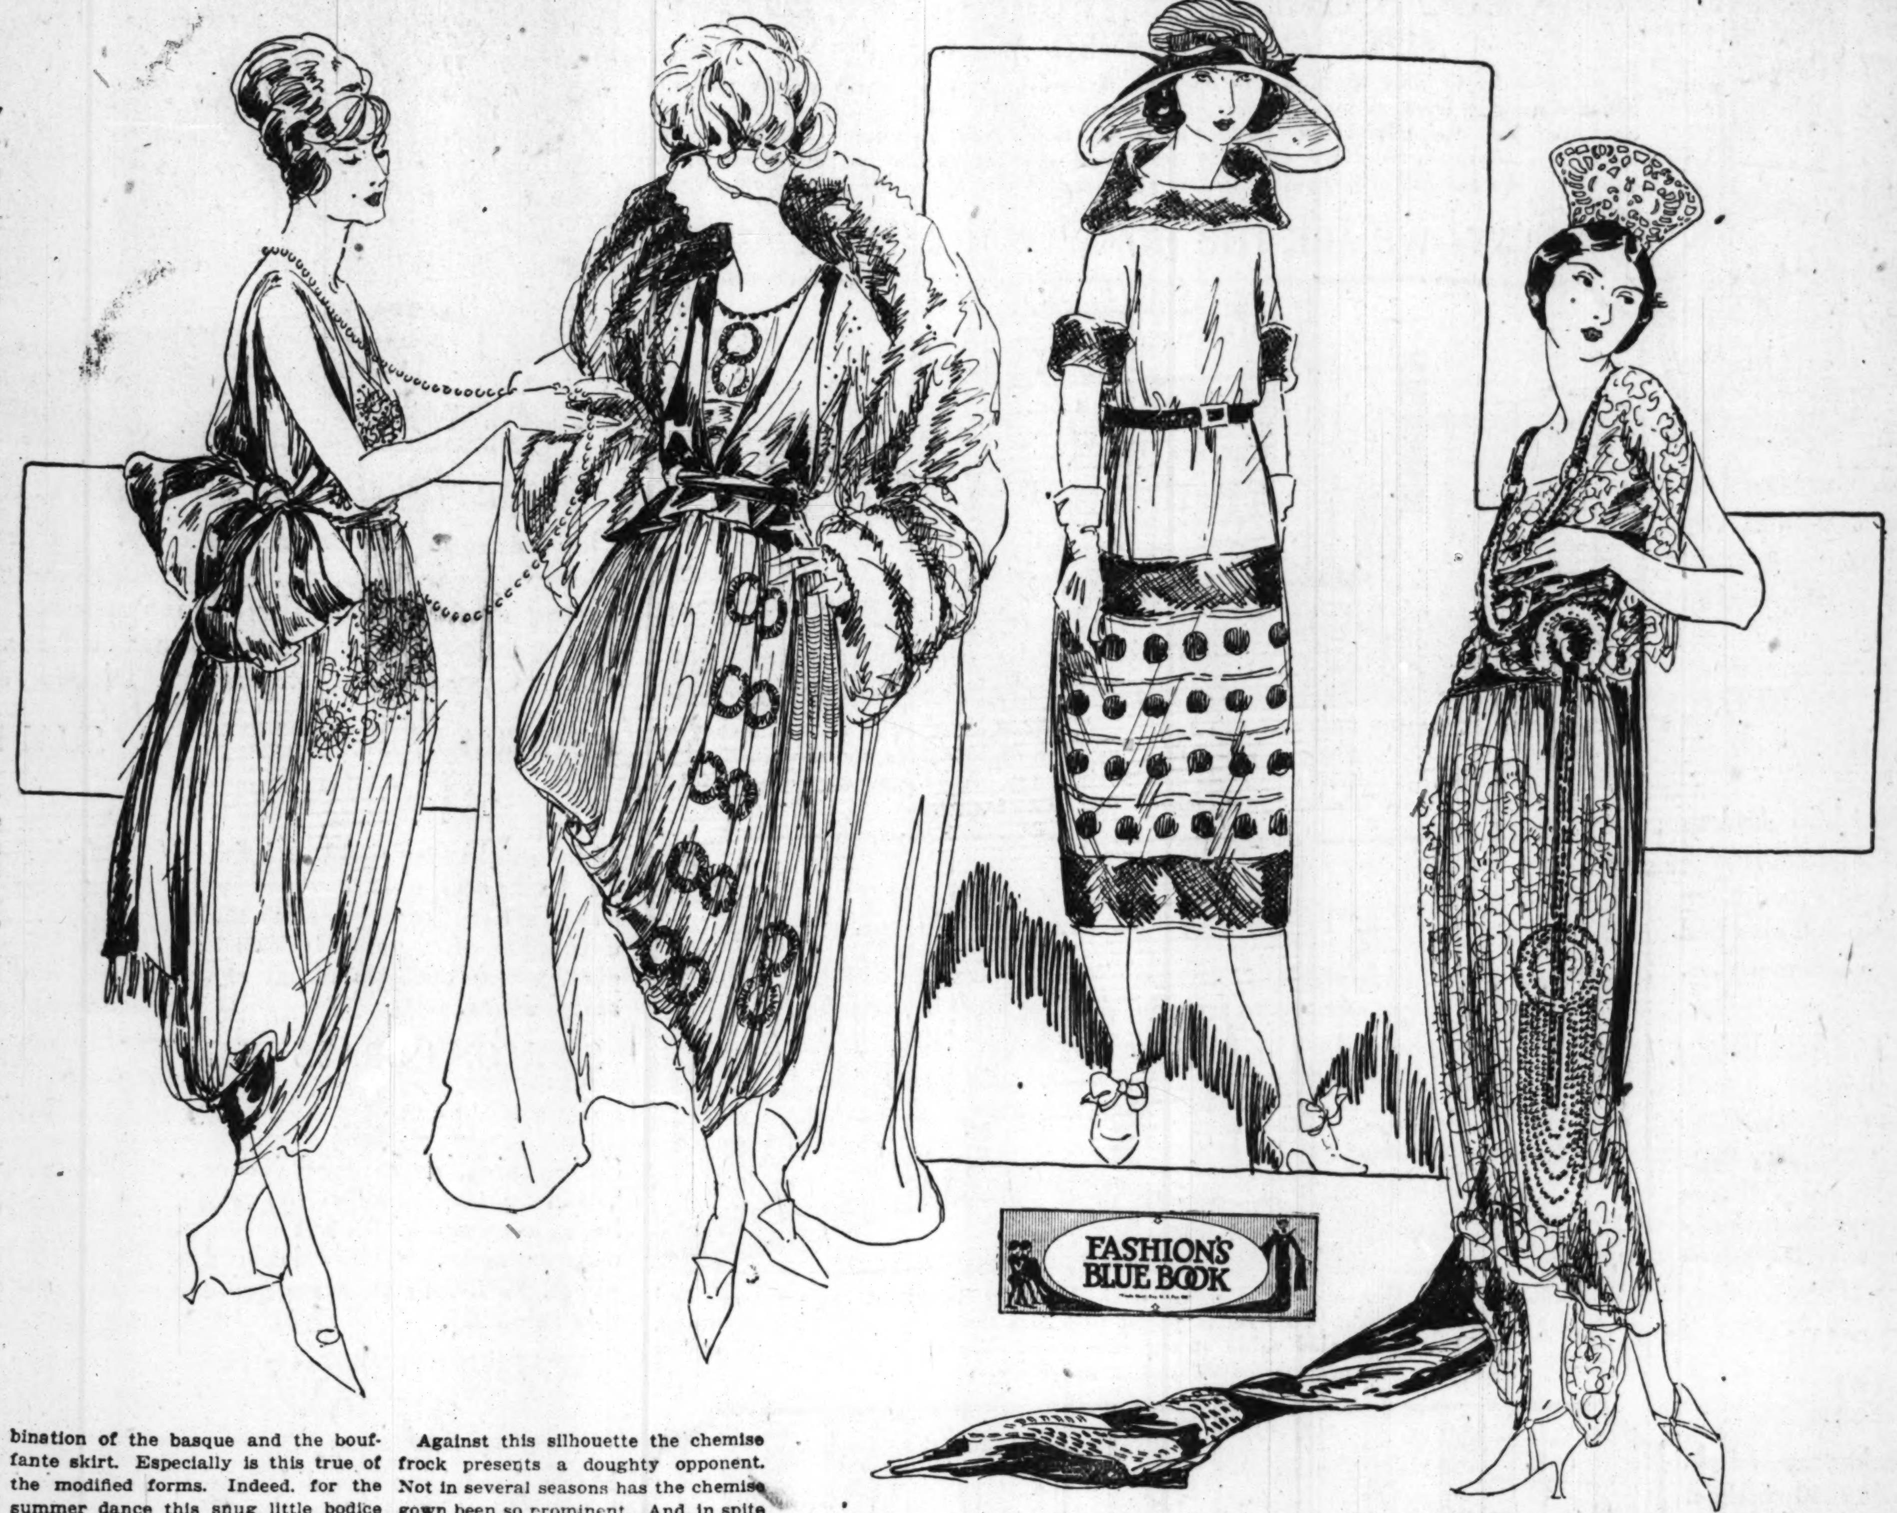
Fashions Beauty Contests

PARIS GIVES YOU YOUR CHOICE OF STYLES by Corinne Lowe



THAT you may take your choice of silhouettes this season is indicated by these four Paris frocks. At the left is a delightful evening frock from Agnes, which is made of orchid chiffon and satin, to which is added in the sash a touch of silver cloth. The chiffon flowers are outlined in silver thread and rhinestones. Second comes an afternoon dress from Renee, combining brown taffeta, brown chiffon, and ecru net. Next is a Jenny one piece frock of navy Poiret twill trimmed with green; and last comes an evening frock from Agnes indicating the Egyptian influence by the red and black bead motifs scattered over this frock of black satin and black lace.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—Paris style is this year exactly like a beauty doctor or a fairy godmother—after all, one and the same thing. It's one object is to cover up what you haven't and show off what you have. It says to the woman with plump, dimpled arms, "Here, my dear, is a frill of a sleeve for you," and to the other sister with arms like a jackstraw it says, "Look at these nice long sleeves. They're just as smart as the short ones and will make you look like a different person."

There is, in fact, no end to the concessions of the dear, lenient old thing. If a congress of chins is meeting in the spot selected by your original charter member, she permits you to wear a great choke of a collar. Otherwise, you may do the round, surplice, U-shaped, elliptical, stand-up-in-the-back neck line. If you are slim and lissome you do Victorian flounces and dropped-over-the-shoulder bodices. If you are a bit stout Paris style gives you a sanctuary in the straight line gown.

As for skirt lengths, never was there so much variety. Paris inclines, to be sure, to a skirt that is somewhat longer. Ten inches above the ground is her favorite length for summer wear. However, she grants to the petite something shorter, and to the tall, heavy woman—always a failure in those Highland kilts—she says, "Wear something six or seven inches above." The fact of it is that there is no hard and fast rule about the length of frocks this spring. And at one of the New York fashion shows the audience almost got paralysis of the lorgnette at beholding afternoon charmeuses that actually came all the way to the ankles!

The basque is undoubtedly one of the most spectacular features of the new Paris modes. I have seen this bodice represented at every fashion show this month. The only comfort I can get out of seeing it is that I don't have to wear it. In its aggravated form this bodice is not, in fact, becoming to the average woman. Close fitting, with darts that are often covered by embroidery—particularly leather embroidery—it will never be my favorite spring residence. However, there are some types who really thrive under the combination of the basque and the bouffante skirt. Especially is this true of the modified forms. Indeed, for the summer dance this snug little bodice with the flaring skirt will probably be the most popular mode for the younger woman.

Against this silhouette the chemise frock presents a doughty opponent. Not in several seasons has the chemise gown been so prominent. And, in spite of the fact that it is so becoming, many willful women will undoubtedly take it up. The fact of it is that the straight line is gaining a great many disciples. Of course, by this we do not mean the unvaried line. There are a thousand tricks of embroidery and other trimming to remove the sting of severity. And often a slight drapery about the knees does not prevent the label "straight line."

I suppose if one were asked to say which of all these thousand and one styles was the most pervasive one would be compelled to say the skirt draped at the top or at the knees and narrowing at the bottom. Of this silhouette the afternoon frock from Renee second from the left provides an excellent example. The bodice of this is brown taffeta, the skirt and vestee of brown chiffon embroidered in brown silk. The sleeves of ecru net are tucked and edged with fine lace, and an interesting feature of the skirt is the use of finest tucks outlining the right hand drapery and arranged horizontally on the opposite side.

Taffeta is decidedly the prop of the spring wardrobe. Navy blue and black are the favored colors, but this is not so cheerless as it sounds. For all manner of embroidery of beads, silk and wool are used on these taffeta frocks. And then, of course, there is the lingerie touch. The organdy used with taffeta is generally white, but this is not obligatory. For example, Madeleine & Madeleine brighten up the taffeta corner where they are by ending the narrow girdle of one of these black taffeta frocks by a bow and sash ends of cherry organdy.

A great many of the imported taffetas bear witness to the passion for Moroccan embroideries so ably stimulated by Poiret. All sorts of queer designs in red, yellow, and green—the Moroccan colors—are introduced on black and navy blue. And rivaling these in brilliancy are the Moravian embroideries, of which Lanvin is the chief sponsor.

However, it must not be thought that taffeta has completely usurped the silk field. Foulard, for example, will never be friendless in America, and the French designers have decided to pamper us. Some of the smartest foulards are in black and white, and one charming model from abroad varies the treatment by being cut out at the lower panel edges. The incisions are then bound with white silk.

For evening wear one may essay either the bouffante skirt—it is generally of tulle—or the more classic mode. In the latter there is more than a suggestion of the Egyptian inspiration so evident in other domains of dress. This note is sounded chiefly in the use of red beads—wonderfully arresting combined with the black laces and jet so much in vogue at present.

At the right of the page we show one of these new classic evening gowns of black, distinguished by the red beads of which we have spoken. The foundation of this frock is black satin; the overdress, black lace, and the motifs of red and black beads. The long train is finished by two deep bands of jet bugles.

If there is a title of which we are particularly fond this spring it is "serge insurgent." The serges and Poiret twills and tricotines simply will not be kept down. One of the smartest modes is to trim your blue serge with red beads. Or you may use green or red wool. Patent leather, too, is frequently grafted upon the serge or tricotine frock.

In the panel we show a Jenny creation—one of the simple little one piece frocks which afford us some relief from all this bouffancy—in navy Poiret twill. This illustrates the great popularity of vivid green as a trimming. For collar, cuffs, and two skirt bands of a peculiar coarsely woven material are in green. The polka dots are done in the same tone of silk, and the narrow leather belt chimes in with the greenery.

A charming little evening gown, embodying some of the best thoughts of the season, is the Agnes gown at the left. This is made of orchid chiffon over orchid satin. With this tint silver is always exquisite, and so Agnes has traced about the chiffon flowers on the front of bodice and skirt a web of silver thread and rhinestones. And she has deepened this suggestion by making a silver-cloth center to the wide orchid ribbon arranged in a sort of sling sash. The fringe is also silver.

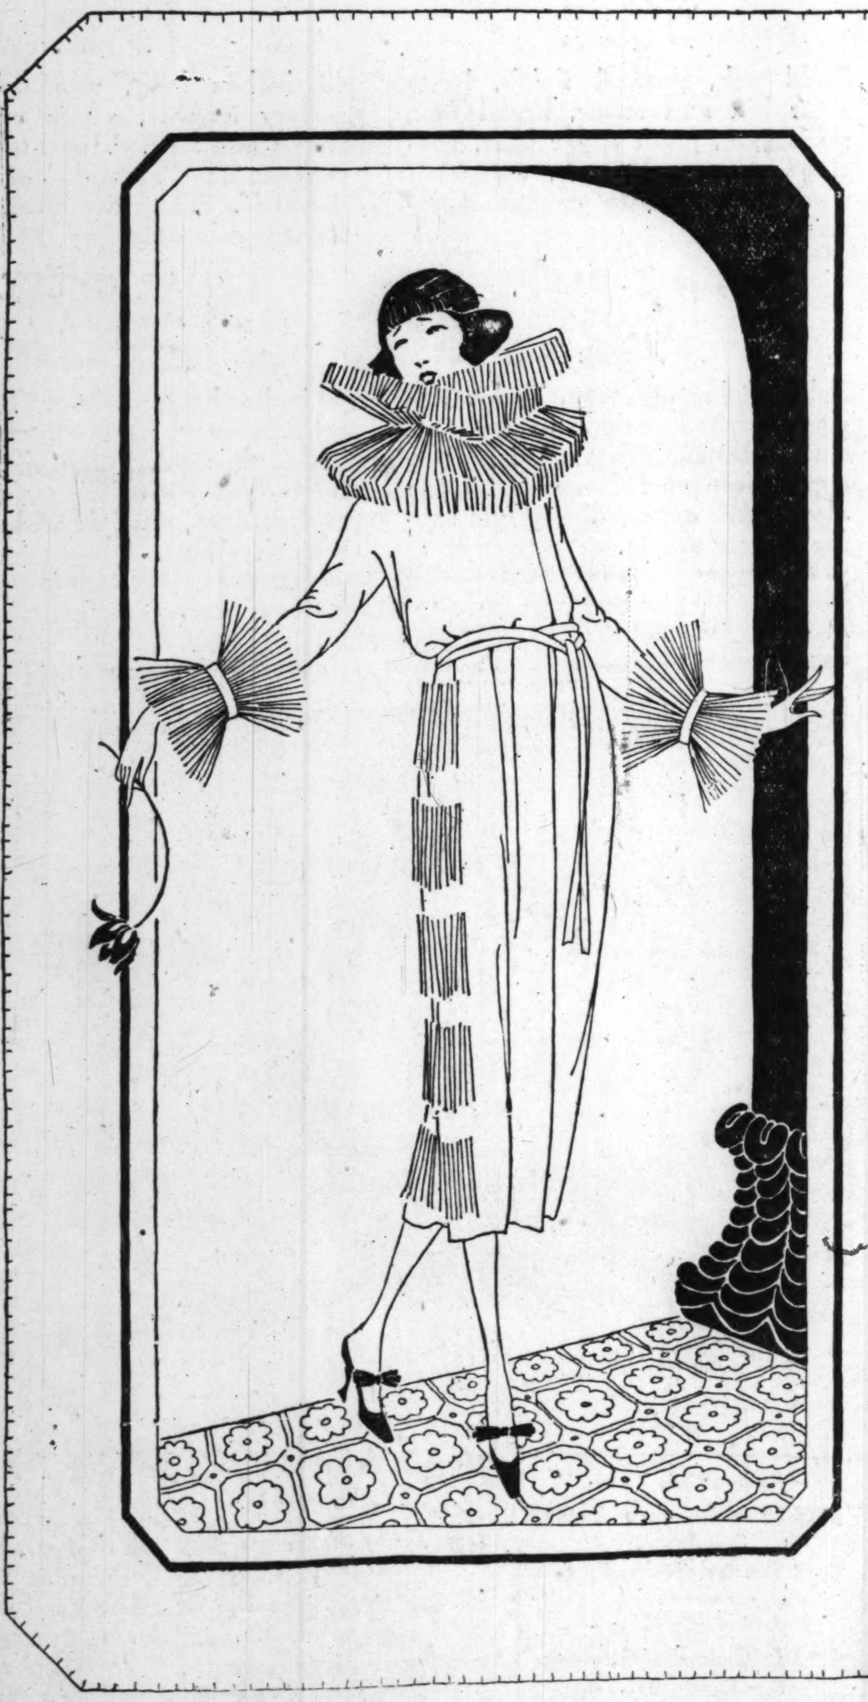
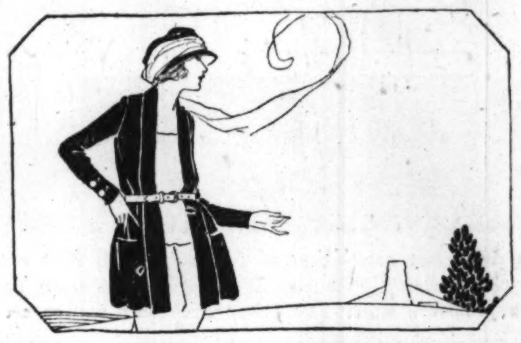
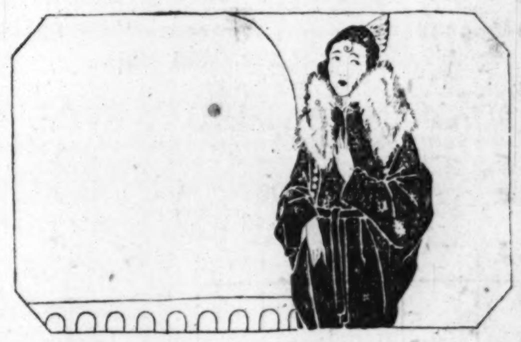
Spring Coats and Wraps

WRAPS for all occasions, for sports, for daytime or evening wear—have this spring two qualities in common—vividly beautiful colorings and graceful lines. Daring many unique trimming effects, they harmonize with the loveliest frock and help create a costume of richness and distinction.

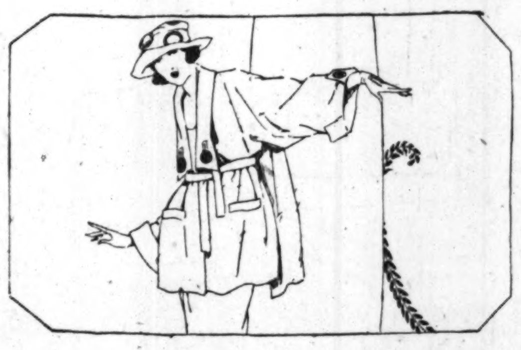




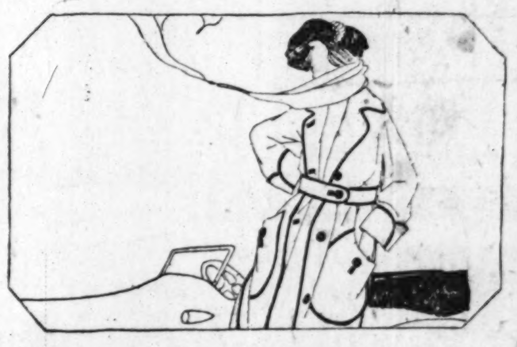
EVEN that most expressive word of the French—"chic"—does not seem to adequately express the spirited charm of these new black velvet jackets, for sports wear, especially when they are worn in combination with a stunning sports skirt.



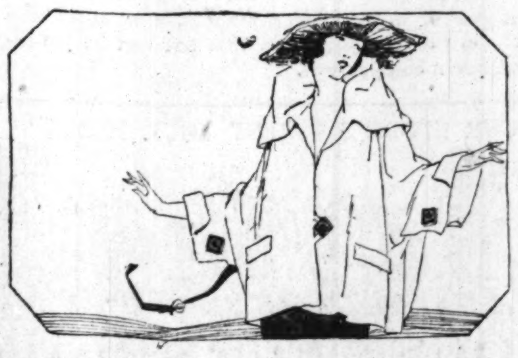
"THE draped line is the loveliest distance between two points"—seems to be the doctrine of spring wraps. Especially are draped lines effective in this gorgeous wrap of duvetyn with its all-enveloping squirrel collar.



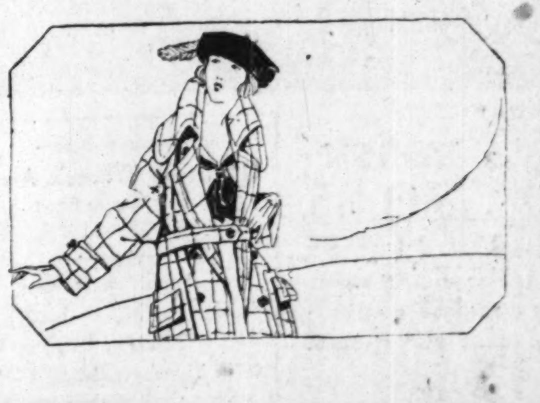
YOUTH—and a certain buoyant out-of-doors air—seem to have attached themselves to this coat of Fortuna cloth. Made with voluminous sleeves, Tuxedo collar and string belt—it fairly breathes distinction.



OPEN country has its charms—especially when one is invited to its pleasures by a stunning sports coat of camel's hair polo cloth. This one is edged with leather, and it is quite as practical as it is charming.



THIS is one of the new short capes, and it is certainly a convincing reason for the vogue of this popular garment for spring. Made of Marvella cloth, and richly draped about the collar and sleeves, it can really be described as "radiantly" beautiful.



"PLAID'S the thing" in sports coats. And one could not wish it were otherwise after seeing this extremely smart coat of Scotch homespun. Its free, charming lines and large collar are really quite entrancing.

Business Girls

DETRIMENTS TO SUCCESS.

A RESTLESS and roving spirit that impels a girl to move continually from one job to another is a detriment to success and is sure to kill any ambition with which a girl starts her business career.

Whether the restlessness which prevails now among women workers is one of the causes or a result of the abnormal times it is hard to say.

When a business girl changes her position the change ought to be given some thought and made only after due consideration of the probable benefits to be derived from it. The girl who takes a new position for no other reason than because she is tired of her old one has but a slim chance of success in the new place.

About a month ago I met a young woman whom I hadn't seen for two years. After greeting her I asked how she was getting along with her job, mentioning the name of the firm she was with when I had last seen her. At that time she had been full of enthusiasm about it and had predicted that she would be one of the high salaried women of the house within two years.

Greatly to my surprise, however, she answered: "O, I only stayed in that place three months. I have had four jobs since then, none of which amounted to much except the one I have now."

She proceeded to tell me about her present position, and was just as enthusiastic as she had been regarding the job of two years ago. The work was wonderfully interesting, she said, and she was making a great deal more money than she ever made before. She talked glowingly for a half hour about the job and its prospects and I was greatly interested in her account of the work.

That was a month ago. A day or two ago I met her again, and remembering the story of her interesting job, I inquired about her work.

"The job isn't nearly as good a one as I thought it was going to be. In fact, I've grown awfully tired of it and I'm thinking of leaving."

CASHIER
SUZEY

Then she confessed that she had a hard time making herself stick to a job for any length of time. Every time she started with a new firm it was with the conviction that she had one of the best positions in town and that she was going to make good. Each time she started in with a will to win success, and immediately established herself in the good graces of the firm. But after a few weeks the glamour of the new job wore away. She would lose interest in her work and everything about her except the desire to get away and start over again in another place.

Such restlessness is a serious drawback to a young woman who really desires to become successful in business. Unless it can be overcome by a strong determination to stick to one job which her common sense tells her is promising, she will find that as her list of former positions grows it will be increasingly difficult for her to obtain new ones. Every prospective employer looks askance at an applicant whose business record shows a number of positions held for a short period only.

Firms usually consider employés who are old in point of service as of greater value to them than new, untrained help, and therefore show them greater consideration and pay them higher salaries.

The BUTTERFLY COIFF

by Antoinette Donnelly

What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or backheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you, and you're welcome to them, and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope. NOW what do you think is the latest thing to go up? Eats? Shoes? Dresses? Lingerie? Stockings? No! That's all ancient history. They went up months ago—but here the one thing we thought might remain true to us has turned—and gone up.

Maybe we kept it down too long. But whatever the reason hair is no longer to be plastered back and down on our respective heads if we are to keep in the style parade.

High dressings and fluffy are to replace the plain ones of yesterday, so it is ordained.

The butterfly is but a sample of what a head of hair can turn to when it is turned from its straight and backward path. A nifty turn, you will agree, though.

It is quite charming on any face—particularly so on a youthful one. Just a bit Japanesy—and with black hair particularly fetching.

How do you get it up that way? Well, brush front and sides of hair over the face, then take the remaining back hair and comb it up and with it make a flat knot on the crown of the head, pinning it securely. Don't twist it or you will make ridges. Now brush the front hair back off the forehead, and the knot from the back hair you will find serving as the padding for the high raised effect at the crown. Secure this front hair at nape of neck with strong pins. Now take sides and roll the hair the reverse of the way you roll it for puffs and pin down into shape to suit your face and in nice proportion to the puffed up crown.

It looks as if the old "rats" and "roughings" were going to appear again. Some girls ruff their hair for the ear muffs of this dressing and others more wisely use old hair nets for "stuffing."

Arrange the hair softly on the forehead after you have the rest done up if you cannot stand the straight back. Just a deft pull or two over one eye or the other or both. Then a net to keep everything in nice order under it.

A tip from the attractive young woman who first brought the butterfly to my attention is to use a fine comb when arranging the hair. She says it makes the hair keep in place better and certainly it cleans the hair. Also, she claims for its use the marcel survives longer.

Answers to Queries.

J. G.: WASH THE HAIR WHENever it is dirty. In a soot laden, grimy city it should be washed once a week if necessary. Dandruff troubles call for more frequent washing. Once a week is not too often because good hair does not grow on an unclean scalp. Ordinarily, once in two weeks is about the required time. The green soap is good for oily hair shampoo. It is yellowish in color and should be reduced to a liquid by adding boiling water to prevent stickiness.

CLARA: THE AMMONIA AND peroxide without the lemon juice added, I have been recommending for the superfluous hair on the face. The lemon juice added would contribute just that much more to the bleaching process.

Giving the Bride Away.

I was a bride of 18, and felt shy about meeting people as a "Mrs." Because of this I asked my husband to take me to a summer resort, where I knew no one. At the hotel the guests smiled condescendingly on me, as though they suspected I was a bride; but I was too shy to talk with the women, so they had no chance to ask me direct.

One day we were going for a walk, and my husband to get me a sunshade, which was the gift of my little sister. The vestibule was full of loungers when my husband returned, and carelessly he opened the sunshade as we started out. The opening parasol deluged me with a shower of rice and confetti, and left me blushing and trembling with embarrassment.

My bridesmaid had planned this, to give me away no matter where I spent my honeymoon. C. S.

Only a Pause.

I was at a concert with a young man whom I wished to impress with my "high-browness." I listened rapturously and when the music stopped began to clap enthusiastically, but it was only a pause in the music! My blush could be heard all over the theater! M. R.

On New Year's Eve.

New Year's I was invited out to a card party. It was quiet in the room, as every one was interested in the cards. A young man across from me said: "Doesn't seem like New Year's eve at all, does it?" I spoke up: "No, indeed, I usually go out for a god time New Year's eve." Everybody turned and gave me a look, which surely brought me to my senses. J. B.

BOARDING HOUSE TALES

The boarding house is teeming with human interest stories. Tell us a tale about the funny characters you have met in your experience as "paying guest." The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published. Manuscripts cannot be returned. Please write on one side of the paper. Address Boarding House Tales, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

In the Good Old Days.

This is a tale that will make present day boarders tear their hair with envy. It was 'way back in 1914 and I was attending school. My board bill and room rent amounted to $4. My room had two large windows and I was welcome to half a dozen baths a day if I wanted them. There was chicken once or twice a week and ice cream every Sunday. What I started to say was that the landlady charged either by the meal or by the week. Usually, of course, it is cheaper by the week, but my roommate and I discovered that by paying by the meal we saved 25 cents a week. Not much now, but then we could see three of the thrilliest movies for that amount. F. G.

Weak Made Strong.

My father took his meals at a place where all the food was good, but the coffee was weak. One day he took his knife and fork and propped them against the coffee cup, then politely asked for another knife and fork. To surprised inquiries he said, "O, the coffee was so weak I thought it needed a support." The laughter was strong and so was the coffee after this. I. R.

The Runaway Wife.

At the place where I used to board we had quite a group of young people. There was one girl who was quite popular among the fellows. However, when asked for a date she always had some good excuse to give. One night she brought a friend to supper. Naturally we were all interested in him, but you may be sure the interest we felt was increased when he was introduced to us as friend husband. Later we found out that she had left home telling no one where she was going. Her husband found her and they went home to live happily ever afterwards, maybe. R. B.

A Tearful Farewell.

My brother stayed at a boarding house once where the serving girl took an awful liking to him. In a way he liked it, for he received much attention at meal time and he always had enough to eat, but one day he announced that he must take a short business trip. The serving girl burst into tears before all the boarders and said she would be so lonesome without him. He thought she had gone far enough, so he left for good. M. C.

Corn Meal Mush.

While boarding with an old woman who would get excited if anything went wrong, one morning she overslept and was late for breakfast, and at last when we got to our coffee a lad sitting beside me took the sugar bowl, put two spoons of sugar in his coffee, then four spoonfuls, and it would not get sweet. At last he said to me, "Say, Al, I put half of the sugar bowl in my coffee, and the more I put in the worse it tastes." The landlady came in at that moment, looked at the sugar bowl, and then said, "My goodness, man, I put white cornmeal in the bowl instead of sugar." We all got an extra cup of coffee that morning. A. The Savoy Label on FRUIT is more than a guarantee of quality. It is an emblem of character.

SAVOY
STEELE-WEDELES
CHICAGO, ILL.

The Savoy label is a symbol of certainty—certainty that the fruit in the can was tree-ripened by nature in the finest orchards—certainty that it was prepared and canned by an expert who is devoted to maintaining Savoy quality.

Year after year Savoy fruit comes from the same orchards. It must always measure up to definite Savoy standards or it is not used. There is no experimenting in the selection. The fruit used is of a uniformly high quality.

And year after year one expert grades, cuts, and weighs the fruit and adds the pure cane sugar for Savoy pears; another specializes in the canning of Savoy peaches; still another has mastered the art of canning pineapples. Each fruit is canned by a specialist.

The mark of Savoy

That is the reason you can be sure that Savoy fruit always has the full, natural flavor of fruit ripened on the tree; fruit made doubly delicious by a full-bodied, rich syrup of pure cane sugar.

And that is the reason your grocer prefers to sell Savoy fruits. He wants you to know the meaning of the Savoy label.

Terms

BUYING home furnishings at Fish's is easy, pleasant and profitable. Not only are our prices the lowest of any concern in all Chicago—but also our terms are the most liberal imaginable. The few items shown here cannot begin to tell you of the magnitude of our stocks—nor of the assortment and variety of fine quality goods we sell—but they will give a good idea of the remarkable values we offer. Every article on our floors is marked in plain figures and is fully guaranteed to be exactly as represented. 62 years of successful business dealings are your guarantee of satisfaction. Come in and see!

Fish's open account system is the most liberal credit plan in existence. We arrange terms on a single article or on an entire outfit to suit your own convenience. There are no annoying features connected with this liberal plan—no red tape or extra charges.

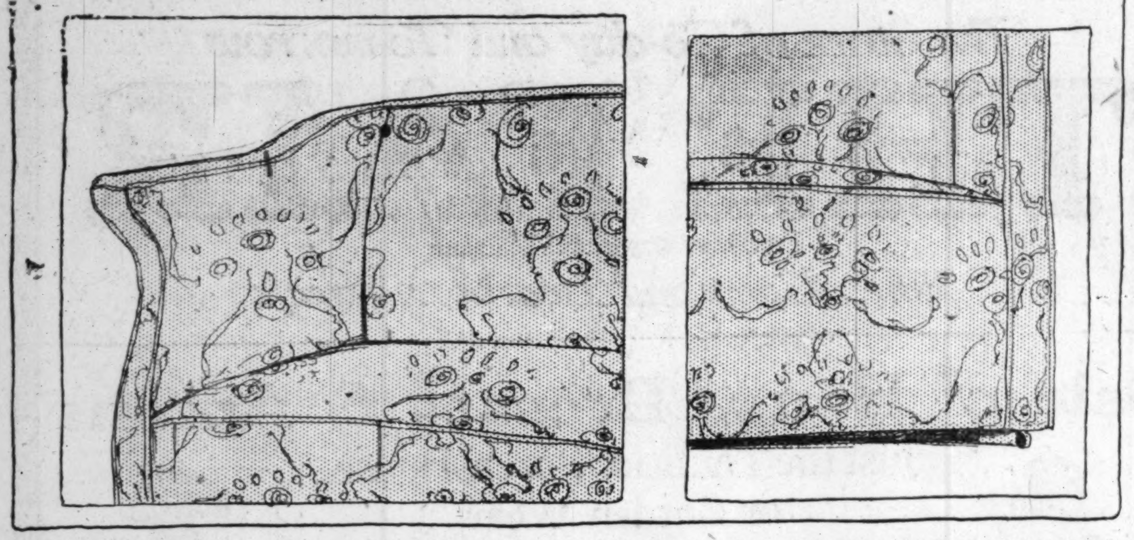
Practical and Fancy Needlework

By Clotilde



If you have any question relating to sewing that you would like to have answered write to Clotilde, Chicago Tribune, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

FINISHING THE COUCH COVER.

TODAY is described the balance of the work of making a fitted cover for a davenport, the first part of which was given last Sunday.

Fit the inside of the arm next by pinning one end of the material so it is lengthwise on the depth of the arm, and have the most prominent part of the design come in the middle of the length. Pin it to the upholstery so as to keep it straight, and cut it off across the top, allowing a good ¾ inch seam margin. In cutting it down the back slope it out well, the same as the back is sloped, and then cut the front edge. You can now either cut the opposite side by this piece, or leave it pinned to the davenport and do it later.

The strip to cover the top of the arm has to be cut, and should be on the straight of the cloth, and cut in one length from the back at the top, down over the arm and down to the floor. Be sure and keep it straight and allow the required margin on each edge.

Pin this strip while it is on the lounge to the side arm and back pieces, pinning it so it fits, and letting the two raw edges stand up towards the right side.

Then pin some of the material on the outside of the arms, pinning it to the top arm strip from the top of the davenport, down the arm and so on down to the bottom, then cut it off, allowing the proper seam margins. Do this at both ends. Two selvages should be lapped about one inch and pinned to the back of the narrow strip going across the top of the lounge, then pinned to fit to the outside, side pieces, and cut off, allowing for proper seams across the top and sides and for the bottom hems.

The French seams where the inside arm pieces join the seat and back, must be finished first—that is, after the fold across the front edge of the seat and top of the back have been stitched—and after the first stitching is done, turn the raw edges in so as to make a finished seam ¼ inch wide, cutting off some of the raw edges if necessary.

Next, turn the hem up around the bottom, on all the pieces, and stitch them and remove the bastings. Then the seam across the top, where the back is joined, should be finished. But when the arm strips are reached at each end, clip them in a seam's width and turn in those edges, so that they will be free and not included in the seam across the top. Then finish the seams at each end, where the long arm strip joins to the inside and outside arm pieces, and when basting for the first stitching, turn in the ends of the seams top and bottom, and overcast, then stitch.

The picture will show how the seams should look and how the seams should stand out free at the bottom, instead of being stitched down as they would be if the hems were put in last. And the appearance of the seams at the bottom of the cover is the same finish to be given at the top on each side of the arm strips.

MISS A. P.: Copies of the alphabet asked for have been mailed to you. I am sorry, but a book of designs could not be supplied.

MISS A. M.: Making materials waterproof is work that will have to be done by a professional, and should not be attempted at home. A reliable dyeing and cleaning house will be the place to go.

Fifteen of the most jaunty models of the season, four of which are illustrated. Best ever

24.75

WOMEN who still have their spring apparel to buy may consider themselves fortunate, indeed. They are now given an opportunity of participating in a sale which means not only a considerable money saving, but also styles that are the height of vogue. In addition to the special purchases, we have included coats and suits from our regular stocks, of which there remained but one or two of a kind, owing to the heavy before-Easter selling. We are not given to the use of comparative prices, but rest assured that the figures below represent the highest achievement in worth-while value-giving.

The suits go at $39.75

THE most fashionable models of tricotine; velour checks and wool serges. Many are copies of Parisian originations that sell for many times our special price. Strictly tailored styles as well as semi-trimmed and elaborately trimmed fashions. Every detail of these suits bespeaks quality. You must see them to appreciate fully their value.

The coats go at $24.75

THE latest styles in Polo cloth, silvertip, herringbone velours and suede velours. Many are plain tailored while others are pleasingly plaited, tucked and stitched. Finished with loose leather belts or belts of self material. Half lined. Colors are tan, taupe, reindeer, Pekin and brown. Coats worth much more than our special price of

EASTER SUPERSTITIONS

by DORIS BLAKE

The one who gets a golden egg
Will plenty have and never beg.
The one who gets an egg of blue
Will find a sweetheart fond and true.
The one who gets an egg of green
Will jealous be and not serene.
The one who gets an egg of black
Bad luck and troubles ne'er will lack.
The one who gets an egg of white
In life shall find supreme delight.
The one who gets an egg of red
Will many tears of sorrow shed.
Who gets an egg of purple shade
Will die a bachelor or maid.
A silver egg will bring much joy
And happiness without alloy.
A lucky one the egg of pink,
The owner ne'er see danger's brink.
The one who gets an egg of brown
Will have an establishment in town.
The one who speckled egg obtains
Will go through life by country lanes.
A striped egg bodes care and strife,
A sullen man or scolding wife.
The one who gets an egg of plaid,
His heart is good but luck is bad.

It is lucky to receive an unexpected gift of an Easter egg.

Did you ever wonder at the origin of the egg rolling custon on Easter day? It used to be practiced with the idea that the farm lands over which the eggs were rolled would be sure to yield abundantly at harvest time.

If you were born on Easter day, you are the luckiest child of all and in addition you brought good luck to your parents.

The custon of wearing a new bonnet on Easter day began in England centuries back, as it was supposed to bring good luck.

It is an Irish superstition that the sun dances for joy on Easter morn. "It gave three skips just as it came over the hill, for I saw it with my own eyes," said an Irish woman.

It brings good luck to a house, it is said, if a friend brings an infant into the house for the first time on Easter morning.

A tiny lamb or a rabbit presented you on Easter Sunday insures you good luck for the rest of the year.

It is said to insure luck for the rest of the year if you wear a sprig of green on your clothes on Easter day.

It is bad luck to paint a cross on Easter eggs and good luck to paint flowers on them.

There is an old weather superstition to the effect that if the sun shines on Easter it will shine on Whitsunday.

If you bathe with cold water on Easter day, you will keep well all the year.

There is another old superstition about eggs, and that is to rub over the face an egg that has been colored for Easter to have a nice complexion.

To cry on Easter is a sign you will cry the following Sunday, too.

It is bad luck to keep Easter eggs. They should be destroyed.

If a rabbit runs across your path on Easter Sunday it is a good luck sign.

For the lovelorn, there is a warning that one should not get engaged on Easter Sunday, else the engagement will be broken.

"Give a man a red egg at Easter to secure his love," is an old Gypsy amendment.

Be careful not to put on a garment inside out on Easter day or you'll have no new clothes for the rest of the year. From "Poor Richard's Almanac" we have another reference to Easter clothes: "At Easter. let your clothes be new or else be sure you will it rue."

There is an Easter superstition of French origin which advises the young girl who wishes to live long and marry happily to wear either the jonquil or violet on Easter day, because these two flowers are supposed to bring especially good luck on that day.

To find out whether the man really loves her, the maid should arise on Easter morn and eat first an apple, saying: "As Eve in her thirst for knowledge ate, so I, too, wish to know my fate." If the seeds are even he loves her; if odd, alas for her!

There are two legends about the origin of the Easter egg; one reads: "A bird sang a sorrowful lay over Christ's tomb and as a reward for its devotion its eggs ever after were of bright colors." Another story runs that an exile in prison received an Easter egg with "Hope in God" written on it. He recognized his wife's handwriting and through her soon regained his freedom.

Far Away on the Balcony.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl nearly 15 and am not allowed to go around unchaperoned with boys as some girls are. Our school gave a dance and I met there a nice boy. I liked him very much and I think that he liked me, too, because he was kind to me. The other day I went to an entertainment at another school out of town where I knew he went. I saw him and he saw me, but he was so far away up in the balcony that I couldn't speak to him. I think I might have waved my hand, but don't know. I expected to see him afterward, but he was lost in the crowd. I feel badly about it, because I'm afraid he thought I meant to snub him, whereas I was only embarrassed and didn't like to wave my hand in such a public place. What would you advise me to do, as I would hate to have him think that I was a snob? I don't have an occasion to see him at all often, so I couldn't tell him very well. I will appreciate any advice.

"WORRIED LITTLE GIRL."

He wouldn't think you were a snob at all. It was much better that you did not wave at him, that being a rather common thing to do. When you next see him just make some pleasant little remark about having seen him at the entertainment.

Loses His Nerve.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young man, 20 years of age and love a girl dearly. I know very well that she loves me, too, but always when I try to tell it to her I feel kind of ashamed. What and how do you advise me to do and to act? M. G."

Why feel ashamed, M. G.? That's the highest compliment you could pay a young woman! So, don't spoil it by feeling ashamed! I guess it is more bashfulness than shame, isn't it? Tell her you love her and tell it as if you were proud of it.

Cantilever Shoes

"STRENGTHEN THE ARCH"

Oxfords in black kid, $13.00; in Havana Brown, $14.50; and in tan calf, $14.00.

EASY ON YOUR FEET

CANTILEVER SHOES are easy on your feet.

They support the arch with a scientific shank, which relieves the bones and muscles of strain.

But this shank is flexible as a moccasin. Instead of binding and restraining the foot as metal supports do, it bends with every movement of walking. CANTILEVER SHOES correct fallen arches by thus exercising and strengthening the muscles.

CANTILEVER SHOES provide room for the toes. The heel-seat is narrower, fits more snugly than in ordinary shoes. There is no rubbing to blister the foot. The heel is slightly higher on the inside than on the outside, so that the brunt of your weight is not borne by the inside of the arch, flattening the foot, but is evenly distributed over the heel, the ball, and the outside of the foot.

The natural inner-sole line, which allows the toes to point straight forward in the normal way, is another of the features of CANTILEVER SHOES which make the correct posture the easy one.

No detail of Good Looks has been neglected. Slim lines, trim fit, graceful lasts, fine leathers, smart medium vamp.

Cantilever experts will show you every courtesy. Cantilever Shoes are guaranteed to fit you perfectly or money refunded.

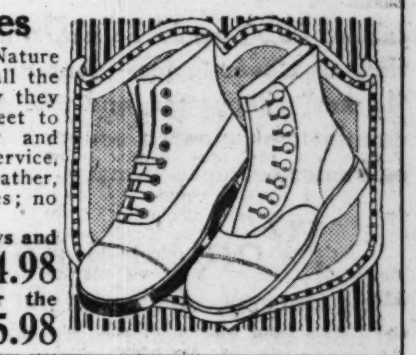
Training the Child's Foot 'Right'

Fourth Floor—State Street

Are your children's feet growing according to Nature's dictates? Do you know that if they are not, your children's health may be affected in many ways in after life? And—do you realize that the sort of shoes your children wear, while the bones of the feet are soft and pliable, will influence the growing limbs for good or bad?

The Famous Billiken Shoes



for children are scientifically designed over Nature shaped lasts and carefully take into account all the requirements of the growing feet—that is why they may be depended upon to allow the young feet to grow properly—in Nature's way—healthfully and gracefully. Billiken shoes, too, are built for service, being made only of the best quality patent leather, black kid or black calfskin; flintstone oak soles; no nails or tacks to hurt the feet.

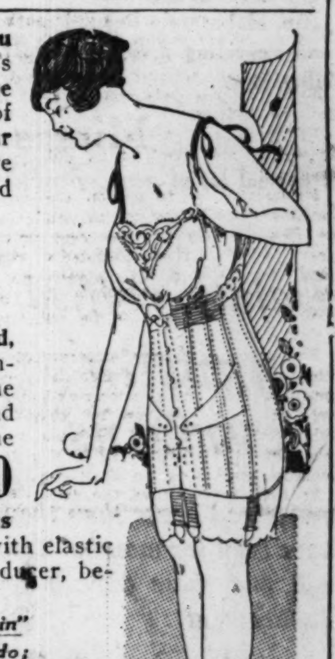
Smart Corsets, Doubly Comfortable

Third Floor—Center



When your corset leaves you fully at ease and you know that your figure is in keeping with fashion's best lines, then you feel something akin to a sense of "double comfort"—just as the thousands of women who have been properly fitted, here, by our thoroughly experienced corsetieres. They have found that corsets so fitted mean comfort and good health, as well as a fashionable figure.

Nemo corsets are among the highest in favor and so we feature them in particular, having every style and every size in every style.

Nemo Self-Reducing Corset, style 327, as illustrated, topless in front—slightly higher in back for healthful support—the long, well-boned skirt has the famous self-reducing straps that will support and reduce a large abdomen. Firm hook below the front clasp, elastic section in back at bottom of skirt—sizes 22 to 36, at........ 6.00

Nemo Corset, style 514—is the same as the famous 511 and 512, only this model is topless in front, with elastic section in front that is called the diaphragm reducer, because it so perfectly controls a full diaphragm, always perfectly comfortable and will not "dig in" at the pit of the stomach, as most topless corsets do;

the skirt takes wonderful care of large, bulging thighs. A corset that should make any figure smaller and straighter. Sizes 22 to 36, at...................... 7.50

Nemo Self-reducing Corset No. 403, for the stout figure with excess flesh on lower abdomen and in groin section. Semi-elastic in-curve back gives symmetrical lines to the lower back, with ease in any position. Nemo relief bands envelop, take up, reduce, and firmly support a large, heavy abdomen with comfort. Sizes to 36, at.. 8.50

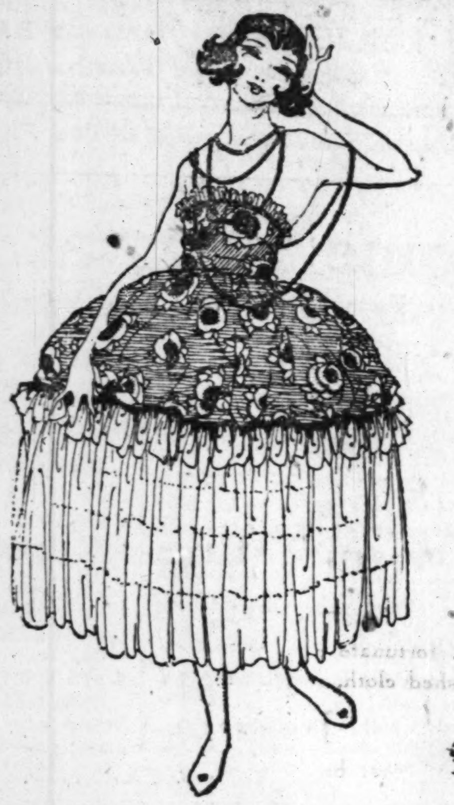
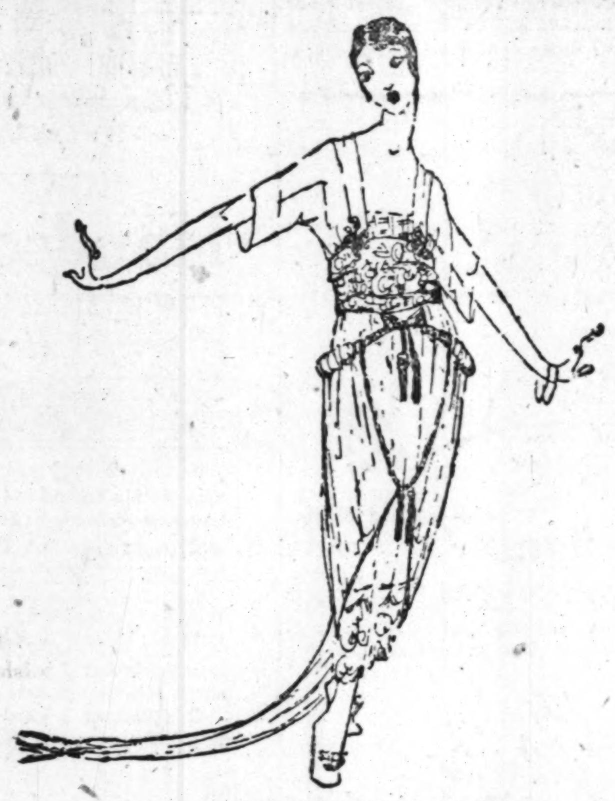
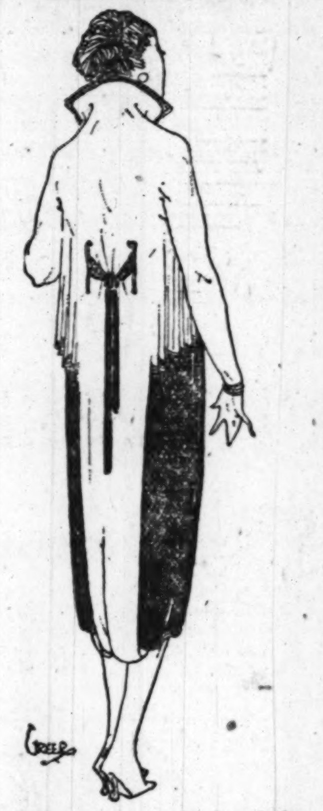
The Last Word in Paris Fashions



A popular model with wired skirt.



An Egyptian model by Lucile.



White serge over a green foundation.

MORE FULLNESS AT HIPS.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.] It would appear that the ayes have it. The skirts are going to get rounder, squarer, and otherwise bigger at the top just as sure as the world. People can write semi-sensational articles until they are black in the face saying how breathlessly the public is awaiting the decrees of fashion.

It is my prediction that the fate of fashion is settled, the silhouette outlined for the year to come. Of course, I may be mistaken and may be paving a path of employment for myself during the next six weeks to contradict all I have said thus far. But why have I not this license as well as others of my craft? An entire series of articles appeared in a big magazine regarding the fine trade opportunities in Germany at the time the armistice was signed. This afforded an opportunity later for another six articles saying that all of the previous information was wrong.

On my own subject I will at present only tone down my point of view by stating that of another, more stable authority and more conservative—because she has capital to risk. A little vendeuse of a big house explained early in the season that they were going slow because they did not know what the line would be. Maybe they had had their lesson earlier in the year, for last September a hollow eyed, hunted looking furrier of that establishment told me what an inferno his life of the six weeks previous had been because "the line changed in September." He had made up a lot of models previous to that in fur wraps which provided for straight skirts and the public chose panniers.

My part is merely to reveal, and I take pleasure in displaying herewith a popular model. You will observe for yourselves that it is not exactly slender below the belt. It is of apricot colored taffeta, brocaded in gold. The skirt is stiffly wired and flounced, the flounces being of gold net. There is a ruffle of creamy, fine lace round the low corsage, and how this corsage is kept in place is presumably a secret between the wearer and its creator.

Where we are going to get the materials to make dresses like that is more than meets the eye—or the money to pay for them. A woman was getting something altered the other day at one of the smart houses and she protested against the price. "Madame, when we went to get that material, do you know what price we had to pay for it this time? Eighty seven francs!" Between $8 and $9 a yard for some black and gray striped tailoring material, and this estimate at the low rate of French exchange at the time!

But it is nothing in a Frenchman's life that dollars buy more francs here than formerly. He thinks of the franc as the stable friend he once knew, and a rise from 15 francs to 87 francs he looks on at its face value—no matter how much of his native currency a dollar will buy now. This vendeuse tells me that sometimes they buy material one day and go the next day to buy a few additional yards with which to correct some error in the workrooms, when they find the price has advanced over 50 francs a meter. They say that prices quoted on the new models this year will be subject to instantaneous order. They will have to be changed from day to day, and never decreased.

For this high price of materials they now blame the English. For the decrease in the value of the franc they hold the Americans to blame—and they will tell you so when you have been here about a minute. I am anxious to get a good many thousands of Americans over here and let them hear the true story from the Frenchmen's own lips of what they consider the Americans have done to them.

The politicians need some one to blame, so they blame America. But did you ever see a French workman at work? They have been mending a hole in the roof of a hotel. For a series of studies in "still life" I commend them to any artist. In groups on the roof, laughing at the man standing, unoccupied, below. On the roof, in groups, arguing. On the roof, in groups, lighting cigarets. In the salon, tying their neckties in front of the vast Louis Quatorze glass. In the courtyard, studying costumes of passing guests. Somehow I persist in a feeling that there is some connection between these long held poses and the price of the franc and the high price of a dress.

But speaking of things in general: Herewith is offered a sketch showing a variation of the Egyptian motif I mentioned in another letter. I was telling about the wide low belt with a long blouse drooping over it. This is a long, trailing evening dress with a wide ceinture of gold and scarlet broché. A lower ceinture of the material of the gown and heavily stiffened follows the hips and ties in front, the ends finishing in tassels. The underslip of this dress is of blue chiffon. The overdrape of the same material is shrimp colored pink. Lucile is its author.

The third costume is one which will never be out of style for the good reason that some level headed exponents of fashion (you can be both, you know, level headed and an exponent of fashion) will not adopt the exaggeratedly wide look through as some sections of Indiana would describe it. This lovely frock is of white serge over a bright green foundation. The jacket hangs loose and straight in front, below the waistline, and tapers gradually toward the back. As you can see, it finally falls in a panel that loops under the edge of the satin skirt. The white satin is edged with rows of narrow gold braid.

Bright Sayings of Children

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

The Tribune will pay $1 for each childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune, Chicago.

Gary was attending kindergarten when her mother decided to visit the school. The visitor attracted much attention among the other youngsters. When Gary arrived home that afternoon she said gravely and seriously: "Mother, I wish you would not come to school. You make me so disgraced!" G. F. M.

Harry was visiting Gordon, and as they were going to bed Gordon knelt to say his prayers.

"I never say my prayers when I'm at home," said Harry.

"That's all right," agreed Gordon. "You'd better say 'em here, though; there's been a fire every night in this block for a week, an' this house might be next." E. H.

I had spent a busy afternoon shopping and on my way home met a small boy who was a devoted friend of mine. As it had grown quite dark I failed to recognize the little fellow. Next morning he came to my door saying, "Last night I met you and you were unacquainted with me." After an honest apology and two cookies he went home rejoicing, smiling an affectionate farewell. V. M. M.

Mary returned from Sunday school and complained that one of the little boys had slapped her. The following Sunday the mother asked her if the boy had slapped her again. "No," replied Mary, "I didn't call his little sister a monkey today, so he didn't slap me." M. L. W.

Edwin was watching grandpa turn the washing machine when his cousin Dick came in and began turning the washer.

One of the other children remarked: "Dick can wash lots faster than grandpa."

"Well, he ought to," replied Edwin, "for he is lots newer." Mrs. G.

Mother was trying to give her small son a dose of castor oil, and after much coaxing and pleading he would not swallow it. She said to her husband: "Billy will not take the oil; we will just have to use main force." Billy's face brightened and he said: "Daddy, bring the main force and I will try to swallow that." W. P. A.

His father wasn't anxious to have Robert play with a certain urchin in the neighborhood whose language wasn't always proper, so he said, "Robert, seems to me that boy always has a dirty face; if I were you I'd play with some one else that is cleaner." To which Robert responded, "Why, daddy, I don't need to look at his face—but he's got the best legs on the ball team." E. L. R.

9384—Woman's dress. Sizes 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅞ yards of 36 inch or 3½ yards of 44 inch material with ½ yard of 36 inch contrasting. Of one material it requires 3⅝ yards of 44 inch material.

9504—Girl's combination. Sizes 2, 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 1½ yards of 36 inch or 1¼ yards of 44 inch material with 4¼ yards of edging and 1¼ yards of ribbon.

9169—Girl's one piece box plaited dress. Sizes 4, 6, 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. Size 8 requires 2½ yards of 36 inch material with ½ yard of 36 inch contrasting.

How to Use the Patterns

An attractive yet simple design for a silk or woolen dress is shown in No. 9384 and the directions given on the pattern envelope show quite clearly how it is put together. After the seams are finished in the skirt an inverted plait is laid on each side, covering the skirt seams. Pin the folds in place the length of the skirt before basting down, and look on the wrong side and see if the box plait formed there is smooth, and also run the fingers under each fold on each side to make doubly sure there is no twist. Then each plait can be basted from top to bottom and the bastings left in until after the skirt is finshed.

Of course the placket opening has to be finished before making the plait on that side, and the basting will have to be loosened at the bottom while the hem is being laid. Then the plaits should be basted to the edge of the hem, and see that the under fold of each plait does not come down below the outside.

Sometimes a waist is practically ruined because the armseye has been cut out too much. The waist should come well up under the arm and should not curve too abruptly toward the front or back. If there is a tight feeling in the front curve, try gently stretching it there. At that point the armseye is quite bias and a little stretching is many times better than indiscriminate cutting.

In setting a sleeve into the waist the front or inside seam should, as the arm hangs at the side, come on a line directly through the middle of the thumb, and if the sleeve has been properly put together the hand can be turned palm upward, and the sleeve will not turn with the hand, but will keep its right position.

Usually the correct point for this seam of the sleeve is 2⅜ inches towards the front, measuring from the under arm seam of the waist. Holding the wrong side of the waist towards you, slip the sleeve into the armseye and pin the seam in place at that point. Then, still holding the waist towards you, measure up toward the front from the under arm seam of the waist 4½ inches, and pin the sleeve to the armseye at that point. Now measure up towards the back from the under arm seam of the waist 3½ inches and pin the sleeve there also.

The sleeve is basted in without any fullness between these two outside points, holding the waist towards you to help keep its shape. Then, turning the waist around so that the inside of the sleeve is towards you, gather the remaining edge of the sleeve in small stitches and, arranging the slight fullness evenly, baste, and try on. This may be a help sometimes when using a pattern without all the notches or perforations, and is a good rule for the average sided armseye.

Unless one is careful, a comfortably large armseye can be made tighter in the basting and stitching so it will not be comfortable, so that is a thing to be watched.

After the sleeve has been stitched in and the finishing done, the seam should be turned up towards the shoulder and hemmed down to the lining for a distance of three or four inches across the top, or if there is no lining it can be stitched. This will keep the top of the sleeve flat. When it is not fastened, it sometimes turns in towards the sleeve when on, spoiling the looks of the waist there.

No. 9504 is an excellent pattern for a combination for girls, and is quite simple to make. It needs but little trimming to make it dainty and attractive looking. The principal points are to choose good materials and have the sewing beautifully done.

Where the buttons are sewed on across the back at the waistband it would be wise to set a length of tape, that has been shrunken, inside the band, so that the buttons will not tear out easily.

No. 9169 is a smart looking design for a school dress or general wear afternoons. If it is made with the yokes, revers, and collar the long sleeves will be more in keeping with the general design if they are plaited into the cuffs instead of gathered.

After the plaits are basted, baste the sleeve seam together and try on to be sure the sleeve will not be too tight. It is much easier to change bastings than stitching, and less injurious to material and one's nerves.

Silk Crepe de Chine

40 and 36 Inch Widths

Here's one of the most important offers of the season. These are unusually heavy crepes—appropriate for dresses, women's blouses and undergarments. The color assortment is wonderful and includes a plentiful quantity of white and pink. No mail or phone orders; none sold to dealers. Limit of 10 yards to a customer.

Regularly $3 and $3.50, yd., $2.15

Shirting—33 inch satin striped crepe shirting; all silk; best and most popular crepe for men's shirts, also for hangings; regulimit 10 yards to customer; no mail or phone order filled; regularly $4.98, yard at* $2.98

Charmeuse—40 in.; in navy blue only; regularly $5.50; yard at $3.98

Here is one point we want to impress upon our patrons—we planned this to be the greatest sale of silks we have ever held. We went so far as to postpone this great event (it was due to be held a week ago) because several parcels of silks were delayed in transit.

About 25,000 yards of the season's wanted silks are offered at far below the regular prices and in some instances as low as present wholesale quotations. This is your opportunity for a substantial saving—take advantage of it.

ORANGES AND MARMALADE.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—[Special Correspondence.]—The California definition of orange or any citrus fruit marmalade is a clear jelly with a few thin slices of peel suspended in it. Some of our cooking practices, say in making carrot marmalade, do not correspond to this definition. Some of these mixtures with orange and lemon are not marmalades at all, but jams.

If we want to leave out the suspended slice of peel from the marmalade we have a perfect jelly, if perfectly cooked, and at such a temperature that the sugar cannot caramelize and darken the product. Beautiful champagne colored jellies can be made from orange, lemon, or grape fruit. They are brilliant, handsome things molded in small portions to serve with turkey or chicken. I do not know whether they do this in California or not, but I would do it in any part of the world where citrus fruits were obtainable.

They have developed some interesting jellying facts out here where the orange is their largest crop, and several times cropped in a year. I should say it was their largest crop save one—the literature exploiting the fact and some others about the state. One can hardly help saying this when one is a tenderfoot here, no matter how great is his own admiration for the state of magnificent sunshine and unfurnaced bungalows in which you freeze of an evening or morning, or on a dull day during the winter and spring. I can imagine some of the people here worshipping a coal pile or some hard cord wood.

Miles of Orange Orchards.

The magnitude of the California orange crop reduces one's mind to dullness, even though "the heart of the world's greatest orange empire" has not yet been visited. You can ride by miles of orange orchards without that visit. But to stand by one orange tree more than half covered with blossoms, which scent the air in a way reminiscent of the trailing arbutus, while immense Washington navel oranges hang in the midst of these blossoms, is to have the imagination revived, and to understand some of the exhaustively romantic descriptions which have been written of this orange land.

In that empire is to be found one of the "two original Washington navel orange trees, parent of millions of species now in this country." That statement sounds to me like poor botany, but it is good exploiting. Somewhere I have found the statement that those trees are 150 years old, or they belong to that mission period which exploiters have made so much of that we have an opportunity here to understand the colossal influence a remnant race may have on a great one. As to aged orange trees there is one 800 years old in the grounds of a monastery in Rome.

Californians Pay the Freight.

And while I am just talking I must say that it is a highly interesting fact to see here in California, not only on the orange tree but on many a cultivated and wild shrub as well, cause and effect at the same time and all the intermediate stages between these great fundamental positions—that is all the stages from bud to fruit or seed. The lemon tree is said to crop every month in the year and always has blossoms and lemons at all stages, until finally months after the start in blossoms there is a ripe lemon.

The California orange market presents facts of curious interest. Why should California orange consumers help pay the express charges on oranges people eat in Chicago and New York? Since oranges retail here at apparently the same prices as in those localities, that is what the Californian does. The answer to the question is probably that the orange growers are organized and prices standardized.

There is a curious economic sophistry or nigger in the woodpile somewhere in this. There is more than one reason why this limits home consumption enormously, I imagine. But then the most loyal Californians will tell you that the best fruit of all sorts is sent out of the state, which seems to me a common performance enough, but all wrong, too. Probably this is not wholly true, but at my first attempt to buy oranges I did not find a perfect one among those I picked up from a large lot, at a high price considering the quality. But just before that I had for a cafeteria dessert an orange of wonderful size and aroma that certainly had one side sweeter than the other, and was altogether finer than any much traveled fruit.

Perhaps California has within the last few years solved the cull citrus problem better than it has ever before been solved, and what she has done ought to help orange consumers everywhere, especially at periods when the market is overstocked.

Simple Process for Marmalade.

By scientific experiments at the state university at Berkeley—you can get circular No. 146 on "Jellies and Marmalades from Citrus Fruits"—some of the problems concerning the utilization of culls and excess crops have been solved. For one thing the juice is combined with cooked, thinly sliced peel, and the mixture is canned and sterilized. The housewife buys this, combines it with sugar with but little cooking, I imagine, and so makes a marmalade, "conveniently, cheaply, and without fear of failure."

Another result of experiment is thus summarized: "A new process of making marmalade has been developed, by which the time of manufacture is greatly reduced and the flavor and color retained to a much greater degree than in marmalade now produced."

All the citrus fruits contain the element pectin or fruit gelatin. This when combined with acid fruit juices and sugar "jells." Commercial jellies are so unlike the fresh fruits from which they are made often because animal gelatin is used. It is now possible to buy fruit pectin or make your own from citrus fruits, which contain a large amount to combine with strawberries, cherries, peaches, and other fruits whose juices contain too little pectin to jelly.

How Pectin Is Made.

To make this pectin, according to Circular No. 146 of the University of California, you should proceed as follows: "The whole fruit is used and is first cut into pieces about one-fourth inch thick. If cut too fine, the fruit in cooking becomes too mushy and the pectin solution very cloudy; if too coarse, the pectin is imperfectly extracted. The liquid should cover the fruit and boil slowly."

Right here is a point in the description which I object to. It says that "the volume of water should be kept constant by additions of water when necessary." If cooked slowly enough, this will not be necessary, and I know on general principles that having to add water to anything midway, while it is cooking, is not the best practice and may be exceedingly bad practice. It is demonstrable. But to continue the quotation:

"Rapid and too prolonged boiling softens and breaks up the fruit and gives a muddy liquor. About one hour's boiling has given satisfactory results. At the end of that time the liquid contains the pectin and should be clear and of more or less gummy consistency. It must be separated from the fruit while still hot to avoid the necessity of too much pressing. Most of the pectin may be strained off through a coarse mesh bag—for example, cheesecloth—without pressure; the remaining liquid may be extracted by gentle pressure," and kept separate.

Clearing the Solution.

Following this are directions for clearing the pectin solution: "Jelly is most attractive if bright. The clearing must be done before the sugar is added. The most simple and effective method thus far is to allow the pectin solution to stand twenty-four hours to settle. The clear liquid can then be decanted or siphoned off and used without further clarification. The sediment can be strained through a heavy felt or flannel jelly bag. Fruit jars or bottles are suitable containers for the liquid during the settling process. With careful boiling no clearing is necessary."

Since acid is necessary to jelly besides pectin, it has been found that fully ripe oranges and grapefruit do not contain enough of it to give a good jelly in all cases; therefore lemons are added, four to six being allowed to each dozen oranges or grapefruits.

The decision about cane and beet sugar is not uninteresting, since so many people all over the country believe that you cannot make jelly with the latter. Here they say the two are equally good, since they are the same chemically, and the prejudice against beet sugar is unwarranted.

Less Sugar with Much Pectin.

When a large amount of pectin is present in a fruit juice with the necessary acid, the sugar may be as low as 50 per cent, but the jelly must be sterilized and sealed under such circumstances; otherwise it will ferment or mold. But it will not spoil with 65 per cent of sugar, with the large amount of pectin. If water is to be boiled off, it should be done before sugar is added. This condenses sugar present in fruit. The thermometer test has been found most reliable. A juice should jell at 8 degrees above boiling point, or 220 degrees for most of the country. The "sheeting" test is also used; that is, the jelly is cooked enough when it sheets from the spoon.

Since boiling fruit for the extraction of the pectin and then the boiling of the sugar solution drives off much of the fruit flavor and aroma, this is replaced by orange extracts added when the jelly has cooled to 175 degrees. I have given before now the method of making this for an orange ice, and prefer to let it remain overnight even when water is used, but here are the directions of the bulletin:

"Grate the yellow rind from two oranges and two lemons fine. To the gratings add about three teaspoons of water and squeeze the liquid from the mixture through a small cloth bag. This will flavor about eight glasses of jelly."

If pure grain alcohol is added and the whole stands overnight, six or eight drops per glass is enough of the extract, if added when it has cooled to 175 degrees.

By Elizabeth O. Hiller.

All measurements are made level in these recipes. A teaspoon of regulation size holds sixty drops. Three level teaspoons equal one level tablespoon. Sixteen level tablespoons equal one cup (one-half pint). The half-pint measuring cup is the standard measuring cup used in modern cookery.

Kumquat Preserves.

Wash the kumquats and drain well; cut (without peeling) into halves or quarters lengthwise and remove the seeds. Weigh the fruit. Allow one pound or three-fourths of a pound of sugar for each pound of fruit (according to the richness desired) and half the weight of the fruit in water. Turn the fruit with the water into an agate preserving kettle and let simmer until fruit is perfectly tender, but not broken. Carefully skim out the fruit and to the liquid, which has lost in volume by evaporation, add water that the whole may equal half the weight of the sugar; allow the juice of one lemon for each pound of fruit. Add the sugar and stir until melted; then boil five minutes, skim, add the fruit, and let simmer until fruit is transparent. The sirup should be of the same consistency as that of preserved Canton ginger. Store in sterilized glasses as jelly.

Rhubarb Charlotte.

Soak one-third package of gelatin in one cup of cold water thirty minutes; dissolve in hot rhubarb, add two tablespoons of orange or kumquat marmalade, and stir over ice water until mixture begins to "set"; then cut and fold in one and one-half cups of triple cream whipped until solid. Turn into a mold lined with split lady fingers and chill thoroughly. To prepare the rhubarb, cut the pink tender stalks of southern rhubarb in half inch pieces. And for one pound of prepared stalks use one pound of sugar; cook slowly uncovered and without water, until tender. Then use as directed. Serve with whipped cream.

Hot Cheese Sandwiches.

For these sandwiches use the small sized baker's sandwich bread; being more porous it is better than home made bread. Cut in slices one-fourth inch thick and trim off the crusts and spread thinly with mustard. Cover half the slices with thin slices of moist common factory cheese or spread with a generous layer of grated cheese and sprinkle with salt and a few grains of cayenne. If the cheese be grated, any dry cheese may be used. Cover with a second slice of bread and press together. Have ready in an iron frying pan three tablespoons of melted butter or olive oil (the latter is preferable, as it will brown the sandwiches evenly without burning them); saute the sandwiches in the hot fat to a golden brown on one side, then turn and brown them on the other side. These sandwiches may be cut in "fingers" or in three narrow strips the shape and size of Saratoga wafers. Serve hot.

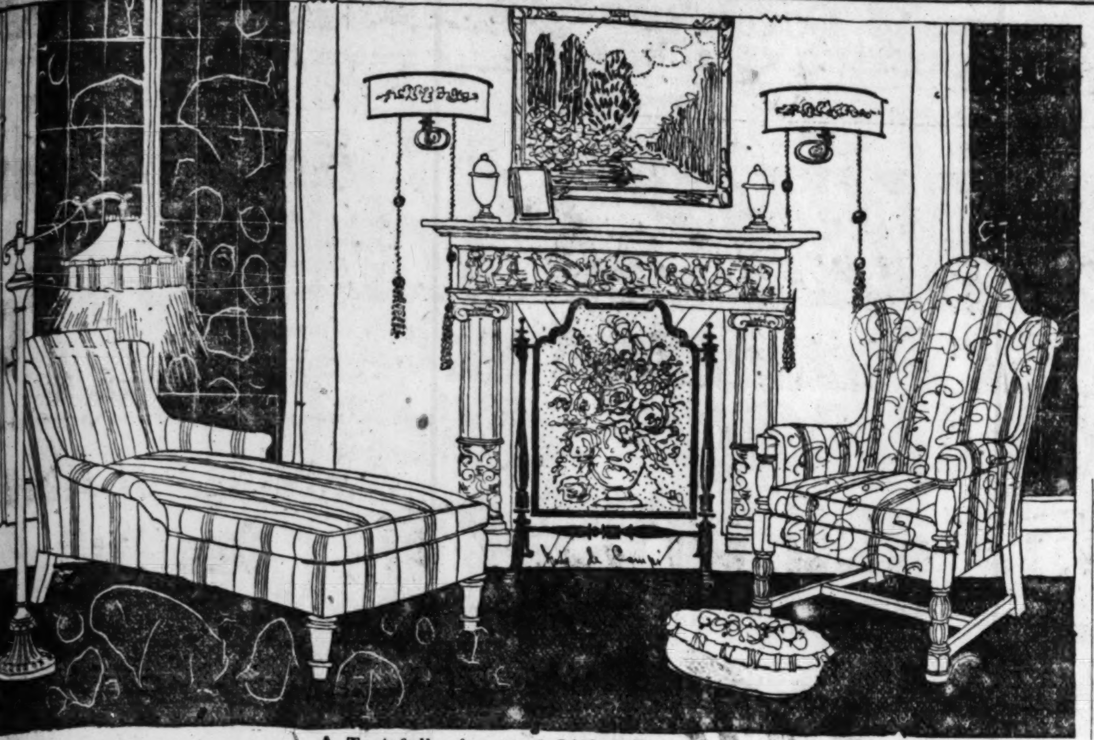
The HOME HARMONIOUS

By Anita de Campi



A Tastefully Arranged Living Room.

Anita de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to home building and home furnishing. Address your letter to Anita de Campi, Sunday Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

IN THE LIVING ROOM.

"WHAT'S wrong with it?" Did you ever ask yourself that about your living room? It is a question with a different answer for every one who puts it. Two solutions that are most common are in point of color and in point of arrangement. They are the two factors that make it either cheerless or uncomfortable.

One small intensive spot of color will often save it from gloom. If the scheme is in yellowish gray and burnt orange, a touch of brilliant turquoise will relieve it. A mauve and putty scheme is deadly until a piece of glazed pottery in light bright yellow filled with a variegated bouquet has been added. A sage green and black room fairly demands a flash of flame color, and so on.

The most pleasing living room is rather neutral in wall color, with deep toned floors. Comfortable pieces are a roomy, well made davenport, two large upholstered chairs, a table big enough to hold books and papers spread out upon it. Add to these beautiful smaller pieces, chairs, incidental tables, a bookcase or book shelves, a musical instrument, lovely accessories, and lights, plenty of lights in the right places. For the small informal living room a chaise longue or a da-bed is permissible, but if space permits the davenport may be used as well.

About the arrangement, something depends upon the season of the year. The big pieces drawn closely snuggling up to the fireplace, while they have a sense of cheer and comfort before the glowing fire, seem to take on a silly aspect when the fire is no longer there.

It is that delightful time of "changing everything about" that every woman takes a rather mischievous pleasure in because she knows that is friend husband's particular pet peeve.

In almost every living room the fireplace is the focal point of interest. It may remain so even when the fire is no longer there if a beautiful screen is provided to hold attention.

The idea is developed in the accompanying illustration, where an exquisite painting in a French walnut frame has been converted into a fire screen. Such a frame would serve equally well filled in with a piece of finely decorative needle work known as gros point or petit point, a sort of big and little cross stitch embroidery, or it might be filled with a breadth of brocade or a piece of Batik.

Over the mantel is a flat toned painting in a dull gilt frame. Bits of brilliant color are introduced in the electric light pulls that hang from under the wide parchment shield shades. The pulls are made of gold colored silk cord. The wooden balls slipped upon the cord are of bright Chinese red and yellow, and the tassels have their fringe part made of bright peacock blue tiny beads.

The big chair is upholstered in robin's egg blue damask, and the chaise longue is covered with blue and fawn striped mohair velvet. The lamp shade beside the chaise longue is in flame colored silk, and the rug is in blue grape color, while the wall is painted a light barley tint. The draperies are of transparent blue and gray changeable sunfast.

Interesting grouping of furniture has become quite a study. A fine old family portrait above a good looking console table, with perhaps a little ornamental bench in front of it and a chair at either side makes a fascinating group. You haven't an old family portrait? Well, don't worry about that. Buy one! Don't be afraid of seeming to be a poser; you are simply creating proper atmosphere. If you have lovely old things in your room, a lovely old portrait will give an added air of distinction. There is about it a subtle charm. In period rooms—an English colonial, for example—a good old portrait is indispensable as a part of the decorative scheme.

Generally speaking, it is well not to set things out in the middle of the room. This is especially to be warned against in the case of small tables. Incidental tables are nice, but they must be placed close up to where they are needed and not left as isolated "cuss catchers" for the impatient person who has to pick his way around them. For the smoker a little table beside his chair or at the sofa end commends itself to comfort, and so for one who sews or reads.

Chairs should clear the doors of bookcases, cabinets, wardrobes, etc., and not have to be moved to gain access to these articles. While a chair or two may be pulled out at a convenient angle, catacornered arrangements are seldom pleasing. Furniture and rugs are best placed in lines that accord with the structure of the room. Pictures look best if they are fairly uniform in size and have their upper or lower edges on a horizontal line all the way around the room.

You will see in all this, however varied the rooms may be, a certain systematic order.

MRS. E. E. W.: If your dining room is dark, choose buff for the redecoration of the side walls. Would you have room for all of the atricles you mention on your buffet? If so, they are all permissible. Place the Senna jars on little teakwood stands. Use draw curtains of casement cloth in the dining room and omit the roller shades. Yes use the silver candle sticks on the console.

Make Your Skin Like Velvet

DON'T you wish your face was as smooth and fair as your body? It would be if protected from wind and dust. If you want a clear smooth skin.

Try this simple formula—"A little CREME ELCAYA rubbed gently into the skin; then if you need color, a very little rouge spread carefully over the cheeks before the cream is quite dry; and after that the film of Elcaya face powder over all."

CRÊME ELCAYA

is a delightful, non-greasy, disappearing toilet cream that makes the skin like velvet.

Your dealer has ELCAYA and has sold it for years. Ask him.

A Bigger, Better Electric Washer—

A COMPACT, complete laundry outfit. The ideal machine for your laundry room. You can wash two batches of clothes at the same time and be wringing another batch from rinse water to basket. One operation follows the other in quick succession, and the entire washing is done without lifting the clothes. You simply wring them from one position to the next one and get done in a "jiffy."

Quicker Yet
WASHES CLEAN

Double Tub Electric Washers

eliminate the necessity of boiling clothes. Most users of them wash the clothes through two hot waters having boiling hot water in the second tub. Remember that the cypress wooden tubs (the wood eternal) retain the heat in the water so that it is almost as hot for the last batch of clothes as the first. Others wash the clothes in one tub and rinse them in the other.

You can wash with both tubs at once or operate either tub independently. The "any position" swinging wringer can be used with the machine tubs or separately. Wringer swings over stationary laundry tubs. Entire outfit built at comfortable height—a labor saver, time saver.

Ask the dealer in your locality to demonstrate the Quicker-Yet for you.

We also manufacture Power Washers in similar styles for use in connection with gasoline engines, and Hand Washers.

Mother says: It's Quicker Yet

"The family washing doesn't bother me. The Quicker-Yet Double Tub Washer does all the work both washing and wringing. I do the directing. My washings are large, but my clothes are always first on the line. My clothes are spotlessly clean and I can change linens to my heart's content. Wash day is an easy day."

Father Says: It's cheaper Yet

"That Quicker-Yet Double Tub Washer sure was a good buy. The original cost was less than I expected, and in a year's time it has paid for itself. The upkeep has been nothing and wife says it works perfectly. Furthermore, we eat at our house now on wash day the same as any other day."

The Children Say: It's Cleaner Yet

"Wash days have changed at our house since we got our Quicker-Yet. Mother isn't cranky. We don't have to get up early and turn the wringer. Our clothes are as clean as they can be and Mother doesn't scold when we get them dirty. Mother lets us run the wringer sometimes—Gee! it's fun."

Real Love Stories

Do you know a real love story—one that is stranger than fiction? It is the idea that is wanted. No attention will be paid to literary style. The Tribune will pay $5 for every story published. No manuscripts returned. Address Doris Blake, The Tribune, Chicago.

TRANSLATING LOVE LETTERS.

WHILE living in South America mother met a man in Valparaiso, whom she married on an impulse, leaving him the same way when one summer she fled to the United States, leaving behind a baby daughter. Her husband agreed to a divorce, mother sacrificing little Pepita by the contract.

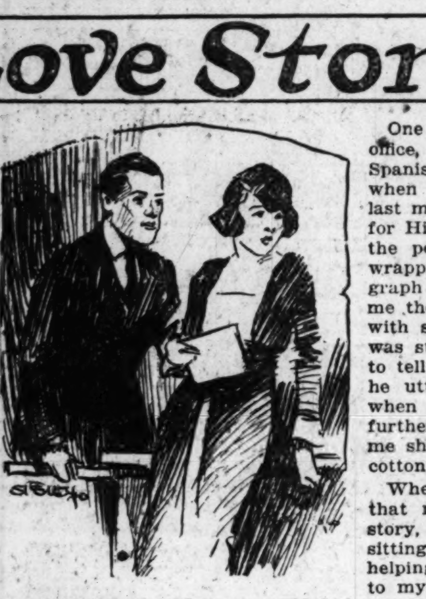
While living in Georgia with relatives mother met a cotton merchant, a second marriage followed, and then I came. Seldom was there a mention of mother's former marriage, but I did know that mother's first husband was a Spanish importer, quite wealthy, and that little Pepita, her daughter, was living with her father, but where we did not know, for no news ever came from them.

I was 4 years old when father came to Chicago, engaging in cotton brokerage until his death some years later. Thrown into the business world, depending on my own resources, speaking a fluent Spanish, writing it as well, I secured a position with an importing and exporting company, transcribing all Spanish correspondence.

Having built up an agency in Mexico, the company sent Hill, our system manager, down there to put some system into the place. He was there two months, establishing a young man in the business, then he came back.

He brought back with him a secret, which, much to my surprise, he let me in on, insisting that I looked so much like the young señorita he had met and fallen in love with and with whom he wished to keep in touch that he didn't mind my knowing his secret. In reality the reason was the young woman could speak a broken English, but write not a word, so had sent Hill several letters in Spanish, which he, unable to read, asked me to translate for him.

For five months, I was the interpreter for the two lovers, translating her letters and making replies, which Hill painfully copied. While Hill didn't mind my reading her letters—he couldn't help himself—he never let me get hold of the address, guarding the envelopes carefully, and as the girl always merely signed herself with an endearing name, I never could find out who the sweetheart was.



One afternoon, I was in his private office, watching him sign a batch of Spanish letters I had just written, when the postman came in with the last mail—a big package and a letter for Hill from the señorita! Dropping the pen on the desk, Hill tore the wrapping off the package, a photograph of the señorita! As Hill handed me the photograph I fairly fell back with surprise—the likeness to myself was startling, aghast. I begged Hill to tell me her name, and hardly had he uttered the first name—Pepita—when I knew—my half sister! Hill further verified the fact when he told me she was a daughter of a wealthy cotton importer!

When I brought him home with me that night and mother heard the story, she was happy. I didn't mind sitting up until way past midnight, helping Hill compose his love proposal to my half sister. I was winning a step-brother-in-law, and I liked Hill immensely.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send parcels to The Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Home from the Hospital.

"Is there anybody who has a morris chair that I may have? I have been at home from the hospital a week, after an operation and an illness of three months. I am now able to sit up, but a rocker is not comfortable. I cannot afford to buy a morris chair just now, but will pay the express charges. MRS. E. T."

I trust that this invalid will soon receive the chair she wants and needs so much. I shall be happy to send her name and address to any one with such a chair to give away.

Old Magazines to Donate.

"We are to move May 1 and I find that we have many years of the Geographical Magazine, which we would be very glad to pass on to any one that would call for them. V. H. L."

This will prove a veritable treasure trove for somebody, and I feel sure the magazines will soon be claimed.

Part of a Melodeon.

I wonder if some one could use the inside of an old melodeon, the keys all on the board in rotation. I will give it to any one who would like it and who could make a case for it. S. M."

Here is a splendid chance for some one who enjoys using hammer and nails, as well as making music.

Music for Piano.

"If you have the name of any person who wants to give away some sheet music for the piano I should be more than glad to receive it (either popular or classical). I shall be happy to pay the postage on any I can get.

"I. R. S."

Doubtless there are many people who have some sheet music that they will be pleased to send where it is wanted, and where it will be appreciated.

Equivalent to 1/3 of first Liberty Loan Lost!

One billion dollars' worth of food stuffs are destroyed in this country every year, by rats! This is equal to one-third of the first Liberty Loan. Government statistics show that rats destroy more food than 150,000 farmers can produce. Rats, Mice, Roaches, Waterbugs and Bedbugs are doubly dangerous; they spread disease.

J-O is a clean, safe, convenient exterminator. Comes in paste and powder form. The standard for 46 years. 25c at most drug stores.

NOW IS THE TIME TO BUY FURNITURE

Of Vital Importance to Chicago Home Folks

READ! READ!

Furniture prices are advancing with leaps and bounds. The stock of high grade furniture we offered last week—at old time prices—is rapidly thinning out. But there's still quite an extensive assortment to select from.

We did a tremendous business last Monday and expect to double it tomorrow. People aren't asleep nowadays. They go where they can get the most for their money. From the crowds that jammed our Furniture Section last week it is quite evident that folks have found one of those money saving places in the Furniture Section of the Leiter Building Stores. We'll expect you tomorrow.

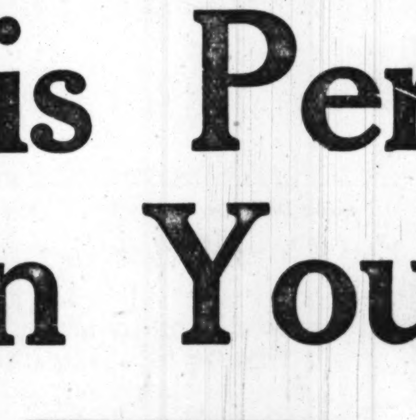
You Need This Perfect, Scientific Refrigeration in Your Home—Now!



The important thing is—get your Alaska Refrigerator right away! Food is too costly to waste. Ice is expensive. With an Alaska Refrigerator, your food is always fresh, clean and wholesome. It is kept correctly cold. Moreover, your ice lasts longer.

Consequently, your Alaska Refrigerator is a decided economy. It pays for itself in the food it saves and the ice bills it cuts. With present prices, it is extravagance to do without an Alaska.

The Alaska Refrigerator gives perfect, scientific refrigeration. It is the most perfect development of the most perfect principle of home food preservation. Chill dry air constantly circulates in the food compartments. The temperature is exactly right to keep food and liquids best. Yet, no ice is wasted.

Thick walls of "cubed" cork and "confined" air—the two best insulators known to science—completely surround the food chambers. No warm air gets in; no cold inside air can escape. Only the Alaska Refrigerator has this great superiority.

Linings are of genuine seamless porcelain; or durable, immaculate white enamel with rounded corners. Always clean—easily washed.

Many convenient sizes. A style for every kitchen. Attractive cabinets beautifully finished. Lasting and substantial. Yet prices are no higher.

You need an Alaska Refrigerator now! It reduces living costs. You need it now even more than in summer—because of high food prices. Go to your dealer. Ask him to show you all the Alaska Superiorities. Make sure you get the perfect, scientific refrigeration of the Alaska Refrigerator. Or write us for illustrated booklet.

The Theaters

By Percy Hammond.

APPENDED is a timid billboard containing modest counsel for the unwary adventurer as he seeks his way among the theaters of the Union Loop:

"Welcome, Stranger"—The amusing annals of a lowly and humorous Jew, who strives not ignobly and with great success to endear himself to riches and his fellowman. His story ranges from a windy New Year's eve, whereon he enters the hostile hamlet of Valley Falls, N. H., through many savory anecdotes, to a heavenly terminus in opulence and a fur-lined overcoat. George Sidney, a faithful actor, too long in obscurity, represents this dauntless pilgrim. His is a shrewd and gentle study of the minor Jew, acquisitive, thrifty, generous, long-suffering, and with a sober wit. Miss Margaret Mowrer is the pretty girl of the show and her picture of cold and despair in the first act is fine and honest, though she seems not so satisfactory after she is thawed out. Ben Johnson, who was one of my selections for the holy rôle of "Abraham Lincoln," plays a village banker with almost the impressiveness of a financier; David Higgins provides a rich counterfeit of a rural inventor, and there are other valid impersonations. I have seen "Welcome, Stranger" four times, because it is the season's best bad play.

"The Shubert Gaieties of 1919"—Among the genial remarks which may be made about this entertainment is that Jack Norworth and Harry Watson are in it, a thoroughly effective "team." Also that its prima donna, Miss Margaret Farrell, is Irish and smart. It is a big and typical Winter Garden enterprise, leaning to quantity rather than to quality, and many persons, including some of your best friends, like it, though you don't know why.

"Golden Days"—Sunny stuff about an egregious crowd of little men and little women, chief among whom is Miss Patricia Collinge's ever ready ingénue. She begins humbly in a small town teahouse and ends in Fifth avenue, happy, accomplished, and engaged to be married.

"The Ruined Lady"—A correspondent, an eminent hardware merchant of Sioux Falls, writes to the editor of THE TRIBUNE asking that I be disciplined for having found and reported entertainment in Miss Grace George's performance of this naughty drama. He says that it is a "smutty thing," reeking with animality, an indecorous treatment of an unpretty theme, and that he is ashamed of Chicago, the great central market, for permitting such a sexly exhibition. In it Miss George is a hopeful spinster who, impelled by the cosmic urge, as the saying is, seeks to mate herself with an inert, though by no means atrophied, male acquaintance. Her campaign in behalf of the blue bird displays her en negligee in his rooms at midnight in a coaxing mood. She is gifted at roguish innuendo and her hints and intimations have a smiling timidity, distressful to chaste purveyors of chilled plows and ten-penny nails. It might not be so immoral if these froward tactics were accompanied by the rosy blush of (mature) maidenhood; but even the most decent actresses find it difficult to light in their cheeks the pink fires of virtue. They can wet their eyes at will with expedient teardrops, indicative of misery and anguish, but the wary blush of sex evades them, even when it is needed to dye, with the celestial colors of innocence, the pleasing improprieties. "The Ruined Lady" is a bright, cheap play, and in it there is one of those rich "bits" by which American comedies are frequently distinguished. This is a wild woman of the chorus, with mercenary hosiery, no illusions, and a wealth of acid prattle. She is played by Miss May Hopkins with a gay and incredible veracity.

"The Rose of China"—This is musical comedy in its most self-respecting mood. It is cleanly, beautiful, often comic, and Miss Jane Richardson, its youthful prima donna, acts a timorous maiden of Cathay (in love with Oscar Shaw as a jaunty American) with delicate charm. The prodigious Mr. McIntyre is at hand making merry with Miss Cecil Cunningham.

"Clarence"—One of Booth Tarkington's beguiling "studies in adolescence," combined with the story of an amusing ex-soldier in the throes of demobilization. Miss Elsie Mackaye, who joined the Chicago cast in order to be married to Lionel Atwill, has gone back to New York, and Miss Beth Murray has returned to play the governess who is the heart's desire of Robert Adams, the battling beetle-hound. Every one has seen "Clarence," so it is going away next week. Miss Collinge and "Golden Days" will move from Powers' to the Blackstone to stay all summer.

"Howdy, Folks"—An interesting though occasionally awkward transcript of life among the primitive and isolated natives of the Tryon mountains in North Carolina, made by Miss Pearl Franklin from Mrs. Ella W. Peattie's "Azalia" stories. The manager says that Mandy Coulter, played by Miss Leila Bennett, is a counterpart of Mandy Hatfield, daughter of "Devil Anse" Hatfield, the famous feudist who gloried in the description of "six feet of devil and [illegible] pounds of hell" given him by an admiring governor of Kentucky. The play's types are many and graphic, and include Alphonse Ethier's dominant fightin' parson.

"Monte Cristo Jr."—Large show, large audiences, large comedienne. Miss Fanny Watson, a feminine Falstaff, is the first among its merrymakers, and she wreaks her hefty joviality with success upon those in attendance. This drama is over my head; I do not understand it. But one of my most fastidious acquaintances tells me that she has been to see it five times.

"Sometime"—The girls are handsome, the costumes rich and individual, the novel story is one of the best in musical comedy, and Frank Tinney excels himself in feats of unctuous drollery. In "Sometime" Mr. Tinney is to be seen in his proper complexion, first as the landlord of an actors' boarding house and later as the property man of a theater. The sadder the joke the funnier it becomes under Mr. Tinney's ministrations. The prima donna, Miss Geraldine Waide, imitates Miss Ruth Chatterton perfectly, Miss Jean White is a racy comedienne, the other actors are good, and the show is far above the B'way standard.

"Dear Me"—I shall let the clergy beat the drum ecclesiastic in front of the Cort theater, where Miss Grace La Rue and her admiring associate, Mr. Hale Hamilton, perform the simple and righteous ceremonies, above entitled. The Rev. Rufus A. White says: "It is with pleasure that I express to you my appreciation of your very excellent and interesting play at the Cort, 'Dear Me.' Both Mrs. White and myself enjoyed it hugely. It is charmingly staged and wholesomely clean. May I not congratulate you on your personal part in the performance?"

William Roe Conner, a vicar of Christian Science, writes: "I am certain that the thought which enabled the production of such a beautiful yet unique play must have been the manifestation of Principle, and I sincerely trust that we shall witness the day when the popularity of the stage will depend upon its inspiring and uplifting message."

Elsie Janis and Her Gang—Their "bombproof revue" is a stimulating and enjoyable reminiscence of the war in its cheerier aspects. Miss Janis' soldiers are good-natured and able, delectably nonprofessional in their performances, and the unparalleled star herself has never been so radiant as she is in command of her talented platoon. The week's best bet.

"The Royal Vagabond"—This was once a comic opera platitude, with a tenor in purple tights sitting on a café table singing moon-songs, until Mr. Cohan took charge of it. He rewrote the thing, removing its sentimental stupidity, and made it a rakish Cohan satire and a B'way success. Robinson Newbold, rather an unknown but a very funny man, is the comedian. "The Royal Vagabond" reaches the Colonial tomorrow night.

At Powers', April 12, George M. Cohan will present his new star, Georges Renavent, in a fresh play by a Mr. McIntyre, a Philadelphian, called "Genius and the Crowd." Earlier in its suburban career the piece was known as "The Irresistible Genius," but the populace had some difficulty in fathoming the word "irresistible," so the title was reduced to terms more easily understood. Mr. Renavent is a French actor. After Mr. Cohan had seen him play in "Genius and the Crowd" in Baltimore or in Boston, he ordered him to be made a star and the electric signs in front of the theater were changed over night to symbolize that distinction. The cast of "Genius and the Crowd" is an imposing one, headed by Miss Marion Coakley, unknown here, but a celebrity in the east; Cooper-Cliffe, Fuller-Mellish, Wright Kramer, Rubi (sic) [illegible], Nancye (sic) Stewart, are in the troupe, which will be accompanied by a band of fifteen pieces. Mr. Cohan will attend the premiere with his daughter, Miss Georgette Cohan, lately returned from dignified and substantial triumphs upon the London stage.

Sir J. M. Barrie's "The Truth About the Russian Ballet," says the reviewer in the London Morning Post, "recalls previous extravaganzas by the same author, notably 'Rosy Rapture' and 'Pantaloon.' The idea which rather [illegible] underlies an entertainment that lasts nearly an hour is that a Karsavina is made and not born. Born, of course, she has to be, but that is a mere formality; her real father is the maestro who converts the raw material into the great ballet. Hence she mixes with ordinary humans at her peril; if she marries she must die in childbirth, though her offspring may at a surprisingly early age catch butterflies while running on his toes. Here Sir James secures a happy ending by supposing that Karissima's maestro is induced to make the sacrifice necessary to restore her to life, and the bier on which her chorus of mourning who have borne in her corpse is carried off by them freighted with the body of the maestro." Karsavina plays the leading rôle, a silent one.

Miss Nordstrom acts in and is the author of "The Ruined Lady," the mischievous comedy at the Princess. She is, among other things, the sister-in-law of Henry E. Dixey.

Future of Stage Not Threatened by Movie Influence

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The stage may be endangered by the threatened onrush of the moving picture millionaires. But, some way, I fail to react to the fear that this means a complete lowering of present standards, such as they are.

As between the gentlemen who have been selecting and producing plays for me during the last twenty years, and the gentlemen of the movies who may be in a position to do the selecting for the next twenty, I can't see that there is much choice. The newcomers cannot do much worse, and there is at least an even chance that they may do a lot better.

The men who are coming into power in the moving picture business, the men who are organizing new circuits and leasing and building new theaters, are not the nickelodion class of magnates. Many of them are graduates of theatrical management, and some of them represent, either personally or through the staffs with which they have surrounded themselves, the best elements previously concerned with play production.

Without a doubt there will continue to be many poor plays, worthless plays, trashy plays, produced; plays bought for their picture possibilties and staged merely for the sake of the advertising. But they will fail as quickly as poor plays have failed in the past, and be replaced by others. And they will have no effect on the general result.

As a matter of fact, writing for the Important Notice

An unusual situation, without precedent, a surfeit of theatrical successes in the city of Chicago forces a rearrangement of the bookings for Powers and the Blackstone Theatres.

"CLARENCE," the best American comedy of the season, is compelled to close Saturday night, April 10th. The production will be sent to San Francisco for a Spring and Summer run.

Patricia Collinge in "GOLDEN DAYS," the comedy of youth now in the midst of a successful engagement at Powers' Theatre will be transferred to the Blackstone Theatre, commencing Monday, April 12th.

Mr. Geo. M. Cohan will present at Powers' Theatre, beginning Monday, April 12th "GENIUS AND THE CROWD," offering to Chicago in addition to this success, a new star—GEORGES RENAVENT. Mr. Cohan is coming to Chicago to supervise the initial production.

By Mae Tinée.

MARY'S brother-in-law no more, we find this time hot on the trail of jewel smugglers.

After the war, the story has it, Capt. Phillip Plunkett was terribly at loss for something exciting to do. He'd served his country nobly and proved himself a true and daring soldier. Excitement and danger, however, had become as the breath of life to him and little old New York seemed pretty tame after war with the boches.

The fates prove on his side and he lands feet first in the midst of a jewel smuggling plot, in which two beautiful women are involved. One, Olga Karakoff, he loves—as who could blame him, for the rôle is taken by Naomi Childers.

I imagine that when first you see the title you will think the picture has something to do with clothes. It hasn't, at all. The word "duds" is applied to the bombs which didn't explode during the war, which peril the world. And more dangerous than "duds" are said to be many of the treasures of which Europe was pillaged. The one with which the story deals is the Sultana diamond, wrested from a French woman by German officers. Laws are broken and lives are risked in its quest.

The picture has lots of action and is well presented by a capable cast. It does not, however, afford Mr. Moore the best opportunity of his life.

It is said that Mrs. Sidney Drew, during all the time she has been making comedies, has not once thrown a pie, run along the edge of a skyscraper, been caught in the wrong bedroom, or resorted to trick photography. She will soon appear in a number of comedies made from the stories by Julian Street, called "After Thirty." Her first picture along these lines will be "The Charming Mrs. Chase."

The Stage and the Movies

screen, as bad as 80 per cent of the screen dramas turn out to be, is gradually developing a new school of playwrights—young, imaginative, daring, and confident—and these inspire at least the hope that eventually they will bring to the stage that which will help and not hinder its progress. At the worst, the stage will continue to be, as it always has been, quite worthy the taste of those who support it.

Another movie inspired melodrama is called "The Hole in the Wall." It is sponsored principally by George B. Seitz, who has written a thousand or more moving picture scenarios, including several eyelash serials in which the heroine escapes obliteration by that narrowest of margins at the end of the concluding reel of each day's run, but the accredited author is Fred Jackson.

It is not a good play in the sense of being a plausible or artfully written play. But it is an interesting bit of fiction translated in terms of drama and as holding in plot as any one of a dozen best sellers in detective story fiction. The particular adventure around which it swirls is that of Jean Oliver, who began life as a lady's companion in Boston, was wrongfully accused of theft by Mrs. Ramsey, her employer, and sent to Sing Sing for two years. Serving her time, she returns to society properly embittered and determined to be even with those who swore away her liberty and her good name.

Soon she becomes associated with a band of crooks who are working a "fake medium" game and preying upon the susceptible investigators of psychic phenomena. Their medium, a certain "Mme. Mystera," has just been killed in a car wreck and Jean agrees to substitute for her. While she is substituting she kidnaps the grandson of Mrs. Ramsey as a part of her own scheme of revenge.

A gifted young reporter-detective, who has long been suspicious of "Mme. Mystera," is also engaged in running down the Ramsey kidnapers. Thus he comes to the madam's rooms for a reading. Jean follows the usual formula of the tricky psychist until she is about to be unmasked, when she suddenly receives a real message from the other side that confounds her hearers. It is a dramatic twist to the scene and makes for an exciting act. A police raid follows, out of which the heroine is discovered to be the schoolday sweetheart of the young reporter, and all is well at the finish.

"The Hole in the Wall" refers to the widening breach that is being made by the investigators who are striving to establish communication between this world and the next. The cast is a capable one, being headed by Martha Hedman, John Holliday, Vernon Steel, and William Sampson.

Civic Orchestra Offers New Hope for American Artists

By W. L. Hubbard.

LAST Monday evening brought reason for sincere congratulation and unusual pleasure through the concert given by the Civic Music Student orchestra in Orchestra hall. It was the first public appearance of the new organization and the merit of the performance itself, the spirit shown by the young musicians, and the pleasure evinced by a large audience present, all served to lend significance and importance to the occasion.

That the listeners should be pleased was as gratifying as it was natural. There was that in the very air of the concert itself, which could but bring smiles of satisfaction to the faces of those who heard. But it was gratifying also to feel that an audience which had been assembled largely through curiosity or through social obligation could be roused to the lending of such genuine and hearty approval to what had been accomplished.

But the importance of the evening lay in the orchestra itself and the work accomplished. The Civic Music association brought together some eighty young students and amateur musicians, had them undergo examination so that a definite standard of capability was established, and two months ago—Jan. 29 to be exact—the first rehearsal was held in Orchestra hall under Mr. Stock's direction, the Chicago Orchestra association having lent its hearty coöperation to the movement and made possible Mr. Stock's carrying out of his desire to organize and train the new players.

Orchestra Almost Complete.

At that first private rehearsal every person present was surprised to discover that instead of violinists and cellists constituting the sole material available every section of the symphonic orchestra with the single exception of the bassoons was represented. This fact alone gave delightful but none the less needed proof of the wealth of musical and orchestral material at disposal here in Chicago—material which up until this time had no opportunity to secure the thorough and practical training essential for its ultimate employment in the symphonic orchestras of the country.

And the way in which the young players tackled that first rehearsal was a surprise to every one from Mr. Stock down. They went to it like veterans and in excerpts from the Tschaikowsky fifth Symphony, the Peer Gynt Suite, and the Godard Adagio showed not only that they could read accurately at sight but that they had the "feel" for ensemble performance.

Since that Monday two months ago Mr. Stock, and his associate conductors, Mr. Delamarter and Mr. Dasch, have worked tirelessly with the young players and the latter have given so willingly and heartily of their best that Mr. Stock voiced in glowing terms at the concert last Monday night his gratitude and his admiration for the devotion shown by them.

Director's Labor of Love.

It has been no light task to bring such material into shape, however willing and eager though it was. To Mr. Stock is due unlimited commendation and recognition for the unselfish devotion he has shown in this labor of love. To spend two hours or more each afternoon, four afternoons in each week, for two months rehearsing an amateur orchestra has been no light task and especially when it is remembered that every forenoon in each day had brought a similarly timed rehearsal of the Chicago orchestra, as well as the regular concerts here and in other cities.

And the rehearsing of the new material was, of course, infinitely more difficult and trying than the rehearsing of the regular orchestra, for in many instances it meant the singling out of individual players or of small groups and clearing and cleaning up technical inaccuracies and impurities that were unavoidably present. But the results last Monday night showed the labor had been well worth while. The orchestra played astonishingly well—with an accuracy, a certainty, and an appreciation of musical and interpretative values which convinced of the thoroughness of the work done and promised splendid results yet to be.

The Tschaikowsky fifth is no light task for any orchestral body, yet these young players, assisted by only four professional players—two violas, a bassoonist and an English horn—gave the whole work with a technical cleanness that surprised, and with an attention to dynamic and emotional details that told of the authority and mastery of Mr. Stock's musicianship. And the Peer Gynt Suite, under Mr. DeLamarter's leadership, and the Keller Souvenir and Waltz for strings, which Mr. Dasch so excellently led, but served to show that the playing was dependent for worth not upon the conductor alone but emanated from the young players themselves.

Players Enthusiastic.

And added to the technical and mechanical worth of the performance was the delightful youthfulness of it all. How they did enter into the work at hand! Everybody, from that vigorous tympani player and the brasses down to the last violinist, went to the work with a vim and a happiness that were infectious. No one who heard could resist the throb of that enthusiasm, and the response was as instant as it was unavoidable.

The significance of the concert, however, is still farther reaching than any merit contained in this particular first appearance. The bringing together of such excellent material and the shaping of it into usefulness is a step toward the Americanization of our orchestral organizations greater than has ever before been taken. It is the opening of the door to the utilization of the abundance of splendid material we possess in our young musicians—a material which until now has been left virtually untouched and wasted.

The American music student now has a way by which he can gain acceptance by the symphonic orchestras of the country. He can apply now for positions and feel that he is equipped and experienced sufficiently so that he need fear no comparison or competition with the foreigner who until now has ever had first choice of vacancies in the orchestral ranks.

We will need no longer to turn to Europe for our principals and our other players in our orchestras. America will supply them, and the day is not far distant, therefore, when the Americanization of our orchestral personnel, and ultimately of our conductors, will become an accomplished fact. We have waited long for the day, but the dawn has come, and never has day been more welcome.

Josef Lhevinne's Concert.

Owing to contact with the copyreader's scissors which when newspaper space is scarce know neither consideration nor mercy, the concert given in Orchestra hall last Tuesday evening by Josef Lhevinne and the Chicago orchestra under Mr. Stock received undeservedly curt dismissal in the music columns of Wednesday morning. That the offering of the evening proved "uninteresting and ineffective" was due not to any lack of ability or care shown on the part of any of the participants, but solely to the choice of works presented by Mr. Lhevinne and the orchestra.

The eminent Russian selected the first Concerto for piano by Beethoven and the fifth by Rubinstein. It would be foolish indeed to deny worth to the Beethoven C major concerto, but while recognizing its musical merit it may also not be out of place to claim that its interest in the eyes of present day concertgoers is largely that which historic value lends. It is not piano music that any longer strongly appeals and although played Tuesday with consummate skill by both Mr. Lhevinne and the orchestra, yet it left the hearers placid and a bit wearied.

As for the Rubinstein E flat concerto, it is not the mighty Anton at his best. Even at his best his work is apt to consist of rather showy pianistic handling of musical ideas that, while occasionally beautiful and truly vital, are again often commonplace and inconsequential. Self criticism was not one of the master's gifts and his compositions suffer accordingly. The fifth concerto is largely pianistic bluster and bravour with little of actual musical message of worth back of it. The first movement is hopelessly "made" and only the slow movement lends the work value.

Mr. Lhevinne played the number with all the devotion he feels for Rubinstein's memory, but not even his transcendent skill as technician and musician seconded by the best from Mr. Stock and his men could not lend the performance real interest and power.

English Opera on Tour.

Interesting information relative to the presenting of grand opera in English at popular prices was obtained from Arthur Dunham, the Chicago organist-conductor, who has been with an eastern organization as first conductor and who spent last week here. The company is called the Boston English Opera company and began its season last fall in Boston under the direction of E. M. Beck, who is not unknown to Chicagoans as the promoter of English opera organizations.

Mr. Beck proved a few years ago that grand opera in English at popular prices could be made to pay and gave some performances here in Chicago which even under unfavorable conditions were not without goodly degree of worth. The present organization is a larger and better one than he had before, and it played for twelve successive weeks in Boston to a busniess which was practically capacity for all save two of the twelve weeks. Since February the company has toured through New England and tomorrow commences a tour which beginning in Rhode Island extends through New York and into Canada and Nova Scotia. The season in Halifax beginning in May is for five weeks, three of which are announced as being already completely sold out.

The operas presented consist of "Faust," "Traviata," "Cavalleria Rusticana," and "Pagliacci" in double bill, "Carmen," "Martha," Rigoletto," "Lucia," "Aida," "Tales of Hoffman," and "Robin Hood." The chorus is a large one, an orchestra of forty-five players is used, and a complete double set of principals is carried. Every member of the organization is American and of course English is the language sung.

Nothing Lost in Translation.

Asked concerning translation, Mr. Dunham stated that the published version in the Ditson edition is used and that he has found that not a single musical phrase has had to be broken or changed in order to accommodate the text and that only rarely has any alteration had to be made in the words in order to preserve every musical accent.

"There is no possible argument that will stand against the using of English in opera in America," was Mr. Dunham's declaration. "Our young singers many of them need to learn to sing English clearly and accurately, but the worth of English as the one language for American audiences to hear is beyond all disputing."

Would it not seem that if a small organization working along comparatively simple lines can win such patronage, can give such pleasure, and can accomplish so much for opera in the United States it is about time large and wealthy companies like the Metropolitan and the Chicago should become American and do something for the American people?

IN "THE ROYAL VAGABOND," COLONIAL

Miss Eaton, the principal dancer of "The Royal Vagabond," is aged 17 and a native of Washington, D. C. She was a pupil of Adolf Bolm, and made her debut in one of his Russian ballets.

Concerts and Recitals

GRAND opera stars supply the Easter concert music today. At 3:30 this afternoon Mme. Galli-Curci gives a recital in the Auditorium, and at 8:15 in the same hall Mme. Rosa Raisa, Mr. Rimini, and Mayo Wadler, violinist, unite in a concert. Mme. Galli-Curci has listed Monro's "My Lovely Celia," German's "Daffodil's a-Blowing," the "Caro nome" from "Rigoletto," the Dell'Acqua "Vilanelle," Beecher's "Ay, la," Valverde's "Clavelitos," Liszt's "Breathe Gently My Song," the "Sempre Libera" from "Traviata," Rovello's "The Little Damozel," Murdock's "O Have You Blessed," Samule's "Little Bells," and the "Qui la voce" from "Puritani."

Mme. Raisa will sing the aria from "Sicilian Vespers" by Verdi, Mozart's "Voi che sapete," Rogers' "The Star," Silberta's "Yohrzeit," Rimski-Korsakoff's "Song of the Shepherd," the berceuse by Gretchaninoff, "The Volga Boat Song," arranged by Balakireff, and join with Mr. Rimini in the duet from Verdi's "Luisa Miller." Mr. Rimini has listed the "Largo al factotum" of Rossini, Tosti's "Veglio marti," and Alverez's "La Partida." Mr. Wadler will play two groups of violin solos. The accompanist will be Frank Laird Waller.

The St. Olaf choir, a choral organization from St. Olaf's college, Northfield, Minn., of which F. Melius Christiansen is director, is commencing a concert tour which includes New York and other eastern points. The first appearance will be in Orchestra hall tomorrow evening. The program includes the following choruses: Bach's "Blessing, Glory, and Wisdom," and "Praise to the Lord"; "Built on a Rock," by Lindeman; Luther's "A Mighty Fortress," Grieg's "The Word of God," Mendelssohn's "Savior of Sinners," Gretchaninoff's "God Hear My Prayer," Cruger's "Father Most Holy," Christiansen's "Hosanna" and "Beautiful Savior," and "Awake, Awake," by Nicolas.

Ruth Llewellyn, soprano, and Clara Drew Miller, pianist, furnish the program in the Young American Artists' series in Recital hall, Fine Arts building, next Thursday evening.

Alfred Cortot, the French pianist whose exceptional playing with the French Conservatory orchestra under Messager during the tour of this country by that organization is delightfully remembered, will be soloist with the Chicago Orchestra in its concerts Friday afternoon and Saturday evening in Orchestra hall. He will be heard in the Saint-Saëns C minor Concerto and also in the piano part of the Cesar Franck Variations Symphoniques for piano and orchestra. The purely orchestral numbers listed by Mr. Stock are the fourth Brahms Symphony and Dukas' Dance Poem, "The Peri."

Heniot Levy gives his annual piano recital in Kimball hall next Sunday afternoon, offering a Chopin program which contains the two Sonatas, the F minor Fantasy and three Ballades.

The Association of Commerce Glee club will offer its annual concert in Orchestra hall the evening of Tuesday, April 13. The especial soloist of the occasion will be Titta Ruffo.

The Choral society of Marshall Field & Co. under the direction of Thomas A. Pope will sing "The Messiah" in Orchestra hall on Wednesday evening, April 14. The chorus numbers 185 voices, the entire Chicago Orchestra will supply the accompaniments, and the soloists will be Olive Kline, soprano; Nevada Van der Veet, contralto; Arthur Hackett, tenor, and Arthur Middleton, bass. The performance will be open to the general public.

Vose Small Grand

A notable contribution to piano art—the Vose ideal, expressed in material of pronounced superiority—in design of perfect proportion and in craftsmanship of exquisite style.

THIS small Grand is so scientifically made that, for its size, its tone volume is remarkable; so remarkable, in fact, that a comparison will compel a choice in its favor.

A model designed to meet a demand for a Grand Piano that would not appear disproportionate in a music room of limited floor space.

NEWS OF CHICAGO SOCIETY

Some Impressions of a Homecoming Chicago Traveler

By Mme. X.

FROM the land of the glistening cocoanut palm to the land of the dingy, industrious palm—what a jump! The passionate blues of the Caribbean sea changed all too swiftly to the gloomy grays of the Atlantic ocean. Cape Hatteras is—to use West Indian vernacular—the grand swizzle stick of northern and southern currents. The mixing process is not unmixed with trouble, however, for the hapless voyager. The Goddess of Liberty, New York's soaring towers, Staten island's stark shrubbery never look so alluring as after six days on a 5,000 ton, banana laden steamer.

Nothing epitomizes New York itself better than the tulips in the foyer of the Plaza hotel. They are an aggressive crimson in hue and their firm, perfect petals are turned back on themselves in strange, fierce fashion. Their stems are long and strong, and the flowers seem to stretch eagerly out towards the passerby as if to say: "Look at us, would you recognize us? Don't we look just like real and audacious poppies?"

Types of Restaurant Life.

Just so the simple, country girl comes up to town and turns into the painted, glittering creature who glides and turns slowly about the ubiquitous tea dances, spreading, as she whirls, mysterious perfumes, and evoking thoughts and emotions of conflicting quality.'

New York restaurants are as crowded as before the great drought set in, but to the observant there's one noticeable change. There's not so much laughter and the talk is pitched in a more subdued key. A great deal of rich food absorbed without the aid of alcohol produces inevitably a lethargic state of mind impossible to overcome or shake off. Of course, no prohibitionist takes these manifestations into consideration, but the unbiased student of psychology can't fail to speculate on the fate of a race in danger of eating itself to death.

There is a type of American not to be matched in any other land, the fine fruit of our restaurant life. Two rolls of flesh over the collar at the back of the neck and an ever widening girth mark the man, while the woman's shoulders bulge over her stays and she carries in front a massive protuberance which must separate her completely from any knowledge of what is on her dinner plate or what footgear she wears.

Chicagoans on the Avenue.

Of course, in the concourse that floats up and down Fifth avenue, to the Chicago visitor other Chicagoans shine out like globules of phosphorus in a tropical sea at night. So the sight of such well known fellow citizens as Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cary, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Rutter, and Mrs. Edward Cary on the avenue gave color to an otherwise monotinted phantasmagoria.

The first named couple are one more of our attractive, desirable, irreplaceable young ménages whose departure we must mourn, for they are moving their household to Gotham in the immediate future. Business takes Mr. Cary there. They are seeking a home in Rye, N. Y., where another well known ex-Chicagoan, Mrs. Henry Stimson Jr. (Miss Isabelle McBirney), also lives.

The Carys will leave here Mrs. Cary's mother and sister, Mrs. Malcolm Caruthers, and Mrs. William G. Beale. They will, however, find in New York two brothers of Mr. Cary, Walter and Irving Cary.

Others Going Away.

We seem always to be grieving over the going away of well known and popular Chicagoans. This particular spring sees an exodus of unusual seriousness. To lose at one blow such hospitable and pleasant folk as the Joseph Winterbotham Jrs., the Rosecrans Baldwins, the Robert Carys, and such famous and irreplaceable bachelors as Abram Poole and Harry Milliken is a body blow at our social structure.

Abram Poole is to be married in May to one of New York's best known young women, Miss Mercedes da Costa. As he has leased his chic and delightful house in Lake View avenue for three years to the young newly weds, the Edward Cudahys, it is easy to read the writing on the wall—one more Poole gone to New York not to return!

He will find there three sisters and a brother, Mrs. McFadden, Mrs. Walter Weyl, Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin, and Ernest Poole, the well known writer. The only members of this once numerous Chicago family left here will be Mrs. Leverett Thompson and Ralph Poole.

The going of Harry Milliken is a distinct loss to the younger social set. It leaves only a few of a group that some cheerful wit called the "Art boys." The term included Abram Poole, Robert Allerton, and David Adler, as well as Mr. Milliken.

Europe Draws Many.

There's to be a big surge Europeward of a lot of our most prominent social leaders. Mrs. Arthur Ryerson and Mrs. John A. Carpenter are sailing for France about April 24. Mrs. Ryerson will be accompanied by her son, John B. Ryerson, and her sister, Miss Sophie Borie, while Mrs. Carpenter will be joined by her friend, Miss Hoyt Wiborg of New York.

Other Chicagoans sailing about the same time for the same shores are Mr. and Mrs. Honoré Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer with their respective offspring. Both families expect to take apartments in Paris and settle down for prolonged sojourns in that alluring metropolis.

To meet the news of these impending departures just as one steps off the train from a twelve weeks' outing—well, it's like a first view of Wilmette's uprooted trees lying helter-skelter as a fruit of last Sunday's cyclone. These families being torn from their roots here are some of Chicago's first growth. They leave us shadeless and arid. Just what will take root in the soil they forsake it is too soon to foretell, but probably it won't be the same kind of timber.

MISS MERCEDES H. de ACOSTA.

One of the most interesting engagements of the season was made known recently when Mrs. Ricardo de Acosta of New York announced that of her daughter, Mercedes, to Abram Poole of Chicago. Miss de Acosta, who is one of the most attractive young women in New York society, of the decided Spanish type, is a talented writer and published a book of poems, "Moods," last fall. She also wrote the lyrics for "What Next," which was given this winter for two weeks on Broadway by members of the Society for the Benefit of Charity. Miss de Acosta made her debut several years ago and is a member of the Junior league.

Mr. Poole, who is well known as a painter, was graduated from Princeton in 1904 and studied art in Paris, Munich, and Italy. He won the Grand Prix in Rome in 1911 and two years earlier he was awarded a similar honor at the Royal academy in Munich. He went overseas as a captain in the 343d infantry and later was transferred to the 102d infantry of the 26th division.

The wedding will take place on May 11 at Mrs. de Acosta's residence, 830 Park avenue. After a wedding trip Mr. Poole will bring his bride to Chicago to spend the summer. They probably will spend next winter in New York.

WOMEN'S CLUB PAGE

North End Club's Twenty-third Year of Active Work

By Lillian G. Ross.

IN reviewing the events of the twenty-third year of the existence of the North End club we feel we have made material progress in most of our activities. The civics, educational, legislative and suffrage committees have brought to us important phases of national and local interest.

The building committee has worked as always, along one line of thought—a permanent home for the club.

The Americanization committee's work has been quite varied, its main effort always being to bring about a closer coöperation between foreign born and native American citizens. A splendid program showing handicraft of women from Sweden and Greece, with musical talent and speakers from these two countries, was given. Many civic trips to places of interest have been arranged and attended by club members and foreign born women; among these trips were regular visits to the wounded men at Fort Sheridan. The better American speech movement is supported and a young Italian girl is the recipient of the musical scholarship.

The art and literature department has studied industrial art, with exhibits from Belgium and the Orient. The technique of etchings was the subject of one program and at each meeting a current art review was given. The artists' luncheon given by the department was attended by many well known artists, followed by a reception and gallery tour. The department takes an active part in the work of the Municipal Art league. The club has a valuable collection of paintings which is at present loaned to the Nicholas Senn High school.

The philanthrophy committee maintains five children, all over the age of 14 years, in school at vocational training by paying their parents the equivalent of what they would earn per month if at work. The committee is also doing after war construction work, and it personally examines the merits of the many charities to which the club contributes. Many families were remembered at Christmas time with baskets of food and clothing.

The home economics class, one of the most important departments in the club, as it touches all phases of life, has had an active and interesting year. It has endeavored to present the needs of the day to the class. The program included lectures and demonstrations by a domestic science instructor from the Boston cooking school; also the discussion and value of a community kitchen. The necessity of making laws to protect the woman spender against "blue sky" investments was presented by a member of the state's attorney's office, and how the influence of the home could overcome bolshevism through civic righteousness was another topic received. Lectures on the high cost of living and some of its cures have been delivered throughout the year. This committee supports a number of Belgian, French, and Armenian orphans, besides contributing to all departmental work of the club.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN LUNCH.

The Illinois Democratic woman's committee will launch its campaign activities with a luncheon on Monday, April 19, at the Iroquois club. Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic national committee, and Mrs. George Bass, chairman of the woman's bureau of the national committee, will speak, and also, possibly, one of the presidential candidates. 1c for a Hair Cut Instead of 50c

Cut Your Own Hair. Save Time and Money

$1.00 Cash Allowed for This Ad

Cut your hair twice and the Duplex is paid for COMFORT

ECONOMY

By using the Duplex stropping attachment, at least 100 hair cuts can be obtained from the four cutting edges, making the cost per hair cut only one cent. Quite a difference from the barber's heavy charges, isn't it? It makes a clear saving of $13.00 every year for each male member of the family. Besides this cash saving there are many other advantages in owning a Duplex. You can cut your hair in less than five minutes, instead of an hour at the barber's. No danger of catching dandruff or other hair disease. You can cut your hair any hour of the day or night, any day in the week. Mothers can cut the children's hair. And you are sure of a smooth, even hair cut at a cost of one cent instead of paying 50c for one that is uneven and jagged. You can't go wrong with a Duplex; the slanting teeth won't let you. The slanting teeth prevent pulling.

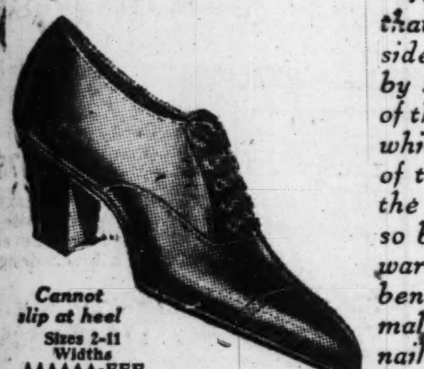
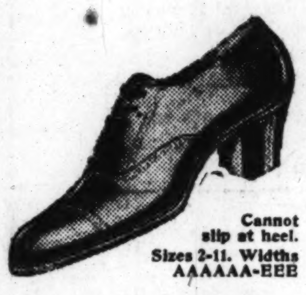
PERFECT FOOT COMFORT
DR. PINKSTON'S SHOES
Announcing New Spring Styles on the Triple Combination Last



Cannot slip at heel
Sizes 2-11
Widths
AAAAAA-EEE



Cannot slip at heel.
Sizes 2-11. Widths
AAAAAA-EEE

Never before has any one made an oxford or pump that positively would not slip at the heel or bulge at the side. Foot troubles too numerous to mention are caused by shoes being too large in the heel and instep. 90% of the people over eleven years of age have arch trouble, which is caused by the incorrect fitting of shoes. 50% of the people have bunions on the metatarsal joints of the first and fifth toes, which are due to the shoes being so broad in the heel and instep that the feet slide forward, removing the support from the arch and ankle, bending the shoe in the wrong place and causing abnormal pressure and friction; also causing corns, ingrown nails, crooked and overlapping toes, callouses on bottom of feet, flat foot, with resultant symptoms; the feet swell, burn, ache and have sharp pains under the heel, ball of feet is sore and feels as if walking on marbles, ankles become weak and swollen, legs cramp, knees stiffen, pains are produced in hips, small of back, shoulders and neck, poor circulation and extreme nervousness.

There Is a Dr. Pinkston Combination Last Shoe for Every Foot and for All Occasions

These shoes are better than the standard shoes because they are TWO WIDTHS NARROWER IN THE HEEL, ONE WIDTH NARROWER IN THE ARCH, AND TWO WIDTHS WIDER THROUGH THE BALL OF THE FOOT than any other shoe that has ever been made. The narrow heel PREVENTS THE SHOE FROM SLIPPING UP AND DOWN. The narrow instep KEEPS THE FOOT FROM SLIDING FORWARD. The broad ball gives PERFECT FREEDOM OF THE TOES. The entire comfort and grace of walking depend entirely upon the proper articulation of the ball of the foot. So many people have the mistaken idea that shoes are shoes and that one make of shoe is just as good as another; but after you have worn a pair of Dr. Pinkston's shoes you will realize that he has the shoe that you have long been looking for.

In Addition, Dr. Pinkston Has a Department Devoted Exclusively to Made-to-Measure Shoes

DR. PINKSTON'S MADE TO MEASURE SHOES PREVENT, RELIEVE AND CURE FOOT TROUBLES. There are twenty-six bones in the human foot which must be properly supported. Dr. Pinkston examines the foot and knows just where to place the support just as the individual foot requires. Dr. Pinkston makes a special last—a reproduction of your foot—and then builds a shoe over that last, thereby assuring perfect comfort and style. You can make your selections from the finest imported leathers in the world, of vegetable tannage, which prevents the burning sensation caused by acid tannage.

The fundamental principle of fitting and making shoes is to know the anatomy of the feet—to know just what bone is misplaced, what blood vessel is impeded and what nerve is impinged—then to know how to distribute the weight of the body equally from heel to ball and to support the weak places in a way to strengthen them. This is what Dr. Pinkston POSITIVELY DOES.

Just What You Want in a "Jiffy"

No need to get all "het" up and roast the whole family.

JUST because you want a hot bath is no reason why you should boost up the old furnace, waste a lot of coal, and over-heat the entire house.

The "Jiffy" is everybody's heater. Good enough for a rich man and cheap enough for a poor one. So confident are we of an enormous demand for these "Duplex-Jiffy Gas Water Heaters" we have stocked up with Ten Thousand of them. To start the sale we are offering them for a short time, at a

WE TEACH COMMERCIAL ART

Send For This Big Book

IF you could buy 19 years of practical commercial art experience; if you could buy this experience from the largest organization of its kind; then if you could have that organization personally teach and guide your commercial art studies—and if you could buy this service for a small sum, it would be a wonderful value wouldn't it?

THAT is exactly what you get in the MEYER BOTH COLLEGE OF COMMERCIAL ART.

HERE you are taught the fundamentals of art and their practical application to commercial purposes. Never has so much inside experience of successful commercial art practice been offered to students. The MEYER BOTH COMPANY is a nationally known success and conducts its school in its own name.

THE demand for good commercial art exceeds the supply—the opportunity is equally open to men and women—in this highly paid, intensely interesting profession. Without disturbing your present occupation, you can have this practical teaching by the

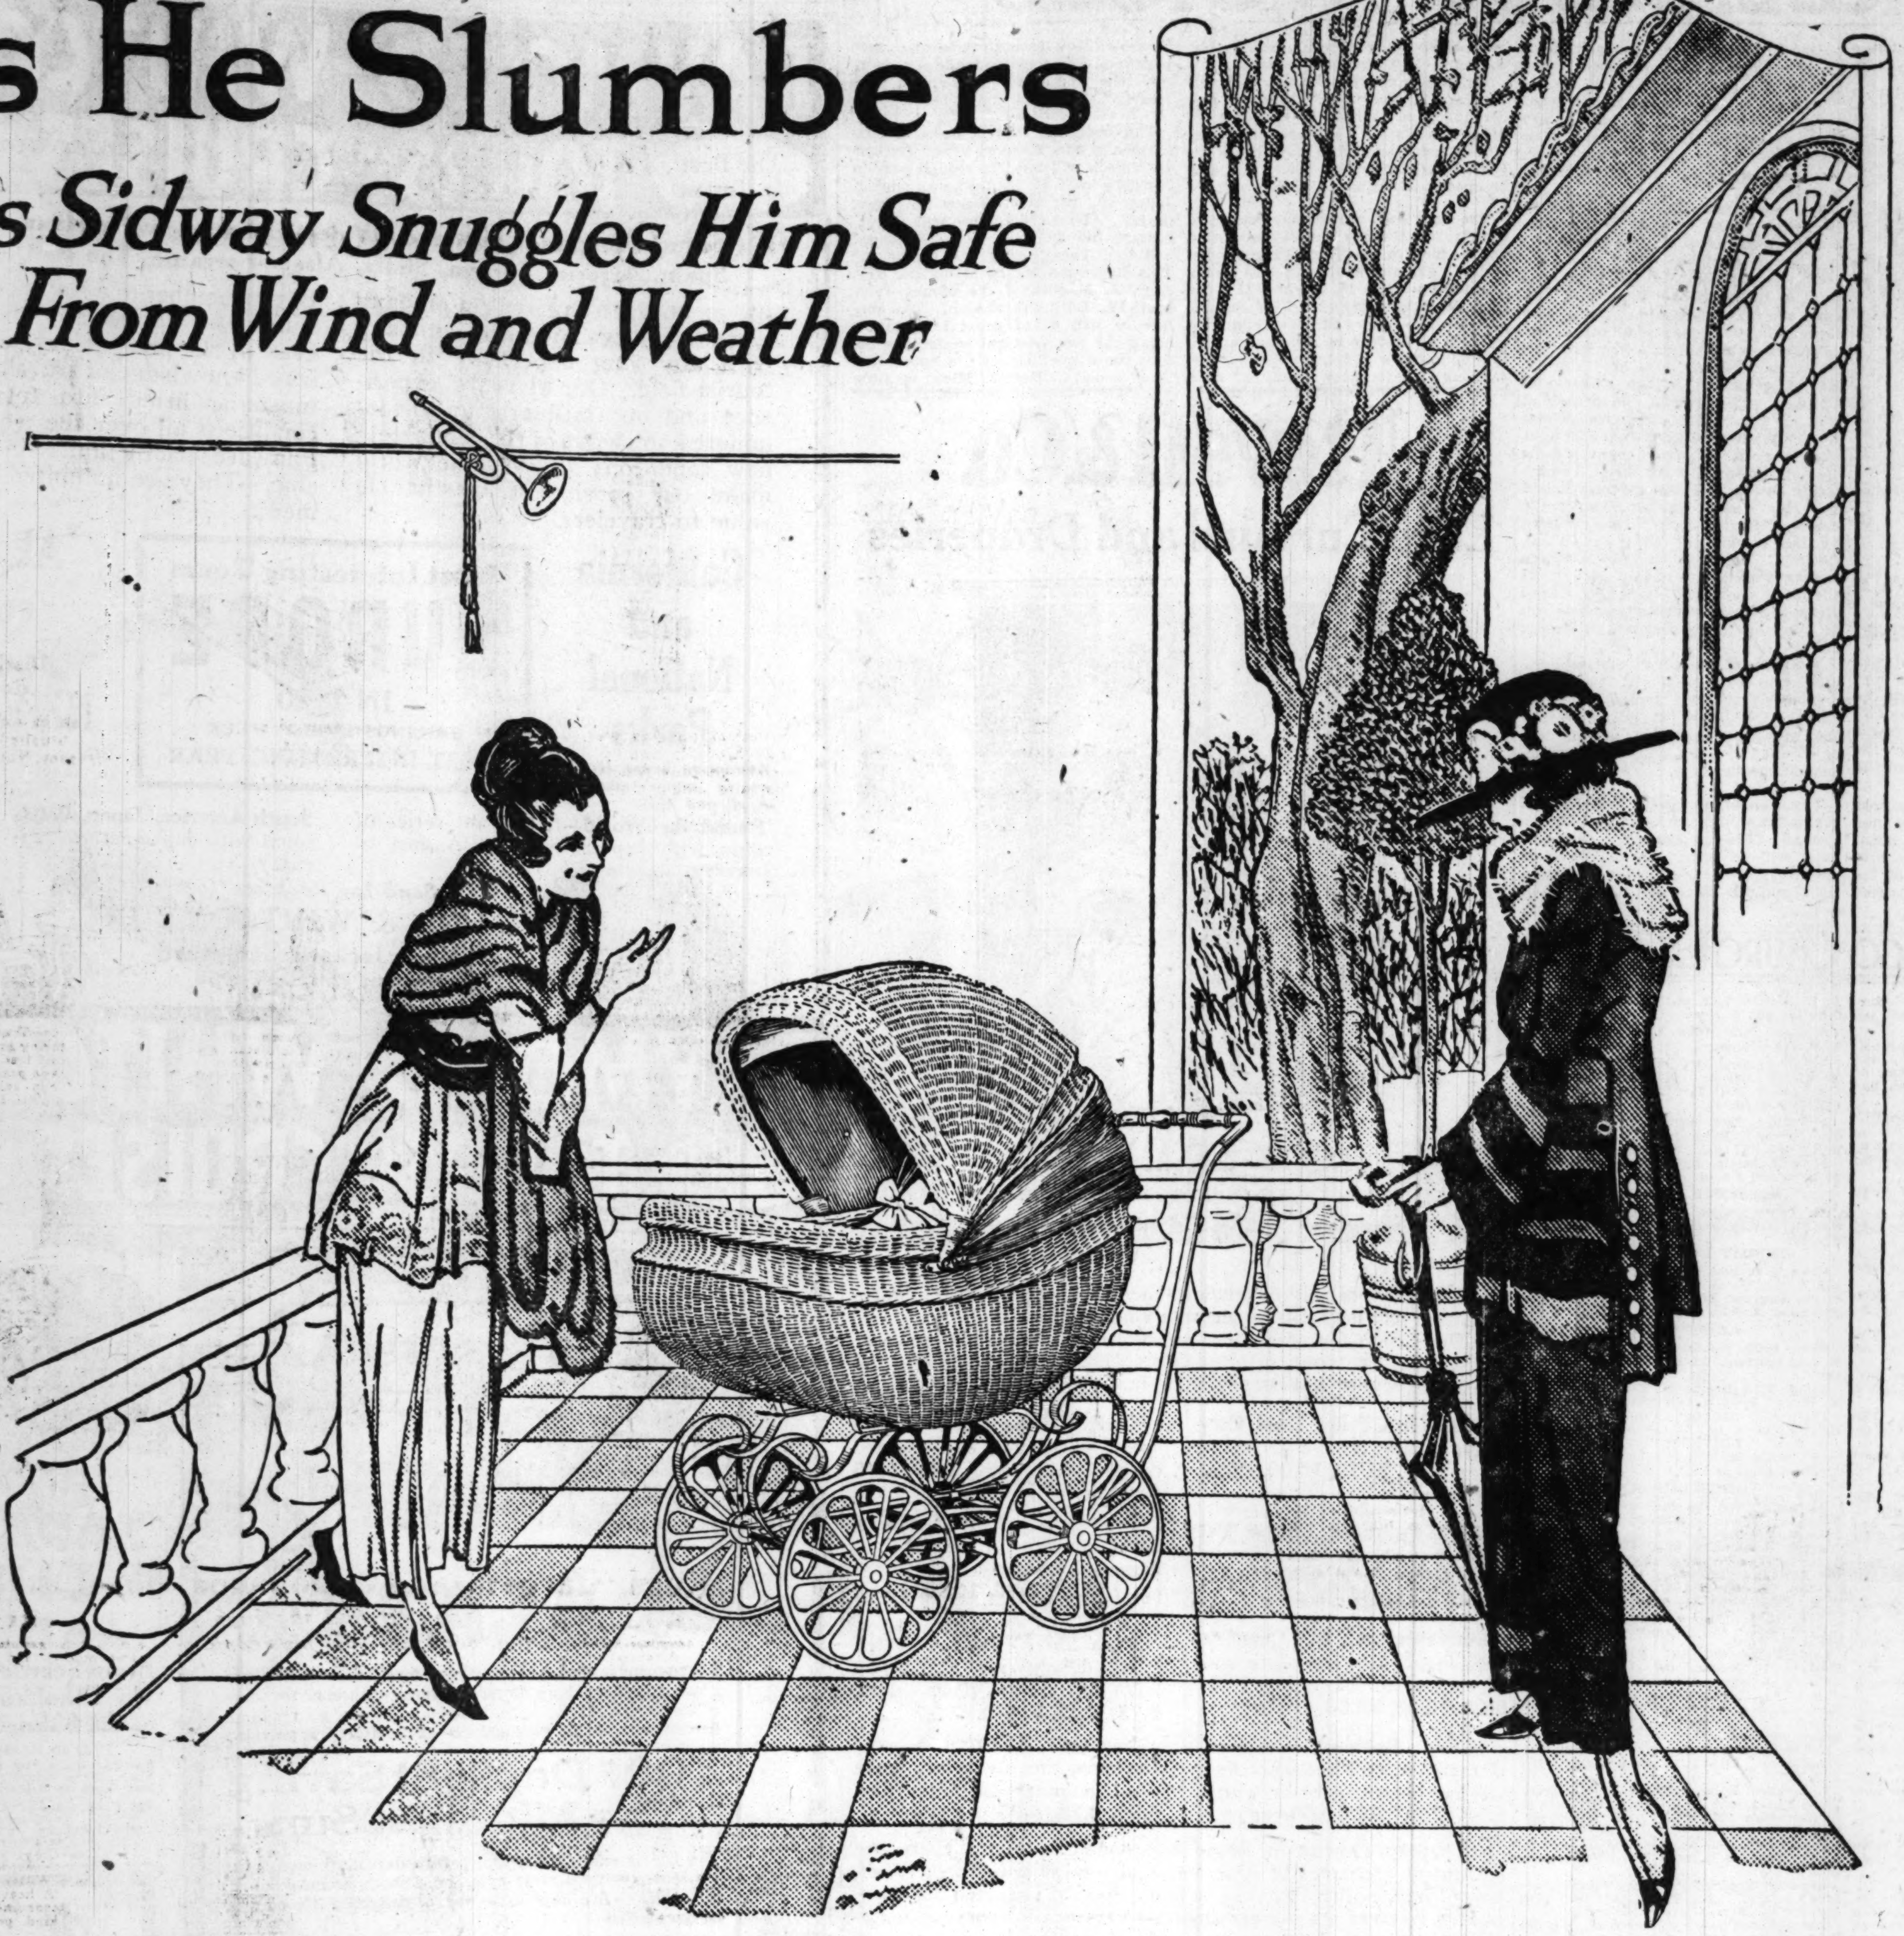
As He Slumbers

His Sidway Snuggles Him Safe From Wind and Weather



ASLEEP or awake, Baby finds comfort and protection in a Sidway carriage. The Sidway gondola type—hand woven of genuine reed—is a favorite with mothers. The distinction of graceful, sweeping lines, the smoothness with which the woven design melts into the curves of the carriage, the decorative borders, only hand weaving can achieve. In this carriage Baby can face in either direction. The hood tilts back and forth. The mattress is reversible. One of its three parts has a solid back for Baby's comfort when sitting, reclining or lying flat. Like all Sidway carriages, the frame is angle-braced with steel for strength; wheels and springs are extra strong; carriage is well balanced for easy handling. Upon request, we will mail you our Baby Book.

When it's sleepy-bye time for Baby, his Sidway is his haven. Cuddled in its sheltering depths, only the whispered admiration of soft-footed visitors can reach him; no mischievous prying breezes or too inquisitive sunbeams can intrude.

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

Music and Flowers Feature Churches' Easter Celebration

By the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot.

EASTER DAY will be celebrated in Chicago churches by services resplendent with music and flowers. In Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches the feature of the day is the Easter communion service. In many churches the custom of a celebration of the holy communion at dawn has grown up. Other churches also have introduced a "sunrise service" of a different character.

The growing observance of Easter on the part of Protestant churches has kept pace with their observance of Lent. More and more the traditional Christian year is being observed by all Christian bodies. Advent, Christmas, Epiphany, Lent (especially Passiontide, the two weeks before Easter, and Holy week, that immediately previous), Easter, Ascentiontide, and Whitsuntide, are finding a place of equal importance with the national holidays in the calendar of American Protestantism.

At the Holy Name cathedral of the Roman Catholic church the first mass will be at 6 a. m., followed by masses every hour. Solemn pontifical mass will be sung by Archbishop Mundelein at 11 a. m. The Rev. John McClarrey, S. J., will preach. The Rt. Rev. Mgr. M. J. FitzSimmens, rector of the cathedral, will pontificate at solemn pontifical vespers at 7:30 p. m. The mass "De Pacem" by Silver will be sung at the 11 o'clock service by the boys' choir of the Quigley Preparatory seminary.

KOEHNE PHOTO

THE REV. FREDERIC S. FLEMING.

The Church of the Atonement will hold its first services in its new church building today. The building will be dedicated by the Rt. Rev. Sheldon M. Griswold, suffragan bishop of Chicago. The sermon will be preached by the Rev. Frederic S. Fleming, rector of the church.

The building was erected at a cost of $100,000. It is of perpendicular Gothic design, built of brown sandstone. The seating capacity is 650. The new altar is the second of its kind in America, being copied after an old English design. Damask forms the hangings, and the frontal is of cloth of gold.

This is the second time in ten years that the church has had to be enlarged to accommodate its congregation. The first building was erected when Edgewater was a village, and was enlarged in 1910.

The new organ will be equipped with cathedral chimes, similar to those recently added to the St. James organ.

At the Cathredal of SS. Peter and Paul of the Episcopal diocese of Chicago the first celebration of the Holy Eucharist will be at 6 a. m. Other celebrations at 7:30 and 8:30 with the choral eucharist at 11 a. m. The Rt. Rev. Charles P. Anderson, bishop of Chicago, will celebrate and preach at this service. The children's Easter festival service will be held at 7:30 p. m.

At various churches there will be special music. At the First Presbyterian church, the choir of forty voices will sing Easter carols. One of the carols, "Easter Bells," was written by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. W. C. Covert. Members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will assist. At the 11 o'clock service at St. James Methodist church several anthems will be sung by the quartette and chorus choir.

Members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra will assist at the 10:45 service of the St. James Episcopal church, Dr. James S. Stone, rector. The men and boys' choir of fifty will be directed by John W. Norton, organist and choirmaster.

The Paulist choristers will sing at the solemn high mass at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church. Gounod's mass will be sung. Leroy Wetzel is director. At the New First Congregational church there will be vocal and violin solos, and several anthems by the joint choirs under George Tenney.

Immanuel Baptist church will have the imperial Quartette, which will render anthems, assisted by the choir of fifty. An Easter Cantata by Manney will be rendered at 8 p. m. at the Hyde Park Baptist church. There will also be special music at 11 a. m.

The sixty-first annual convention of the Chicago Sunday School association will be held in the Third Presbyterian church, Ashland boulevard and Ogden avenue, on April 15, 16, and 17. The association includes over 1,000 Sunday schools of Chicago and Cook county. A number of leaders in religious education will deliver addresses, and various sectional conferences will be held. There will be stereopticon lectures, two pageants, and a movie made especially for the occasion, "Homes with Hearts."

The northern Illinois pastoral conference of the Missouri Synod Lutheran church will meet in annual session April 4-7 in St. Paul's Lutheran church, Joliet, Ill., the Rev. Henry Sandvoss, pastor. About 200 pastors will attend. Among the subjects to be discussed will be "The Church and Publicity." This discussion will be led by the Rev. J. E. A. Mueller of the Mount Prospect, Ill., Lutheran church. The conference will be of great importance, being the last pastoral conference before the convention of the entire Missouri synod at Detroit, Mich., in June.

a cleanser containing no acid, grit, or abrasive,—it simply dissolves and washes away all foreign matter.

Silver, gold, platinum, glass, china, porcelain, diamonds, furniture, enameled metals—all lose their original lustre only because of a coat of grease and grime that gathers with time.

Shi-nup removes that dulling coat. None of the old rub-in-the-dirt re-polishing effort. Does not harm the hands or clothing. It has a pleasant odor. Price only 50c.

37th. Anniversary Sale

WIEBOLDT'S

MILWAUKEE AVE AT PAULINA ST. 2 STORES LINCOLN, SCHOOL AND ASHLAND

To commemorate this event as is fitting we offer specially desirable, dependable merchandise at prices which invite the most critical inspection. Beginning our 38th year with the full confidence of our hosts of Chicago friends, we know the amazing values we offer will bring countless new faces to our Two Convenient Stores. Our motto might well be said to be "Merchandise at Fair Prices at All Times," and will continue so. The first week of our 37th Anniversary Sale will be devoted chiefly to offering house furnishings, but all departments will contribute their share generously. It will be well worth your while to read every item of this advertisement, not merely to give it a passing glance. Two concerts daily, 10 to 12 A. M. and 1 to 4 P. M. (No mail, phone or C. O. D. orders.)

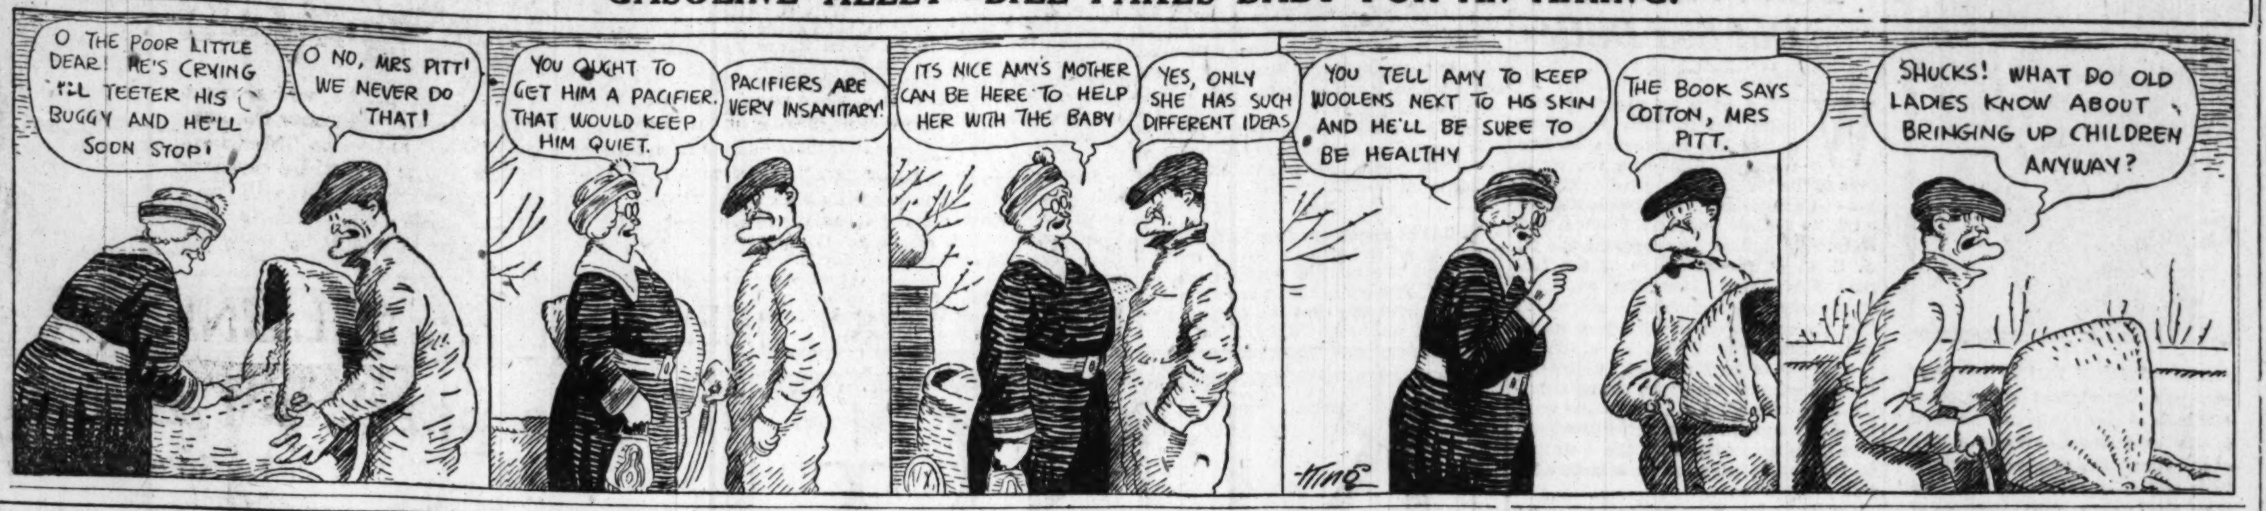
GASOLINE ALLEY—BILL TAKES BABY FOR AN AIRING.



O THE POOR LITTLE DEAR! HE'S CRYING I'LL TEETER HIS BUGGY AND HE'LL SOON STOP!
O NO, MRS PITT! WE NEVER DO THAT!
YOU OUGHT TO GET HIM A PACIFIER. THAT WOULD KEEP HIM QUIET.
PACIFIERS ARE VERY INSANITARY!
IT'S NICE AMY'S MOTHER CAN BE HERE TO HELP HER WITH THE BABY
YES, ONLY SHE HAS SUCH DIFFERENT IDEAS
YOU TELL AMY TO KEEP WOOLENS NEXT TO HIS SKIN AND HE'LL BE SURE TO BE HEALTHY
THE BOOK SAYS COTTON, MRS PITT.

MY FUNNIEST MOTORING EXPERIENCE

Every one who has taken the road in a motor car has some story to tell. What is your best one? The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published in "My Funniest Motoring Experience." Write as briefly as possible, on one side of the paper only, and address Funniest Motoring Experience, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Early Training.

A nervous neighbor returned from his first driving lesson boasting of his easy mastery of the new car. To please him several of us consented to ride with him, and things went well until we reached a good country road, when a car coming up behind us honked its horn. The startled driver jerked his wheel to the right, running down a steep bank, then to the left, heading into a fence, and to the right again, luckily bringing up in the road.

"Dad, what in thunder are you trying to do?" demanded his breathless son.

"Why, son," replied the new driver calmly, "I was just practicing to turn out for teams." L. W. K.

Sage Advice.

My husband and I were motoring through southern Missouri when we met a farmer and his wife driving a lean and jaded old horse hitched to a spring wagon. When we came up to them we saw the old lady stand up and wave her umbrella frantically. Then, taking a basket, she climbed out of the wagon and ran to a nearby fence, rolling under it and pulling her basket through.

My husband hurried up to the farmer.

"Shall I hold your horse while my wife drives the car by?" he asked.

"Gosh, no!" came the disgusted reply. "Hold the old woman and I'll drive the horse past." F. F.

Found Napping.

It was raining pitchforks as I drove, late at night, from a small town toward the city. About a mile from nowhere in any direction the engine gasped and died. No gas. Not knowing just what to do, I decided to wait till it quit raining, and crawling to the rear of the car, drew a robe over me and fell fast asleep. I was awakened, what seemed like a short time later, by a city "cop," who asked me if I thought the main street was a garage. To my surprise it was 7 o'clock in the morning and I was in the heart of the city. I procured some gasoline and drove away, thinking I must be dreaming. Some time later I learned that a motoring party, two of whom knew my car, had discovered me sleeping and seeing my predicament, towed me into town. To complete the joke they left me on the main street fast asleep. T. O'M.

Pastoral Stickup.

We were navigating a country road near a small town when a flock of geese, led by a lordly gander, marched into the road directly ahead. The leader saw us, stopped abruptly in the middle of the road, and then charged down on us, flapping his wings and hissing like a steam exhaust. We had to stop or run him down, and when he saw his charges safely across he waddled proudly over to join them. This is our one experience with an automobile "holdup man." T. J. P.

Before Its Bath.

It was a small white dog—one of the woolly kind. It followed its fashionably dressed mistress across a dusty street just ahead of our car as we swung into a country town, and suddenly decided to go back across the same street. Its decision was tardy. Our front axle hit it and our dust pan rolled it over and over. Miles of dusty roads had given the pan a rich coating of sticky grease and dirt, but the woolly dog cleaned it thoroughly before he emerged resentfully and ran to his mistress. The remarks she made about motorists were hardly ladylike. B. D. D.

Railroad Heads Frame Farewell in Safety Plea

ONE of the last acts of the officials of the United States railroad administration before turning back the railroads to their former heads was to issue a warning to automobilists that railroad-automobile accidents were increasing and to ask their coöperation in lessening these.

Following is what the federal bureau had to say on this point:

"The preamble of the constitution of the United States, among its other splendid declarations, embodies one 'to secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity,' and it is apparent that those who framed this preamble had in mind free and unconditional liberty except where violation of law demanded that such be withheld—of this there is no doubt.

"Are you enjoying the liberty conferred by our constitution, and will your posterity continue to enjoy it, or have you, gradually and unknowingly perhaps, permitted yourselves to be deprived of that right until you are no longer free, but a slave to thoughtlessness, recklessness, indifference, or carelessness?

"A pertinent question, one that confronts the American people today, and demands an answer! How to answer it correctly and satisfactorily depends much upon the manner in which you handle your car, what thought you give to the conservation of your own life and limb and of those intrusted to your care while in the vast procession of automobiles now generally and commonly in use.

"Automobile accidents are daily increasing, and referring only to those occurring on railroad crossings, the records revealed are appalling. We thus address you in this pertinent and pointed manner with a desire to have you personally consider your own actions, assist others, and do everything possible and in your power to reduce the awful toll of deaths and injuries occurring to the drivers and occupants of automobiles on public crossings of the railroads, and for which the railroads are not responsible, and are not in a position to prevent."

Loose Fan Belt.

Slipping of the fan belt may be caused by several things. The belt may be oily, greasy, or too loose; the fan may be tight on its bearings, possibly from lack of lubrication, or the pulley may be loose on the shaft.

Stop!

You can save much of your delivery cost.

Constant changing of gears and idling of the engine piles up costs.

There is no gear-changing in electric trucks. Power is used only when moving. Clean, better, and noiseless too. Bulletin 500AK explains.

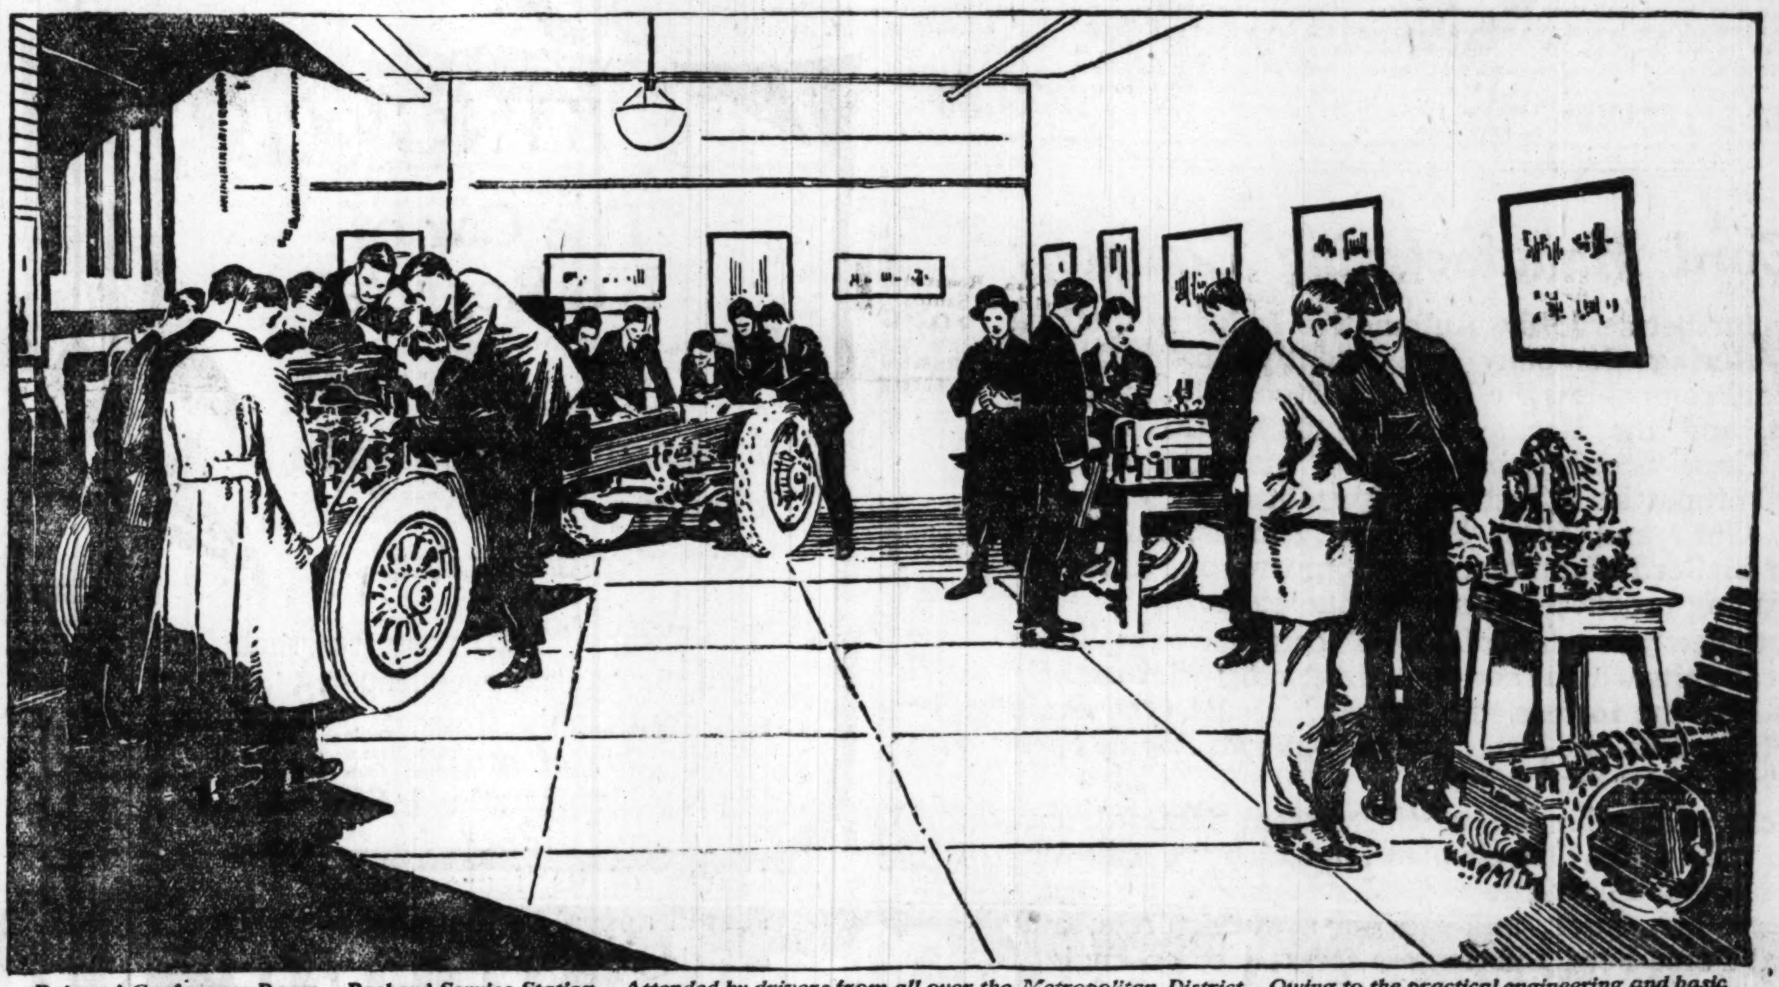
THREAD W RUBBER



Drivers' Conference Room—Packard Service Station. Attended by drivers from all over the Metropolitan District. Owing to the practical engineering and basic economy of the Packard Truck, a week's conferences is usually enough to win a driver his Gold Star and Certificate for Proficiency

The Driver's Experience vs. "Features" and "Talking Points"

GIVE the driver a chance, and he will take any amount of trouble to find out a better way of handling his truck.

Men drive all day, and then come long distances night after night to the Packard Service Conference. The class is always full. There is a long waiting list ahead.

It is unfortunate that the average driver's efforts to keep his costs down are so often thwarted by the truck he is given to work with.

THE following National Standard Truck Cost System facts on the performance of over 1700 Packard Trucks in 1919 have a vital significance for the truck user.

An average saving in gasoline of 10 per cent.—due to greater efficiency in operation with the aid of the National Standard System.

The National Standard System used in connection with Packard Trucks has shown it possible to reduce cost per ton mile.

Truck owners who have used the System for a year or more, and have compared the Packard with other trucks, are standardizing on Packard.

The driver finds the Packard easier all around to handle.

Less vibration; because of the smooth-running Packard engine, the construction of the worm drive, and the placing of 85 to 95 per cent. of the live load on the rear axle.

Less strain at the wheel, owing to the Packard semi-irreversible steering gear.

Easier handling on the hills, owing to Packard high tractive force on the road; and four-speed transmission graded up by even steps.

Easier to keep clean. Engine enclosed, and lubricated automatically. Fly wheel and clutch shut off from dust and mud.

THE man who is in doubt what make of truck to buy might well ask his driver's advice.

It may surprise him to learn the positive Packard opinion among men who judge a truck solely by what it will do.

Lamp Bulbs Often Cause of Extreme Trouble on Cars

Know Your Lighting System if You Would Save Annoyance

BY HIGH SPEED.

LAMP bulbs, though they constitute but a small part of the car, are nevertheless important, and those who have been unfortunate enough to be caught without a spare and no garage for miles will forever believe the lamp bulb as important as the storage battery.

There is no more exasperating moment than when you fuss around trying to put a bulb in a socket and the bulb won't fit, or you have a bulb with a single contact base and the socket calls for a double contact base. Or, perhaps, your car is fitted with a twelve volt system and you have a six volt spare—blowout.

It should be the duty of every automobile owner to carry spare bulbs, and also know that he is carrying the right kind, for headlamps, tail light, dash, etc. He should also carry fuses of the right kind and made for the car. The bulbs and fuses should be kept in a special carrier, otherwise you won't have the bulbs long and the fuses cannot be found even by a process server.

Throwing bulbs around is not the best thing for them, even though the modern bulb can stand a little punishment. Door pockets and other receptacles should not be used for storing bulbs or fuses. Any supply store will show you a bulb carrier, sell you the proper bulbs and fuses, and make your lighting worries that much less.

You ought to know enough about your car so that you can buy bulbs intelligently. You must know the voltage of the system. Nearly all are six volts now, but some use twelve and some older cars eighteen or twenty-four volts. In some cars a twelve volt system is divided, and six volts used for lighting. You must know these things to know the type of bulbs to buy. The candle power also is important to know. When you go into a shop for bulbs be ready to tell the type, whether double or single contact; the voltage, and whether you want vacuum or nitrogen types. The latter is the more economical, giving more light for the same current, so it pays to spend a little more for them.

Headlamps are often so connected that when the switch is thrown to "dim" the bulbs are in series owing to the use of a series connection. When in series connection if one lamp burns out the other will not burn. In series wiring only one wire is used. In parallel wiring two wires are used, and this is the connection employed when the lamps are burning brightly. You may find that when "dim" is used one lamp will burn brighter than the other, especially when the engine is stopped. This is due to differing resistance in the bulbs, and a change of bulb sometimes remedies the trouble.

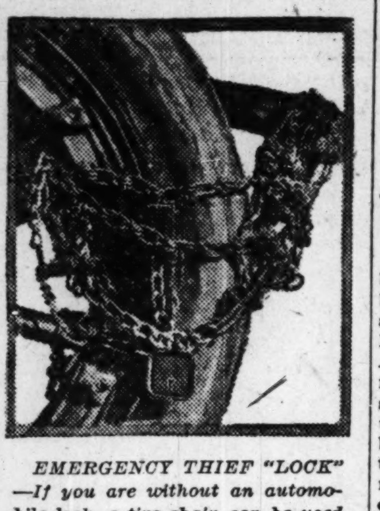
If you put a six volt bulb in a twelve volt circuit you will burn out the bulb. It will flare up for a second and burn out. If you put a three volt bulb in a six volt circuit the same thing happens. If you put a twelve volt bulb in a six volt circuit the bulb burns dimly. All bulbs are marked 6-8, 12-16, or 3-4. This means that the lower figure is the voltage at which it is designed to operate, but it will stand the higher voltage without burning out.

In many cars the dash lamp and tail lamp are connected in series, that is one wire is used to connect the two lamps, the circuit being completed by a ground connection. In this case, or any case where there is a series connection, if one bulb burns out the other in series will not burn.



EMERGENCY THIEF "LOCK"—If you are without an automobile lock, a tire chain can be used in an emergency. Wrap a tire chain about the tire and bumper. This will take several turns. Be sure and use a good lock, as a flimsy one is no protection at all.

Motor Industry Behind Move to Cut Sea Duties

WITH a view to securing first hand information regarding automobile and general foreign trade conditions for the members of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, S. A. Miles sailed for a trip to include England, France, and Italy. Mr. Miles will represent the N. A. C. C. at the meetings of the Bureau Permanent Interallie des Constructeurs d'Automobiles, of which the American organization is a member. Consideration will be given to the subject of tariffs brought up by the request of the American manufacturers for a reduction of from 45 per cent to 30 per cent in American import duties on automobiles and the question of further coöperation in standardization and shows.

In line with its policy to have its foreign trade department keep pace with the increasing exports of American motor cars and trucks, which were shipped during 1919 to an amount in excess of $100,000,000, going to more than eighty different countries, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has engaged the services of George F. Bauer to be secretary of its foreign trade department. Mr. Bauer has been commercial agent on the staff of the New York office of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, with tariff and foreign statistics as his specialty. He recently wrote a brochure on European trade restrictions, which is considered one of the most valuable and important contributions of an advisory nature that has been placed at the disposal of American business for some time.

Mr. Bauer succeeds H. R. Cobleigh, who has been made secretary of the new service department which has been established by the N. A. C. C. for the purpose of bringing about more standardization and better service conditions in the automobile plants and in the stations of their distributors and dealers.

Fuel in Carburetor.

If the fuel in the carburetor is not at the proper level it will cause various reactions. If the level is too high it will flood the carburetor; if it is too low it will result in a lean mixture and difficult starting. For satisfactory operation it is important that the float be adjusted so that the gasoline level will be about a thirty-second of an inch below the outlet of the lowest nozzle.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS By High Speed

Could bucking a low speed be caused altogether by misfiring? I have an eight cylinder car which seems to hit on five or six at times, and I thought that that might cause knocking which sounds like there is something wrong with the clutch. P. S. B.

Quite likely the misfiring is the cause of your trouble, as the reduction in power at low speeds is such as to give the effect of an engine about to stall.

Will it be necessary to take a battery apart after it has been lying around for about two months without any attention. The garage man says it ought to be opened up, that it's all in. The battery is only eight months old and I don't want to take a chance unless it will pay. W. A. S.

The garage man may be right, but I would first send the battery to the service station for a charge test. They may recommend a slow charge, which in all probability will bring the battery back to normal. If they tell you you are taking a chance on results I would suggest trading in.

A month ago I had my sedan painted and now the paint is peeling off and cracking so that the car looks worse than it did before painting. Could I have done this or would you say it was a poor job? R. G. E.

A poor paint job, no doubt, coupled with the fact that the car may have been exposed to abrupt changes in temperature.

The part that fine steels play in a MAXWELL

There is a definite reason for the brilliant performance of a Maxwell car.

Lift the bonnet and you see the simplest of engines. Examine clutch and gears, and you see supreme simplicity.

The definite reason for Maxwell performance and endurance is the fine steels, those steels built to Maxwell's own formulas, that combine quality and rare strength, that defy time and the repairman.

This is the story of the Maxwell, the real cause for brilliant performance and long endurance. These steels do not burden the engine. They make its tasks easier. They flatten out a hill for the engine.

The combination of light weight and great strength—the ideal of Maxwell construction—is thus achieved.

And to obtain that rare combination of strength with quality means costly steels. So you will find that, pound for pound, the steels in a Maxwell equal those in any car built.

That is why the rise of Maxwell has been so marked; why nearly 400,000 have been built; why 100,000 are being constructed this year; why these will fill but 60% of the demand.

McCord Manufacturing Company

To further serve the Automotive Industry McCord Manufacturing Company has recently absorbed two additional companies, the Russell Motor Axle Company, Detroit, and the Racine Manufacturing Co., Racine, Wis. These acquisitions, coupled with the original McCord properties in Detroit, Wyandotte, Mich.; Walkerville, Ont., and West Pullman, Illinois, make the greater McCord Manufacturing Company one of America's leading producers of automobile parts.

Both newly acquired plants will continue to build the motor car units which they were producing prior to their absorption; the former, the Russel Internal Gear Axle for motor trucks, the latter, the well-known Racine open and closed motor car bodies.

Most widely known of the present McCord productive units is the Detroit plant, in which are built McCord automobile radiators used exclusively by many passenger car, truck, and tractor manufacturers, and McCord Force-Feed Lubricators for service on engines and power apparatus of many kinds.

At Wyandotte are manufactured copper asbestos gaskets and shims for all models and kinds of motor and power plants.

In Chicago's industrial suburb, West Pullman, is the plant operating under the long established name of McCord & Company. Cylinder castings, steel castings, and railway material, including the famous McCord Journal box, comprise the output of this unit.

Nearly all builders of automobiles, trucks, tractors, and engines, and a majority of the railroads, are customers of this Company.

THE NEW WAY (THE DO-IT-ALL TRACTOR)
DO IT ALL
THE OLD WAY (THE HAND PLOW)

The "DO IT ALL" Tractor is the agricultural sensation of 1920. It works equally well on large or small farms. The adjustable bull wheel keeps the tractor level when ploughing and gives you a chance to do real ploughing. It cultivates on side hills and remains level. The "DO IT ALL" nullifies the high cost of labor, enabling one man to do what ten men formerly did. They not only replace the horse but do many things the horse cannot do. They eat only when they work; there is no waste time feeding or bedding. They pull from a 9 to 10 inch plough, they do all kinds of hauling and give [illegible] H. P. for belt work. Henry Hudson Showed the Way

The Hudson's Bay Company, after 250 years spent in exploring, pioneering, pushing back frontiers to make way for the settlers, invites you to share in Western Canada's proven prosperity. Come to Canada's "Success Belt"

History is full of the pluck and daring of men of the Hudson's Bay Company who ventured to the woods and prairies of North America. Two hundred and fifty years of pioneering—making way for the white man with the plough—have opened up a new chapter in the Company's history.

The rich prairie Provinces of Canada—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—await the settler. That same Hudson's Bay Company invites you not merely to acres, not merely to farms, but to farms on proven ground—on land where successes are being continuously made—in Canada's "Success Belt."

Oldest Company in the World

The search for a passage from the Atlantic Ocean to the Western Sea (now the Pacific Ocean) led Henry Hudson to discover the Bay that bears his name. Explorers who followed some years after Hudson's death, found the country inhabited by Indians with rich furs to trade for things they wanted.

Incorporated A. D. 1670

This news, brought by the explorers to influential friends in England, induced them to ask the King, Charles II, for permission to trade in the new land. A charter was then granted to "The Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading into Hudson's Bay." Thus was born in 1670, the Company, commonly called the Hudson's Bay Company, although the original corporate name is still officially retained.

The chief business of this Company was fur trading—as it still remains today. The charter granted them absolute ownership of practically all the land on the North American continent not claimed by any other Christian nation. To facilitate trading over so wide an area (it extended up into the Arctic regions, down to the shores of the Mississippi, and into California) it was necessary to establish trading posts, and stores for supplies.

Many of these trading posts exist today for the Company continues its fur trading operations on a large scale, while its stores have grown into large and prosperous institutions conducted on modern lines in Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Winnipeg, and at other points in the Canadian West.

Opened Way for Civilization

The history of the Hudson's Bay Company is one long series of daring exploits in which the Company's men conquered the wilderness so that peaceful trade—the first stage of civilization—could enter in. Thus the frontiers were pushed backward.

Other companies, much smaller of course, came upon the scene, and either joined the Hudson's Bay Company or disappeared. Civilization crept in. The United States had long since come into being; Canada was organized and becoming settled.

Gave Up Valuable Rights

In 1870, in order that Canada might develop and grow, the Company gave up to the young Dominion, its entire territory (called Rupert's Land, after Prince Rupert, the Company's first Governor) retaining one-twentieth, not in one block but in sections in every township of what was properly called The Fertile Belt—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta—from Lake Winnipeg and Lake of the Woods west to the Rocky Mountains, from the U. S. Boundary to the North branch of the Saskatchewan River.

Now—Your Opportunity

These are the lands the Company is offering. Part of them have been sold, more are being sold daily—the activity is great. Your opportunity is here now. With the certain increase in value to follow, the new owners of these lands will soon realize their good fortune. Look at the experience of the United States' Great West. This—Canada's "Success Belt"—is the last Great West.

Grain and Stock Highly Profitable

The world already knows of the stupendous grain crops of Western Canada that relieved the food situation when the strain of the war was hardest. Your farm in Canada's "Success Belt" will be in the heart of the very country that produced those banner crops. Those records can be equalled and exceeded. This is your opportunity.

Wheat, oats, barley, rye and flax, are the chief products of this wonderfully fertile region. Wild hay grown in vast tonnage without effort, supplies rich feed for beef and dairy cattle.

Think of the profits—at a cost of $10 to $25 per acre. Compare the investment and profit possibilities with farm lands near you. Then you will see why this has been named the "Success Belt."

Low Prices—Time to Pay

Land in the "Success Belt" is very low in price—$10 to $25 per acre. The usual terms are one-eighth cash and the balance in easy annual installments. Many settlers have paid for farms in much less time than they intended, out of profits on rich harvests—sometimes even from one crop.

Schools, Churches, Social Life

Good schools are assured by Canada's system. All over the "Success Belt" are sections of land held for school use. Many good public schools are already established. More are being established as rapidly as the need of them arises. Both Provincial and Dominion Governments lend a willing hand, and supply funds.

Churches of practically every denomination are to be found throughout the "Success Belt," furnishing the centres of social communities that your wife and children will readily appreciate.

Low Taxes—None on Improvements

That Western Canada is hospitable and encouraging to settlers can be seen in its system of taxation. A small levy is made on the land; and none at all on buildings, improvements, implements, machinery, stock, or personal property. Everything that can be done, has been and is being done to make this perpetually the "Success Belt."

The Right Kind of Neighbors

The Hudson's Bay Company is not a Real Estate concern. It is—as it has been during its 250 years' existence—in the business of fur trading and conducting stores. Its land holdings embrace more than 3,000,000 acres, not in one group, but in sizable acreage scattered over the entire "Success Belt," so that your selection is not limited to any one locality, or any one set of climatic conditions. It has time and again declined to sell lands to the wrong kind of people. Its interest in you as a farmer is not limited to its sales agreement. It is interested in proper upbuilding of Western Canada, and this invitation is extended essentially to the individual—to real, honest-to-goodness sincere people who come to make good. That is the kind of neighbors you want; such are the people you want your wife and children to associate with. In the "Success Belt" you may be sure of such neighbors.

Write Today—Send the Coupon

You will want a farm in the "Success Belt" just as surely as you want success. You will want to farm in the midst of men who have made good. You will want to buy it from a staunch and reliable Company like this one—the oldest in the world—and feel absolutely safe in every step you take. Then write today—send this coupon to the Land Department of the Hudson's Bay Company. Remember this is not a land operating organization or a real estate concern. Write now—without cost or obligation in any way! No agents will bother you!

Good Roads Call Clarion Note in Modern Schemes

DESPITE the fact that the United States has more than 7,000,000 motor driven vehicles in operation—leading the world in this respect—motorists will be surprised to learn that but 12 per cent of roads in this country are surfaced. Out of an estimated total of 2,478,552 miles of public rural roads, only about 299,135 are surfaced or improved.

Indiana shows the greatest percentage of improved highways, 42.5 per cent of its roads being surfaced, based on the last available figures of 1918.

That there is a great need for good roads can be deduced from the increased tendency for long distance hauling by motor truck and particularly by the fact that 60,000 employés of the United States postoffice department travel 1,400,000 miles daily in delivering mail on rural routes.

With an estimated 1920 production of 1,500,000 automobiles, the need for better highways is evident. That this fact is recognized by states and municipalities is shown by estimated appropriations of $600,000,00 to be spent on hard surfaced roads during the year.

In 1918 approximately 11,944 miles of roads were improved in this country and $34,974,000 was spent on maintenance. More than $20,000,000 has been spent on the 3,320 miles of Lincoln highway between the Hudson river and San Francisco in the last six years.

Beware!

Officials of the Chicago Motor club announce that a speed trap is being operated on the Lake George road between South Chicago and Hammond.

MOTORBUS TAKES PLACE OF STREET CARS—Recently there has been much talk of motorbusses eventually doing away with street car for city use. Here is a new type of bus. It resembles some street cars, inasmuch as it still has something for "straphangers" to grab. See the straps?

Accident Prevention.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 3.—Revival of the old "vigilante" days of California is planned by the Automobile Club of Southern California, to prevent motor car accidents and theft. A vigilance committee of 200 prominent business men is being formed which always will be on the job and act secretly. Each will be pledged to report all infractions of the traffic laws observed by him, promptly, by mail, on post cards furnished for that purpose. Machines will be traced by license number only. Organized action has been made imperative by the rapid increase of motor vehicles in the city. California now is credited with more automobiles per capita than any other state, with one to every six inhabitants.

Gossip of the Auto Trade

WORK on the new $15,000,000 plant of the Studebaker corporation at South Bend, Ind., is nearly finished. The work has been going on for about a year. Additional buildings are contemplated for immediate construction.

Wisconsin motorists in 1919 purchased 36,110 cars and 4,028 motor trucks. It is estimated that these purchases represented an investment of $42,152,000.

President Alvan Macauley of the Packard Motor Car company announces the incorporation of the Packard Motors Export corporation, which will control the Packard business throughout the world, with the exception of the United States and Canada. Mr. Macauley is president of the corporation and Col. Fred Cardway is vice president and general manager.

James Levy, Chicago Buick dealer, said some adequate system of automobile signal is becoming more necessary every day, not only for the benefit and guidance of motorists, but to an even greater degree for the convenience and direction of pedestrians.

"There is no objection at all that I can see to paying high wages to mechanics," said T. E. Jarrard, vice president of the Apperson Bros. Automobile company, "so long as you can figure out a way for them to earn it."

A union depot solely for motor truck freight has been provided at Toledo, Ohio.

Harry Branstetter, local Kissel distributor, says that the automobile has proved a boon to country folks, inasmuch as they are not now isolated from a quick response to a call for a physician.

Clarence J. Buckwalter, president of the American bureau of engineering, is being urged to establish branches of his school in other parts of the United States and in England.

Sign Post Work on Western Roads Being Completed

Southern California Auto Club Directs This Enterprise

EXTENSIVE road sign posting projects scheduled for the near future by the Automobile Club of Southern California include the ng of the desert highways of the s safe for motoring travel, according to an official report issued by that organization.

All lateral routes of the famous ath valley district are to be marked that no automobile tourist can possibly lose his way, even though traveling at night, states this report. Strategic placing of the signs so that the rays of headlights will fall upon them will be one of the features of the work.

Yuma, Ariz., will be connected with southern California via a route leading through Niland, Glamis, and Blythe, with one of the most remarkable systems of road guides in existence, says the club. This to be done in the immediate future.

The Arrowhead trail is now to be posted from southern California the Utah state line, thus providing another main artery of travel for motorists into the southern part of California from the great northwest and from the east. In connection with the club's schedule for transcontinental highway marking, a complete revision of the signs on the National Old Trails as far east as Kansas City is planned within the next few weeks.

All of the ocean to ocean highway from the vicinity of Los Angeles to the Imperial valley is to be marked also. Tourists in the near future will find a complete set of road signs directing them to the picturesque Palm canyon on the edge of the desert, one of the most unique scenic spots in the world. It is of particular importance that the club likewise intends to mark all water holes on the desert districts. Although most of this work has been done, a complete extension of the system will be made this spring. More than 100 tons of metal signs are now used in southern California by this motoring organization, according to its engineering department report.

Work is being completed on the revision of the sign system in Kern and Tulare counties, and the trucks removed from this vicinity upon its completion will be started at once in other counties.

The Experts Say—

In scraping in bearings the first consideration is the proper mesh of the timing gears. The front bearing controls the position of the crank shaft and its gear, consequently it should be fitted and scraped in first, the other end bearing being lined up with it at the same time. Then the middle bearings are fitted in line.

To set or time the distributor, fully retard the spark and set the distributor gear contact or segment so that it is just about to leave the No. 1 cylinder carbon brush, then mesh the gears, being particular to see that the breaker points are just at the point of opening.

Valve stem guides are best removed by driving them out from the top, using a hard wood block or a piece of soft metal, avoiding possible injury to the guide.

You, too, will see in the New Mitchell over-values not found elsewhere

JUDGE a car from any angle, if you please, and we are convinced that you cannot find an equal of the new Mitchell, at the price.

If it is style that decides you, note the new smartness of the Mitchell, how it sets the pace in design. Note how gracefully the radiator slants in conformity with the windshield, doors, louvers and other lines of motion. Everywhere this new Mitchell wins admiration.

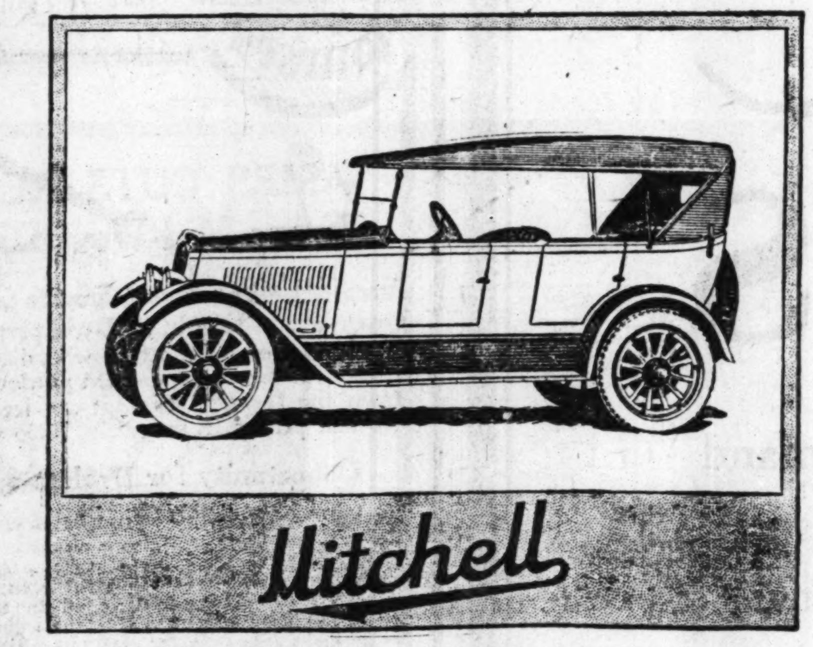
If it is finish and attention to details that attracts you, compare this new Mitchell with others of its class and with cars costing far more. Note the tailored top, the costly all-leather upholstery, the fittings, etc. Mitchell builds its own bodies and controls every detail.

If it is dependability that you insist upon, this new Mitchell answers every demand. For here is a car built at a super-factory, where efficiency has paid for the finest machinery. In this new Mitchell are embodied costlier factory practices than you imagine—practices afforded only by builders of cars at double the price. We would like to point out some of the details of fine-building, and explain their significance to you.

If it is low operating cost and minimum upkeep that appeal, we have a mass of interesting facts. Built as it is, this new Mitchell brings new low records, saving you not only in first cost, but as the years go by.

This new Mitchell is its own greatest salesman. There is a big over-demand. We would like you to become acquainted. Come in to make a critical comparison—we think you will remain to praise.

Deliveries can be made more quickly than usual, since we drive Mitchells directly from the factory at Racine to our sales floor. Place your order at once.



The new Mitchell Six is presented in five handsome models: 5-passenger Touring Car, 3-passenger Roadster, 5-passenger Sedan and 4-passenger Coupe. All bring the utmost in style, comfort, durability and economy.

THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

The Ideal Five-Passenger Car

Whether the Paige Glenbrook is chosen solely because of its beauty or rather because of its mechanical excellence, a full measure of satisfaction is assured to its owner in either case.

For it is well known that, in Paige cars, beauty and efficiency go hand in hand.

The same skill in car building which is responsible for making the Glenbrook a vehicle of exceptional grace is likewise responsible for making it an exceptional car from the mechanical standpoint.

In body, power plant and chassis, it is distinctly a Paige product—setting standards of comfort, economy and dependability such as have never before been present in a car of moderate price.

Although it has been before the public no more than four months, it is destined, we believe, to revolutionize the Light Six field.

Its new six-cylinder motor—designed and built in our own shops—is a feature which, in itself, entitles the new Paige Glenbrook to a place at the head of America's finest five-passenger motor cars.

When you see this latest Paige model and ride in it, you will agree with us, we believe, that, from a mechanical as well as an artistic point of view, there is no finer five-passenger car on the market today.

That this is now quite the general opinion among motorists is indicated by the number who have already made arrangements for Spring deliveries.

Let us suggest that you give early consideration to the question of placing your order with our dealer while it is still possible for him to take care of your requirements.

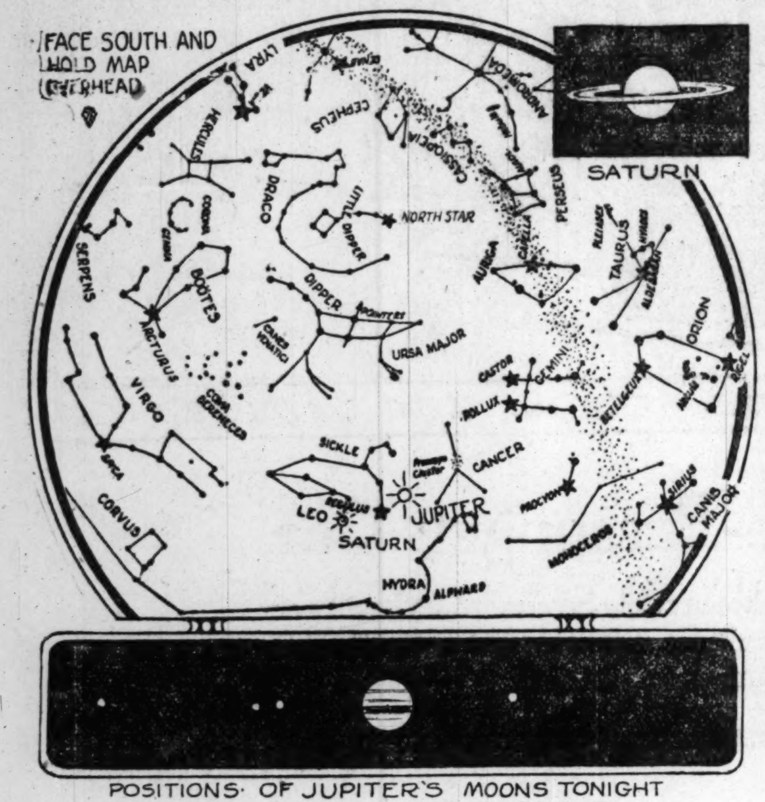
ASTRONOMY



POSITIONS OF JUPITER'S MOONS TONIGHT

THE APRIL SKY MAP

BY S. F. MAXWELL

THE SKY IN THE SPRING.

THERE is still a tingle of frost in the air, but winter is gone now and will not return. There still may be a few snow flurries, or perhaps a blizzard of short duration, but spring is certainly at hand.

The stars tell it. The winter suns in Orion, Taurus, and Gemini are fast sinking into the west. Sirius and Capella, the stars that twinkled all night long through the zero air, are slipping away now, and in their stead Arcturus, Spica, and Vega rise, foretelling the returning warmth.

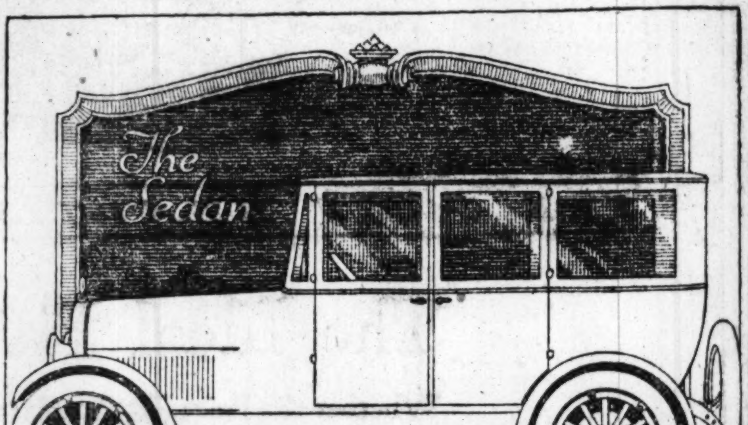
If it is not too cold tonight, carry an easy chair out into some open spot and sit down facing the south. Better take along a blanket to be safe, for it will be sure to be colder than it seems. Tuck yourself up in it until you feel comfortable, and then lean back and look overhead.

Perhaps you are not familiar with the names and groupings of the constellations. No matter. You cannot help but notice Jupiter, the brightest light in the whole sky, now almost overhead. Jupiter is not a star, strictly speaking, but a planet, or one of our sister worlds that circles the sun through space.

On your left, opposite Jupiter, is the constellation of Leo the Lion. He lies in a crouching position, facing west. Jupiter is in his forepaws. His heart is marked by a steely blue star of first magnitude, called Regulus.

Beneath the body of the Lion is another planet, Saturn. Its yellowish color should serve to identify it. Saturn is the planet with the ring. Sometimes the rings are seen edgewise, and at other times more or less open, depending on the position of the earth. At present the rings are narrowing rapidly, and will become almost invisible by next year. Saturn makes one trip around the sun every twenty-nine years, and during that time it twice doubles in brightness and twice shrinks back to comparative insignificance.

If you can lay hands on a spyglass, or binoculars, or even a strong opera glass, you must look at Jupiter. Here is a globe 1,300 times as big as the earth, attended by four moons. These moons are not difficult objects to see in a glass of even moderate magnification. They would be visible to the naked eye were their feeble rays not drowned in the radiance of Jupiter itself. The moons make a pretty and interesting sight as they slip back and forth like glistening beads on an invisible wire in their circuit about their sparkling ruler.



INSTANT popularity greeted this sedan. "It's a beauty—so finely built," say the owners. And their approval and praise increase as they learn the full meaning of "Built of the Best."

Religion for Children: the Gary Plan

By the Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot

"If the churches would spend as much money on the religious education of children as they do on conversions of adults, there wouldn't be so many old sinners to convert. What the churches spend to convert a 60 year old sinner would take care of the religious training of a hundred children."

The speaker was William R. Wirt, superintendent of the Gary, Ind., public schools and originator of the "Gary plan."

The religious editor of THE TRIBUNE visited Gary last week for the purpose of studying the religious education plan that is in use there. Week day religious education is spreading rapidly. Community after community is adopting it. The model for all has been the Gary plan, modified to suit local conditions.

Child Life Organized.

The Gary plan of week day religious education depends largely upon the Gary public school plan, which is revolutionizing secular education throughout the country. "Any one who get the impression that there is such a thing as a Gary 'school' plan is mistaken," said Mr. Wirt. "What the Gary plan does is to organize the whole child life of the community. It provides for practically all the waking time of the children, making provision for all phases of their education. Children are dismissed from the school for various outside studies. They go to their music teachers during school hours, just as they go to the churches."

School begins at 8:15 in the morning. It closes at 4:15. In those eight hours work, study, and play are provided for. The playgrounds are busy all day long—each pupil has two hours a day for play. There is a great deal of practical work in laboratories, shops, or studios. The program is arranged on a "balanced load" plan—there is no "peak load" when all the children are in any one place. This makes for a more efficient use of equipment, one of the features of the plan.

The time for religious education is taken from the play hours. As a rule it is two hours a week a week out of the ten. The children are dismissed to attend the church school chosen by the parents. The fact that there is almost 100 per cent attendance indicates the attitude of the children towards the plan.

Schools in the Churches.

In Gary the various churches have made provision for the religious instruction of the children in the church buildings. The Baptist church has its own school, the Roman Catholic church takes advantage of the opportunity for religious training, and the Episcopal church has its own school. The other churches have established a community school which looks after the religious instruction of their children.

The community school has an enrollment of 1,800 pupils. Its curriculum consists mostly of Bible stories and manual work. Five paid teachers take care of the classes, which come on the same schedule as is given below. The church schools are held in various buildings convenient to the public school. The children who attend pay $5 per year for the upkeep of the community school.

No charge is made by the schools conducted by the individual churches. Trained teachers are provided. One teachers can take care of a hundred pupils, because they come at all hours of the day, every day of the week. He or she can arrange a schedule that will fit in with that of the public school. A sample schedule is given herewith:

Day—Per'd.	1	2	3	4*	5	6	7	8
Monday	E1	B1	D1			C1	D2	E2
Tuesday	D3	C2	D1	[Noon]		C3	...	F
Wednesday	E1	B1	B2			C1	...	...
Thursday	F	C2	...			C3	...	E2
Friday	D3	...	...			...	...	...

The letters represent the cycle classes: A [not shown above] is kindergarten. B is grade 1 and 2, C is 3 and 4, etc. F is high school. The Gary plan dismisses only half of a grade at a time; the other half is at work reciting or studying.

Plan at Batavia.

That the plan can be adapted for use in cities that do not have the Gary plan in their public schools is shown by the experience of Batavia, Ill. The Rev. Frank Victor Hoag has worked out a plan that works in the average town with the old fashioned school system.

On Thursdays children are dismissed from public school to attend their own church school. Grades 1 and 2 take the first period, 3 and 4 the second, 5 and 6 the third (after lunch), and 7 and 8 the last.

Out of 950 children in the schools only fifty-nine do not attend the church schools. The Roman Catholic church has entered into the plan at Batavia also.

The advantage of the Batavia plan is that the minister himself can operate it, doing all the teaching himself, although it is better if a kindergartner take charge of the young children. It does not tie a clergyman down every day in the week and keep him from other duties, as would the Gary plan.

The teaching material varies with each denomination. Some use the system provided for Sundays, adapting it to the more thorough methods of weekday instruction. In Batavia one church has abandoned the Sunday school altogether in favor of the weekday school, having the children come to the regular Sunday morning service instead.

More Time for Instruction.

Under the present Sunday school system children get but twenty-six or, at the most, fifty-two half hour classes per year. These come on a crowded day, when both teacher and pupil are in no mood for work. In the Roman Catholic parochial schools from 100 to 200 hours a year are given to religious instruction. The Gary plan provides, including the Sunday lesson, almost 100 hours a year of efficient teaching. There is no doubt that this plan will soon be adopted, in some form or another, in every community. Some have gone so far as to say that it may eventually do away with the necessity of the parochial school system.

"One of the greatest advantages of the week day plan, as used in Gary, is that the children come to look upon their religious instruction as a normal part of their education, as it should be," said the Rev. W. Dean Elliott, rector of Christ church, Gary. "They approach it with the same seriousness and study just as hard for that as they do for any other branch of their learning. We have more children in our week day school of the grades provided for than there are in Sunday school."

Miss Vera L. Noyes teaches all grades but high school in Christ church.

"It is impossible to teach children anything in the rush of Sunday, when they are all dressed up in their 'Sunday go to meeting' clothes," said the Rev. Frank Hoag of Batavia. "By teaching the classes on Thursday myself I get to know the children much better than I could otherwise, and they know me. They learn more, and feel that they are doing something worth while. The plan also leaves Sundays free for worship. It is too much of a strain on a minister to have the responsibilities of the Sunday school in addition to the services and sermons on Sunday."

All-Around Road-Performance Helps Make Its Greater Value—Its Greater Service

In owner reports, we find the better basis for judging the greater value and the greater service of the Stephens Salient Six—rather than the striking records made on the polished floors of the speedway or the prepared track of the race course.

For Stephens also has made records on the Speedway that are striking.

Here we repeat the owners' proof of that all-around road performance, which you can expect from your Stephens Salient Six:

"Averaged 19 miles per gallon for 3,250 miles,—one stretch maintained average speed of 45 miles per hour for 15 consecutive hours,—not a trouble." (Name on request.)

"Running without falter,—40 hours, 13 min.,—using distillate,—carrying four passengers,—traveled 1,197 miles, mountain route,—completed in beautiful shape. Average speed 29.93 miles per hour." (Name on request.)

"Daily service during melon season,—Imperial Valley. Hotter than proverbial——, 4,000 miles going 18 hours a day,—using only 1½ quarts of oil and one tea cup full of water the entire trip." (Name on request.)

"That is salient which is strikingly manifest or which catches the attention at once."

Ship by Truck

Here are the facts on ONE line of business

Chicago Shippers—get the Ship by Truck facts on YOUR line

Ship by Truck in one year has grown from a motto of modern transportation to a great national industry.

And there is no field of activity in which its advantages have not been strongly emphasized.

For instance, in the livestock industry: In Indiana over 90% of all hogs raised within 50 miles of Indianapolis were shipped to that market by truck. In 1917 truck shipments of hogs jumped from 21,000 in January to 36,000 in December. In 1918 the peak month was 56,000 hogs. This was thought to be a maximum, but in 1919, starting at this figure, truck shipments climbed to 126,123.

At Cincinnati the situation was much the same. In 1917 truck shipments climbed from 5,250 hogs to 12,500 in the peak month of that year. In 1918 the figure was doubled and in 1919 reached a peak month of 40,500 hogs hauled in by motor truck.

Similar situations exist at Omaha, Sioux City, St. Joseph, Kansas City and Denver. And bear in mind that these figures refer to hogs only—they do not take into consideration the big shipments of cattle, calves and sheep.

These figures show how Ship by Truck is increasing, how farmers are availing themselves of it. If it is profitable for the livestock raiser, may it not prove just as profitable for your business?

The JORDAN Silhouette

EASE of handling is comparative. The ocean liner is easy to handle in the open ocean with leagues of water in which to maneuver. But the Silhoutte Five is like the swift white launch darting in and out among the harbor shipping.

It is instantly responsive to the gentlest pressure. The Jordan arrangement of the steering apparatus is a marvel of precise control. The perfect balance of the car, the careful distribution of weight, the length and strength of springs and the delicate suspension all contribute to unerring forward motion, with no side-sway. In its application of power, the Jordan Silhouette is supreme. Acceleration is not a leap but a swift, plane-like glide. There is no jerking or struggling—the road simply flows past.

Women appreciate the ease and restfulness of driving the Silhouette Five as they appreciate its fashionable lines, its harmonious coloring and its perfect appointments.

They welcome a distinctly fine light car—a five passenger car in which quality has been made the compelling ideal.

Get New TIRES NOW

THERE'S no fun in motoring when you are on "pins and needles" all the time that your tires may go out any minute. There's no need of running your tires down to the ragged edge. There's no economy in it—certainly it's no fun. Get this tire question right in your mind, MEN. Live, sturdy TIRES do not blow out and they don't puncture easily. You might just as well ride on this kind of tires always.

The Right Way

THE CARLSTEN-WILLIAMS PLAN

Makes it EASY to have new TIRES on your car—all around, and extras, TOO.

You may choose any make of tire you prefer—absolutely unrestricted selection—and spread your investment over from three to six months. We give you the manufacturer's fair list price, with his full advertised mileage adjustment basis. And for your further protection you have the record of this house for always making good on every promise.

Simply to accommodate you we will take in your old tires at their just valuation, but we wish it distinctly understood that it is just an accommodation to purchasers of new tires, as we are not in the old tire business. We much prefer you to sell your old tires elsewhere if possible.

It is simply a straightforward accommodation to our customers who prefer to spread their tire investment rather than lump it.

5% discount allowed for cash. You simply pay banking interest for the time you want to pay.

It's a simple, sane, safe and satisfactory way for business men to have the tires they want when they need them, without paying for them at one time.

You can buy any number of tires, from one up, on the Carlsten-Williams Plan, or you can pay cash, as you prefer.

In either case it will pay you to investigate the advantages of service which this great tire store in the heart of automobile row offers.

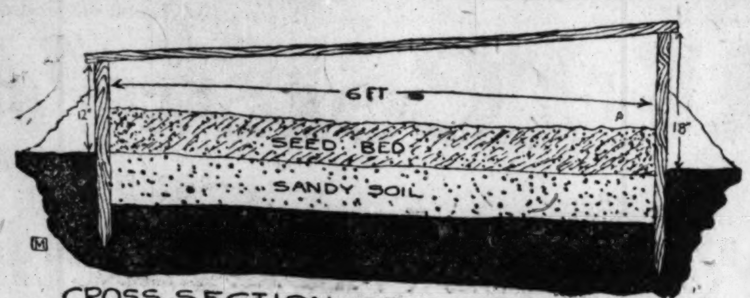
FARM AND GARDEN

Coldframe Gives Home Gardener an Early Start

By Frank Ridgway.



CROSS SECTION OF A COLD FRAME

COLDFRAMES may be used to advantage by Chicago gardeners to protect the early plants from sudden changes of temperature and the lake breeze. They may be used for transplanting, or seed of early vegetables, such as lettuce and radishes, may be planted in the coldframe three or four weeks earlier than it would be safe to sow them outdoors. It is used extensively to develop and harden off plants in early spring which have been started in greenhouses or hotbeds where artificial heat has been supplied.

All suburban gardeners can afford to have a coldframe, if it is only a small one. This device for protecting plants is being used more every year among home gardeners as well as the truck and commercial growers, and is taking the place of the hotbed wherever possible, because manure is scarce. Many gardeners failed to build hotbeds this spring because they could not get manure, but this need not be the case with coldframes where artificial heat is not necessary. The coldframes are used in much the same way as hotbeds, except the crops grown in them are not started as early. They are used more by commercial growers than the hotbeds.

It costs less to build a coldframe than it does a hotbed, less trouble in building it and much less attention is needed in its operation. The hotbed, of course, protects the plants from more severe weather than the coldframes.

Hotbed of Surface Type.

The coldframe may be described as an unheated hotbed of the surface type. It should be built on the south side of a building, if possible, where it will receive the full benefit of the sun's heat throughout the day and will be protected from cold winds. Many home gardeners, operating on a small scale, build a temporary structure out of scrap lumber and the cost is small. No manure is used to supply heat in the coldframes and, therefore, little or no excavation is needed. It should be built on a sandy soil where drainage is good. All of the framework is above ground.

In constructing a coldframe some make it a hard job by building the frame and carrying the earth from which the seedbed is to be made. It is much easier to prepare the seedbed first and then build the frame around it. A seedbed five or six inches deep should be made with rich, loose soil, with no clods, rocks, or cinders to prevent the transplanted plant roots from becoming readily established.

After the seedbed has been worked into a fine mellow layer, place twelve inch boards one inch thick around it to form the sides and ends. Set the boards on edge and by driving stakes in the ground on the inside and outside they may be held in place. Then the boards can be easily taken up and stored in the fall after all of the plants have been removed. The size of the frames will depend on how much space is needed. They may be built of any length and width, but for the small gardener a frame six feet square is the most convenient size. New sections may be added as they are needed. A six inch board placed on the back of the frame, or the north side, will give the sash the proper slope to admit the sunlight.

Cover on Cold Nights.

As an extra precaution bank the boards around the outside with dirt so that cold air cannot enter. This part of the work must be done carefully, especially where the frames are not protected by buildings or windbreaks. The frames may be built in the garden, but some form of windbreak should be provided. A solid board wall on the north side is sufficient. During a severe cold period it is advisable to cover the frames at night with sacks or old carpets, particularly where windbreaks have not been provided.

There are two kinds of covers used on the frame, the cloth and the sash. The cloth covering may be made of cheap unbleached muslin. It should be stretched across the bed, held up in the center with narrow strips of wood, and the sides and ends nailed down to hold the cloth in place. Where the coldframes are used to grow plants that are to be transplanted for a late crop, or to harden off plants that have been started in the greenhouse or hotbed, the cloth cover will be sufficient in most cases, and is commonly used in the south. If the cloth is of good quality and carefully cared for it will last two or three seasons.

The cloth covers are not to be strongly recommended for the home gardener here in Chicago and suburbs near the lake. The sash is much to be preferred, as it gives the plants the full benefit of the heat from the sun. Window sashes may be used, but the standard sash generally used on hotbeds is satisfactory for the coldframes. It is 3 by 6 feet and two of them fit a frame six feet square. A frame twelve feet wide may be used and the sashes laid in double rows, with a ridge pole through the center for the sashes to rest on.

Good All Season.

Where the seedbed is protected by the coldframe the plants are not in danger of being injured by late frosts. Early plants, such as tomatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, and head lettuce, that are started in greenhouses or hotbeds, may be bought from the commercial grower, and the home gardener can grow the seedlings for the main crop under coldframes.

After the early crops have been removed the frames may still be put to good use during the summer by growing melons and similar heat loving plants. It is claimed that the coldframes speed up the ripening of the fruit and the melons mature before there is danger of frost catching them. The frames can be used again in the fall to prolong the harvesting of such crops as lettuce and onion sets.

Watering must be done daily, except on cloudy days. Gardeners differ in their opinion as to when watering should be done. It may be applied either in the morning or afternoon. Where watering is done in the late afternoon it should be completed early enough so the foliage will be reasonably dry before the frames are closed for the night. "Damping off," a fungus disease, causes a great deal of trouble where the sash is left in place too long, causing an excess of moisture. This frequently happens at night when the frames are covered before the plants are allowed to dry.

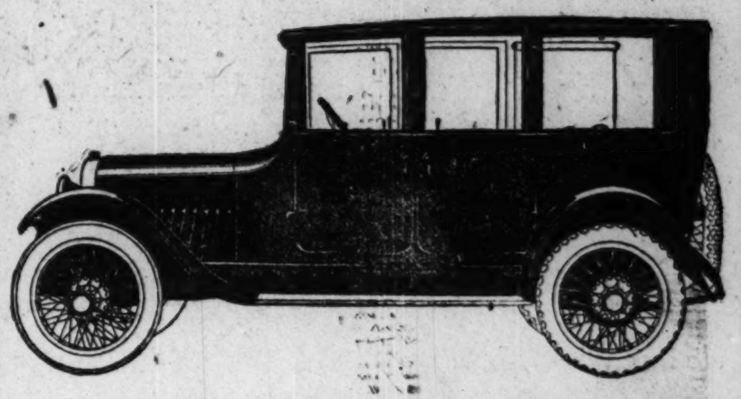
OAKLAND OWNERS REPORT RETURNS OF FROM 18 TO 25 MILES PER GALLON OF GASOLINE AND FROM 8,000 TO 12,000 MILES ON TIRES



IT is observed in our salesroom that the purchase of an Oakland Sensible Six Sedan often is decided after a very few minutes of inspection.

People realize quickly that the immense resources back of this car have produced in it an unmatched value.

The car we are showing today is the staunch Oakland of years past rendered even more serviceable by heavier construction and advanced design.

The six and one-half inch deep frame, the large axles, the strongly built body and high grade equipment give it extraordinary capacity for service.

The substantially appointed interior, with window regulators, tonneau heater, silk roller curtains and back panel windows, supplies exceptional convenience and comfort.

Being built and equipped to deliver the utmost in year 'round transportation at low operating cost, it presents a combination of advantages not offered in another car.

What to Expect
Nowadays in a Tread

We have perfected lately for the Miller Tire a record-making tread.

Countless tests show that it outlasts rival treads by 25 per cent, on the average.

And, since this tread was perfected, not a single Miller Tire has come back to us with the tread gone.

Treads that Never Vary

These new-grade treads are daily guarded against variation.

A sample from each lot of tread stock is first vulcanized in our laboratory. Then the tread is tested.

One test is for endurance and one for resiliency. For a hard tread harms the balance of the tire.

This tread is one thing that makes Millers today the most talked-about tires in America.

Double Anti-Skid

Then there is no one type of anti-skid which is best for all conditions. What is best for asphalt is not best for dirt.

So the Miller tread is two-in-one. The center is smooth, so it runs like a plain tread. And it has suction cups—the best way to grasp wet asphalt.

At either side is our Geared-to-the-Road tread, which meshes like cogs in dirt.

Tread Patented

Center Tread smooth with suction cup, for firm hold on wet asphalt. Geared-to-the-Road side treads, mesh like cogs in dirt.

50% More Mileage

Green & Swett Co. of Boston say: "In hundreds of cases we have put Miller Cords on cars heretofore using other makes. Mileage has increased from 50% to 75%. Blow-out annoyance was completely eliminated. Only five cords have been returned for adjustment in a year."

Miller Cord Tire

Thus you have in a single Miller tread the best type possible for any sort of road.

15,000 Mile Treads

The treads on Miller Cords are tested for 15,000 miles. That's the average rear-wheel mileage we get in factory tests on Cords.

On Fabric tire treads a 9,000-mile test is sufficient.

But on either type, by Miller standards, the tread should outlast the body of the tire. That is all you want.

Of course, Miller mileage varies with conditions. There are everywhere men who tell of 20,000 to 25,000 miles on Miller Cords. Others may get from 10,000 miles to 12,000 miles—and from the same uniform tires.

Over-size and under-size affect tire mileage greatly.

But we have yet to find a new-grade Miller tread which failed to outlast the tire.

Make a Comparison

If you think another tire better than Miller, put a Miller tire opposite it.

Compare the tread wear—compare the mileage of the tires. We will rest our case on your verdict.

It is tests like those, made by large tire users, which have made the Miller Tires the sensation.

You owe that to yourself. It is not a question of cost alone, but a question of annoyance. Don't buy tires blindly—know which tire is best.

When you buy a new car insist on Miller Tires. Twenty car makers now supply them and there is no extra charge.

Tires that resist wear

Made so by Brunswick methods

TIRE buyers know—by comments that pass from man to man, if not by their own actual experience—that Brunswick Tires do resist wear to a truly remarkable degree.

If you ask why, probably most Brunswick users will say, "All Brunswick products are highest quality."

Frankly, the House of Brunswick dare not build less than the best. Over 75 years of effort and millions of dollars have been invested in the building up of the Brunswick reputation—a reputation that these tires must now maintain.

Your next tire should be a Brunswick. You need try but one to know that they are different. Your experience with that one tire will tell you what you should do.

There can be no better time than the present to select your first Brunswick. Dealers can supply either Cord or Fabric in a variety of treads. Your Brunswick awaits you.

BRUNSWICK TIRES

Made in the long-famous Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company factories. Constructed of best materials by expert workmen. Tested to meet the exacting standards of Brunswick quality. Backed by a nation-known reputation. Marketed through dealers who have chosen the Brunswick because of the service it renders.

BOYS
FOR OFFICE AND MERCHANDISE WORK.
16-20 years. We need a few boys for clerical work and also for work promising an unusual chance for advancement in several of our merchandise departments.
We have a policy of paying good salaries for boys, because we want only the highest type we can get. If you have a good education, so much the better; if not you will be given practical business training that will fit you for advancement.
We really want boys on whom we can rely and on whom we can build the future of the firm. In other words, we must have boys who have the possibilities of future executives in their makeup.
We want boys who are physically fit, mentally alert, and loyal to the firm with which they have determined to make their future. For this reason we have gymnasium classes, athletic teams in every sport, and are starting a troop of Boy Scouts, who plan to take long hikes this summer.

A LARGER SALARY.
YOU WANT MORE MONEY.
It's yours if you'll put in that extra hour or two each day—in recreation. Sure it's recreation to make pleasant 5 or 10 minute visits on a different line of merchants than the regular line you call on. You get a new viewpoint of business, you're in a different atmosphere. The handy pocket sample, the big commission getter, makes your salary what you want it; no limit except the limit you set for yourself. One man's side line commissions, one week, over $400; everything furnished free to work with; we even show you how to sell it; you learn that in 10 minutes. Write us; you'll at least have the satisfaction of knowing that you have not passed up a big spare time money maker without investigation. C. E. Erickson Co., Inc., 589 Erickson Bldg., Des Moines, Ia.

A NEW SUBDIVISION NOW OPENED. THIS IS THE ONE YOU HAVE BEEN WAITING FOR. We have just opened a new subdvision on the Northwest Side, in a highly restricted neighborhood. This property is so well situated that it will sell itself. A commission will be paid on every lot sold. Do you want to make severa hundred dollars in the next few weeks? For plot of property and full particulars call at T. & T. SALES DEPT., ROOM 847 FIRST NATIONAL BANK BLDG., 68 W. Monroe-st.

ARE YOU MARCHING WITH OR AGAINST THE TIMES?
ACCIDENT-HEALTH SALESMEN ARE making money everywhere this year. The "flu" has demonstrated as probably nothing else could the desirability of carrying a health and accident policy.

ATTENTION—
4 RELIABLE MEN.
Active, neat appearing; best references required; Americans only; average pay to start $40; Chgo. or outside territory; office open until 8:30 p. m. Monday. Apply 5036 Broadway.

AUTOMOBILE SALESMEN—
If you are given exclusive territory by one of the strongest companies of its kind and could see double your present earnings would you be interested? Address C X 254, Tribune.

AVERAGE THESE UP—
From $650 to $1,400 was the spread of commissions paid a great number of our producers during March. Some shot far above this, one man earning $3,390. They sold in protected districts. They were put through a gratuitous course in selling which is free from theories but full of "how to get the order" stuff, and then—get this—they were given leads which many times were really sales in waiting. Our books show year in and out that half cur sales are on leads. Let us show you last month's record of an office man, old cash register salesman, store clerk, and see who earned most. You can sell our device if we accept you whether you ever sold or not, that is, if you'll work. March broke all past records for sales. Our general sales manager who wants 3 hustlers may be seen Monday and Tuesday, Suite 418 Hartford Bldg., 8 S. Dearborn. If out of Chicago or unable to call, write.

BIG MONEY—

SALESMEN.
THIS IS SOMETHING EASY TO SELL.
What is easier to sell than something there is a demand for? There is now an active demand for subdivision lots well located. The scarcity of homes and the high cost of living are compelling people to seek new home locations and build their own homes. In view of this fact we have set out to sell $7,000,000 worth of vacant lots during 1920. This means that we will pay an enormous amount in commissions this year to our salesmen. Those who join us now have the opportunity of making a very large income this year. Our system of prompt closing of sales insures immediate payment of commission. Experience not necessary in our business. We teach you in our free school of salesmanship. Join us now for a successful year. Call and get further information personally from Miscellaneous.

YOU ARE A "RED BLOODED" MAN, either a wage earner or in some salaried position, blocked by conditions over which you have no control, so that you are not earning what you need or what you are worth, we would like to get in touch with you. This is a large institution, with 10 branch offices in the city of Chicago. We have a place open which we would like to fill with a man who knows nothing about our business, who will probably bring to it an experience which would be helpful to us. We would prefer a salesman, but would consider a man not now selling who knows that the sales end is the best end of every business, and is therefore determined to enter into that department knowing, as most men do, that salesmen get what they are entitled to—they can demand it. Some time ago, when we had a vacancy, we put in a similar advertisement, and received many answers, among which was one from a waiter, who is now making better than $100 per week. Address E A 70, Tribune.

BUYERS AND ASSISTANT BUYERS
For Waists, Millinery, Boys' Clothing, Men's Clothing, Sweaters.
We want men who are now buying in a large capacity, thoroughly familiar with the market, and who have experience in any of the above lines. Applications will also be considered from men who are now assistants to large successful buyers. Applications for the above positions will be accepted by letter only, and should give full particulars as to qualifications, age, present employer, experience, and salary expected. Address all letters to
A. B. WILSON,
NATIONAL CLOAK & SUIT COMPANY,
KANSAS CITY, MO.

DON'T ASK FOR A RAISE IN SALARY. Become a salesman and be independent. Salesmen are made NOT BORN. We will make a successful salesman of you in four weeks if you will attend our FREE SCHOOL OF SALESMANSHIP one evening each week. You can retain your present position while learning and after you have completed the course of instruction we will give you a part time position, whereby you can double your present earnings. A liberal proposition. Investigate it! Write at once for enrollment blank. Address F T 391, Tribune.

DO IT NOW WHICH YOU CHOOSE TO BE.
A small salaried man or an independent salesman. We are conducting a free evening school in salesmanship and reveal the secret of successful selling 30 subjects on advanced scientific selling. We also make it possible for you to earn $50 per week in your spare time while learning class starts 7 p. m. sharp Tuesday evening at Room 312, 81 E. Madison-st.
ALL WELCOME.

MEN—OUR BUSINESS IS INCREASING rapidly, necessitates increased production; need a number of men who are not only able to fill present vacancies, but whom we can promote to better positions later on. If you are looking for a good steady job, with advancement, and not afraid to do hard work, call at our employment office tomorrow morning prepared for work; 9 hr. day, 50 hr. wk.; ½ day Saturday.

TO GIRLS AND WOMEN who are earning $16 a week or less. A large downtown manufacturing corporation sends you this message: If you want office work in congenial surroundings, more pay than you are getting, if you want Saturday afternoons off throughout the year, here's your chance. We don't mind if you haven't had office experience. We're mighty glad to teach people who are willing to be taught, and we have a reputation for fair dealing, earned through many years in which we have played square with our employes. Do the right thing by yourself and your employer, and if your present job offers opportunities, don't think of changing. But if you do contemplate a change, we'll help you make a good one. Tell us about yourself in a letter mentioning age, education, and phone no. Confidential. Address G S 54, Tribune.

Knowlton's Mystery ✥ by William Wallace Major

It Was a Nine Days' Wonder, and the Town Forgot—But There Was One Who Remembered

IT was 7 o'clock in the morning and Marshal Jim Cooper was ringing a wall telephone gingerly.

"Gimme Norton, quick, git a move on you, Lou. I'm in a hurry." Marshal Cooper was all a-flutter and had no time to waste on telephone girls.

"Norton? 'At you, Norton? This is Marshal Cooper at Knowlton. Gimme Prosecutor Burton or the sheriff right away. Hell's a-poppin' down here. They's bin a murder committed, maybe two. Hurry up now."

Soon the marshal had Burton on the wire, and hastily, nervously, he chopped out the facts as he knew them.

"I'll be right down," Burton told him, somewhat excited himself. "I'll bring the sheriff and the coroner with me."

An hour and a half later a machine came whirling into Knowlton, a great cloud of August dust eddying behind it. The car ran up in front of a store and soft drink parlor owned by Herman Mathews, and Mr. Burton alighted.

"Where's Marshal Cooper?" he asked of Herman.

"Over on the commons there. See that crowd?" He pointed down the road street two blocks.

Burton, Dr. Morton, and Sheriff Perry continued on to the cluster of men.

Marshal Cooper saw them coming and with his best official demeanor ordered the crowd back. The county authorities stepped into the circle and saw the body of George C. Newlin, clerk of the Knowlton Commercial bank, lying upon the ground. They surveyed it for a few seconds.

"Examine him, please, Dr. Morton," the prosecutor said to the coroner. "Now, Marshal Cooper, tell us what you know about it. And who is the other man that might have been murdered?"

Marshal Cooper told them that Lewis J. Elkins, president of the Commercial bank, was the other supposed victim. His body was at the Elkins home. But Marshal Cooper could not give them much information as to either case. All he knew was that Newlin's body had been discovered on the common at dawn, just in the position it was now in. No one had seen it placed there during the night, so far as he could learn; no one had heard a shot or a cry or an unusual sound. No one thought to look for tracks, and the dust was now disturbed.

"What do you find, doctor?" Burton asked the coroner.

"A slight abrasion at the base of the skull," Dr. Morton replied. "That's all externally. But his death was caused by a broken neck. Other than that I can find nothing wrong."

The county officials ordered the body taken to the undertaker's and were moving away when a youth came running and announced that the Commercial bank had been robbed. John Hanson, the cashier, had just opened it and found $5,000 missing, money which had recently been deposited by farmers who had sold their wheat.

"Things are happening around here," whistled the prosecutor. "Come on; we will stop at the bank on the way to the Elkins home."

At the bank everything was in order. Mr. Hanson told them he had found the doors locked as always, the nontime locking safe closed as it had been every morning, and papers and books undisturbed. But on opening the safe he discovered that $5,000 was missing.

A search about the building revealed nothing; a search outside revealed nothing. There was not even a track in the road which might have indicated a machine had been near the bank during the night.

"Did Newlin have a key to the bank?" Burton finally asked Hanson.

"Yes, he did. Always had one. But you didn't find the money on his body, did you?"

"No; but we will look again."

Burton turned to leave the bank, then stopped.

"Let me talk to you in private, Mr. Hanson." And with the middle aged cashier, a man of faultless habits, he went into what had been Mr. Elkins' private office. They were closeted half an hour.

"Don't believe he is guilty or knows anything about it," Burton said to Perry and Dr. Morton as they walked back to the undertaker's. "However, I guess it would be best to question him further and watch him."

They did not find the money on Newlin. They found the bank door key, but Burton said that proved nothing. He remarked that it would be hard to connect a dead man with the robbery when they could not make him confess and when there was no evidence against him.

So they went to the Elkins home, the most pretentious of any in the town of a thousand people. Mrs. Elkins was reclining upon a divan, weeping and hysterical. She told them Mr. Elkins' body was in his machine in front of the garage. They went to the rear and there saw the corpse of the middle aged banker at the steering wheel of the car, his arms clasped around the wheel and his head resting upon them, as if he had fallen asleep.

Dr. Morton made another examination. There was no mark to indicate the banker had been the victim of foul play. Dr. Morton said he believed he had died of heart disease.

Returning to the house, the prosecutor questioned Mrs. Elkins.

"Would you tell us, Mrs. Elkins, what you know about this unfortunate occurrence?" he asked. "I realize it is a painful situation and will be brief. Where was Mr. Elkins last night in the car?"

"He left—left yesterday afternoon for Winston. He—he told me he intended to be gone for the night. It—it was some sort of business." The words came disjointedly, between sobs.

"He did not tell you just what it was?"

"No. Mr. Elkins nev—never told me about his business affairs."

"Did you hear him return?"

"No. I slept soundly all night and did not—did not know—he—was dead until this morning."

"Tell us about the discovery."

"Well, I had arranged with a man to come this morning to mow the lawn. Duggan—John Duggan. I had just got up and come down to the kitchen; I do not have steady help and there was no one in the house but me. I was getting a bite for breakfast when Mr. Duggan came running in and told me the machine was standing in the drive and Mr. Elkins was leaning over the wheel. He didn't know he was dead, but he thought there was something strange about it. I—I went out with him and—and tried to arouse Mr. Elkins. But—but I could not. Then I came back to the house and Mr. Duggan went for Marshal Cooper. I—I—O, it's awful, awful." She gave way to her grief.

The prosecutor waited for the calm before he pursued his questioning.

"Was Mr. Elkins afflicted with heart trouble? Did he ever show any symptoms—grow weak, or faint?"

"Yes—yes, he had one or two slight attacks. Once in the bank he almost collapsed. Mr. Hanson knows about that."

"We'll not bother you much longer, Mrs. Elkins. There's just one thing more. Do you object to the body being held for a few days before burial? Perhaps a post-mortem may throw a little light on the case."

"No. I have no objections."

"Thank you. I'll do my best to clear this up. Two mysterious deaths here—it is very unusual. Good-day."

They tiptoed from the house with an air of relief. Prosecutor Burton did not like to have to question hysterical women.

Many other persons were questioned in the hope of turning up a clew. Burton inquired of Hanson concerning Newlin's antecedents and was informed that he had come from Cleveland on the recommendation of a Cleveland banker two years before. Mr. Elkins had always spoken very highly of him.

Among Mr. Elkins' papers was found a letter to which Burton attached considerable importance, and the next day he and the sheriff drove fifteen miles farther east into the hills bordering the Ohio river. The letter, written in a scrawling and illiterate style and signed by George Hendricks, had been posted seven days before. It was very short and to the point, being, in fact, a threat that if Mr. Elkins did not restore $5,000 which Hendricks claimed he was entitled to, he, Hendricks would take steps to get it back.

With the letter in hand, Prosecutor Burton, accompanied by the sheriff, climbed a rock strewn hillside to the Hendricks house, a place badly in need of repair. It was patently not the home of a prosperous farmer.

George, a doddering old man, was amiable enough to his callers. He calmly admitted he had written the letter to Elkins, explaining that some months before Elkins had foreclosed a mortgage on an adjoining piece of land of his and had sold it for $5,000 to a neighbor. He went on to say that following this his wife had died and that now he was alone on his almost worthless patch of twenty acres or so. He said the foreclosure had brought on his wife's death, and if Elkins had been lenient a little while longer they would have been able to pay out.

He told his story frankly, until Burton asked him what steps he had planned to take to recover. Then he parleyed that he had not determined exactly what he was going to do, and that he did not want to jeopardize his plans for the future by discussing them. In answer to questions concerning his whereabouts the night of the tragedy he said he had been at a crossroads store until 9 or 10 o'clock and then had returned home.

The prosecutor and sheriff ransacked the house and barn in search for the money, and took George with them to the store. They learned from the proprietor that the old man had been there the night of the tragedy. Others corroborated this, and one man said he had ridden home with George, helped him put up his horse, and had walked on to his own home.

Burton did not hold Hendricks. On looking over the two bony animals in Hendricks' stable, he decided that neither was capable of making thirty miles in a night. Besides, it seemed ridiculous to assume that old George, doddering as he was, had enough tact and ingenuity to compass such a robbery.

The third day an inquest was held and the verdict left open. The fourth day Mr. Elkins was buried after an analysis of the vital organs of both him and Newlin had been made and developed nothing. Newlin's body was shipped to Cleveland, where relatives were found.

For weeks the verdict remained open while Burton and his aids investigated. Newlin's record in Cleveland was gone into thoroughly. Nothing was revealed which helped solve the mystery.

Hanson was quizzed again and again and a search made for a hiding place to which he might have taken the money. But here again the trail led nowhere, as plodding, honest Hanson was not the kind of man to hook up with such an affair easily.

Mrs. Elkins was questioned, but never threw any more light on the situation. Burton erased her from consideration.

Finally the prosecutor gave up. He rather inclined to the theory that Elkins and Newlin, by some chance, had been at the bank and were surprised by robbers who had caused their taking off. But he could lay his hands on nothing to prove it. He counseled the coroner to return a verdict of death from a broken neck, cause unknown, in the case of Newlin, and from heart disease in the case of the banker.

So after many a night of theorizing and animated conversation and good natured jibes at Marshal Cooper, the boys at Herman Mathews' store found other topics of discussion. Knowlton got bravely over its spree of popularity, or notoriety, and no longer saw its name blazoned in the city papers. Knowlton was happy to have been mentioned once, but even the most bucolic became sated after while.

A few months later an anonymous letter came to Burton saying George Hendricks had repurchased the land on which Elkins had foreclosed. He made another trip into the hills and brought back the old man with him. He held him several days in the county jail, but he could not get anything incriminating from him. How he had come into possession of the money with which to buy the land he consistently refused to say. It was a secret he said would die with him. He just as consistently denied he had been in Knowlton on that August night.

Burton was unable to break down his story. No one knew where the money came from. There was no evidence.

Finally old George was released.

Number 9 was trundling down toward Knowlton on its daily trip. It was June. In the only day coach of the train was a young man of perhaps 30. His appearance was different from that of the other men in the car. The cut of his clothes was what made it so. He was not dressed elegantly, but his clothes were of the best and conservative.

Several of the passengers looked at him as if they knew him. But they were not convinced they did; at least none went over to talk with him.

The man smiled reminiscently as the train passed familiar landmarks. Among other things that attracted his attention were occasional billboards which proclaimed Knowlton that week was to have a great homecoming with an accompanying barbecue and imported amusements. Higgins' grove at the edge of town was to be the scene.

It was Sunday evening and there were many persons at the train. In fact, there were several hundred more than 1,000 persons in Knowlton that evening in anticipation of the big event.

John Grant swung from the train into the arms of a waiting mother, father, and sister. There were others who recognized him and he stopped to exchange greetings with them before he walked away with his family.

Higgins' grove was alive with humanity the next day. John Grant met men and women he had not seen in ten, fifteen years. It had been three years since he was home; he had been back only twice before in eight years. On each trip he had been glad when the visit ended; the town irked him. But, as his mother had remarked to his father the night before, John seemed to be changed; she supposed it was because he was older. Perhaps he would care more for home now and the city less.

Anyhow, today she noted that John met old friends with real warmth. He was pleased to see them. He shook hands cordially with Helen Elkins, the widow.

"It seems good to see you, Helen," he said. "You're not changed; you're the same—" He ended the sentence abruptly. He saw there was a great change when he looked closely at her. Now there were gray hairs around her temples and her face showed tiny lines.

"I'm glad to see you again, John," she said, breaking an awkward silence. "Will you be here long?"

"All week, Helen. And I think I am going to have a right good time." He laughed.

They separated for the time being. But later in the day, drawn by an inexplicable feeling, John Grant sought her out. It was as though he had discovered the real Helen Elkins, the Helen he had never known before.

Helen readily accepted his invitation for a walk down by the river away from the crowd. They were gone quite a while and when they returned they were both in pleasant mood.

"Come over to the house before you leave, John," she said when they parted. "We'll talk over old times."

"I'd be glad to. Tomorrow afternoon—what do you say? Maybe I can tear away from home."

"Do. But I don't play baseball any more, John. Or swim, or do all those happy things we used to." She laughed. "But you come—I'll be glad to have you."

John walked back to town with his sister.

"Poor Helen," Martha condoned. "Hers has been a sad lot the last year. Do you know, John, this afternoon is the first time I've seen her smile since last August."

"Too bad," John replied sympathetically. "Perhaps we can do something to cheer her up. Do the people here try, Martha?"

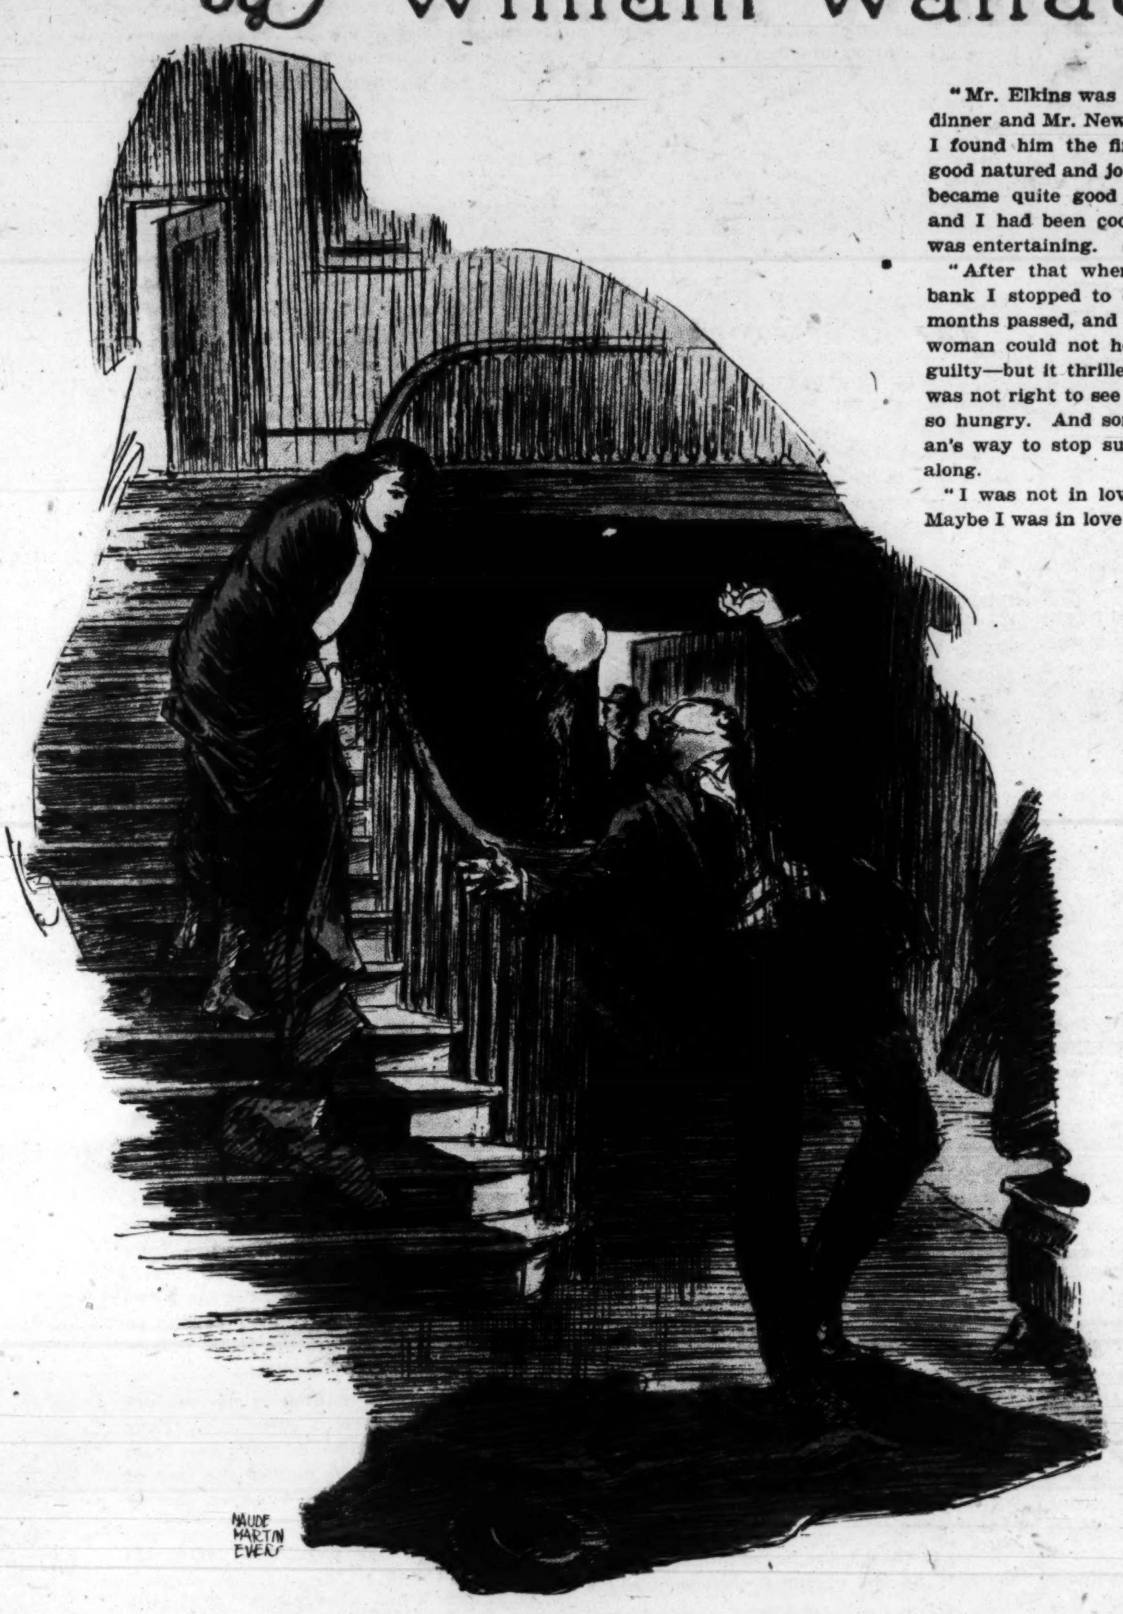
"I do. And some of the others. But we don't seem to be able to make any headway."

"Strange affair, wasn't it? I don't suppose anything has ever developed to clear it up?"

"Not a thing. The money has never been found."

The next afternoon when John Grant went to call on Helen Elkins he found her in the garden clipping roses. She was dressed in summery gingham, a modest garment for the widow of the town's richest man. But she was immaculate. John found her wholesome and restful.

He went back to her and they clasped hands warmly. His face flushed; it came like a shot to John Grant, as he stood there holding her hand. It was as if it had flashed upon him that here was the woman, right in the town he had scoffed at; the woman who had been a schoolmate and a playmate, and never a sweetheart.



"I saw him slip and fall backward. I suppose his neck was broken."

Helen's face flushed, too, colored beautifully.

"Come, John, let's sit in the summer house."

John grudgingly gave up her hand and followed her. They seated themselves in a swing. All about the latticed sides were freshly verdant vines; sprinkled among them were violet and cerise hued blossoms. Summer with all its appeal for man and woman was in the air.

John Grant, a conservative enough man, seemed to be swept off his feet by the surroundings, by Helen. To come back and find such a paradise, such a woman. Never before had he realized she was so wholesome and restful.

And Helen was not immune to the germ. Her eyes sparkled with health and the pleasurable sensation that here was a man kneeling at her shrine. Yet there was a trace of melancholia in them; the months of sorrow could not be dashed away in a moment.

They talked of the old days, of John's work, his plans. He found it easy to confide in her. His hand clasped one of hers again and she did not attempt to withdraw it.

The avowal came at last from John Grant.

The fingers of Helen's left hand tightened about the scissors with which she had been clipping the roses. She did not answer at once. They sat in a silence that expressed more than either could have put into words.

"I felt this coming, John—since yesterday," she finally said. "I don't believe, though, that you quite understand; that you can be quite certain. And yet I—I am glad, in more ways than one.

"John, did you ever have your brain nearly bursting with the pressure of a secret that you dared not tell? Of course not. You cannot imagine the torture of it; maybe it's only a woman's weakness. But now I can satisfy the passion to tell some one. It will give me such a relief, and—I hope you will understand."

She paused and looked at him, a little frightened by what she was about to say.

"I had best begin at the beginning," she went one, "with my marriage. It was not happy, John. I admired him immensely, he was so prosperous and every one looked up to him so. And there had never been any one else. You see, I didn't know the difference in our ages would count so much. I was encouraged on every hand. It was wrong, O so wrong.

"That terrible affair last summer, John. The truth has never been told about that. I alone know it, and the secret has been like a great searing iron within me. It has depressed, badgered, tormented until I did not know what to do—whether to tell or remain silent. There have been days when I thought I would scream it from the housetops, when I thought I would run through the streets crying that I was living a life of falsehood."

She stopped, her eyes widened and her face blanched. John pressed her hand reassuringly.

"I understand, Helen," he said.

"I think it must have all had its beginning when Mr. Elkins invited Mr. Newlin to the house for dinner one evening. Mr. Newlin had been here quite a while then. I don't think we had ever noticed each other before—particularly. I had seen him at the bank of course.

"Mr. Elkins was called away shortly after dinner and Mr. Newlin and I were left alone. I found him the firm, determined sort, but good natured and jovial. During the talk we became quite good friends. He was youth and I had been cooped up so long; yes, he was entertaining.

"After that when I happened in at the bank I stopped to chat with him. Several months passed, and I saw in his eyes what a woman could not help but see. I felt very guilty—but it thrilled me, too. O, I know it was not right to see him, but—my heart was so hungry. And somehow it is not a woman's way to stop such things; we just drift along.

"I was not in love with him, I am sure. Maybe I was in love with love; I don't know. Perhaps you can understand what I mean."

He pressed her hand again.

"Yes, it was wrong for me to keep on seeing him at all when I knew what was in his heart. It seemed it was costing him a great effort to suppress it. It was selfish of me—unfair to him.

"One day he said to me, 'You are very unhappy, Helen,' and because it was true and because his voice and eyes were so tender, I began to cry. I was not used to tenderness. I pulled down my veil and hurried from the bank.

"The next day I got a note from him—a foolhardy thing for him to do in such a small town. It simply said, 'Will you forgive me?'

"After that I stayed away from the bank, and one evening a week later he called me on the phone.

"'Did you get my note?' he asked.

"'Yes,' I said.

"'What is the answer?' he wanted to know.

"'How could it be anything but yes?' I told him.

"'All right,' he said. 'Tonight.'

"That was all. The tenseness of his voice made me uneasy; the 'Tonight' worried me, but I told myself I had misunderstood it for 'Good-night.'

"Mr. Elkins had driven over to Winston to attend a bankers' meeting of some kind. He said he would not be back until the next day.

"I went to bed early. At 11 o'clock the doorbell rang. I slipped into my dressing gown and went down to answer it. It—it was him!

"'Helen!' he exclaimed. 'Aren't you ready? The train goes at midnight.'

"I was so amazed, so terror stricken, that I made no remonstrance when he came in and closed the door.

"'What does this mean?' I demanded. 'How dare you come here like this?'

"'Aren't you going with me, Helen?' he insisted.

"'Going? With you?' I gasped. 'Are you mad?'

"'I guess so,' he said. 'Mad with love of you. Hurry, Helen, for we are going away to—happiness.'

"I finally got the straight of it. After the first note he had sent me another, proposing that we go away together. It did not come until the next day—it had been mailed in another town.

"When he saw that it was all a horrible misunderstanding he pleaded I should go anyway because of his love for me, and—and would not leave. He tried to take me in his arms. I ran up the stairs to escape him and he followed.

"Then I heard a car in the drive and—and knew Mr. Elkins had come home. It was a terrible moment. I stopped on the stairs and begged him to go quickly. Finally he seemed to understand and turned to go down the stairs.

"But it was too late. The car stopped outside the garage and it seemed only a second before I heard Mr. Elkins on the rear porch. Mr. Newlin had taken only two or three steps when I heard Mr. Elkins open the door into the kitchen. This seemed to frighten Mr. Newlin, make him realize his position and mine. He ran down the stairs and dashed for the front door. As he did so I saw him slip and fall backward. I did not dare stop. I suppose in some way his neck was broken. The coroner said it was.

"I hurried into my room and lay down. Then in a minute I heard a gasp from Mr. Elkins and—and—a dull sound. I waited for perhaps thirty minutes, not knowing what to do. Then when I heard nothing I crept down.

"The hall light had been jostled out. I stumbled over something. I found the light finally and turned it on. I drew back in terror. Not far from the foot of the stairs lay Mr. Elkins. Under him was Mr. Newlin. I suppose Mr. Elkins had died of the shock; an act of Providence, I guess.

"I wanted to scream, but managed to control myself. I sat down on a chair and stared at them in dumbest agony. How long I sat stupefied I do not know. Finally my senses returned and, I realized they must never be found there—dead. Dead, John; both; both of them.

"What was I to do? Frantically I paced up and down the hall, groping for an idea. At last it came, thank heaven. First I carried Mr. Elkins out and placed him behind the wheel of the car and clasped his hands around it. I pulled and tugged until I got him in the proper position, so that his head and shoulders were leaning forward as though death had come to him as he shut off the engine.

"And Mr. Newlin. I put on a dark dress and went out to see if there was any one on the streets. It must have been 1 o'clock by then and fortunately there was not a soul stirring. It was quiet as could be, of course, but it seemed to me the whole world was in an uproar, my heart was pounding so. Seeing the way clear, I returned and got Mr. Newlin. I half carried, half dragged him. I hugged along under the trees, avoiding spots of moonlight. I had enough sense, too, to keep on the grass. He was heavy but I did not seem to notice that. My muscles were deadened by fear. I thought there were a thousand pairs of eyes looking at me from every window. I was in a frenzy.

"The two blocks from the house to the common seemed like two miles. But I finally got him there and left him lying on the ground as he was found the next morning. Why I should have picked out the common I do not know unless it was to give the impression that something had happened to him there. Like I was being followed, I stole back home, fearing I would be detected. But God has been good to me, for I believe no one to this day has suspected. But, oh, what terrors have been mine! Living forever in dread."

She ceased talking and the tears crept down her cheeks.

"But the money, Helen," John spoke up. "What happened to the money that was missing from the bank?"

"That's—that's another miserable part of it," she faltered. "Of course he took it—to go away with. I noticed it in his pocket, it made such a bulge. Something told me it was not his, and I felt I owed it to him to protect his name when it was partly my fault, as unconscious as it was, that he did such a wild thing. So I took it, intending to give it back to the bank in some manner that would not excite suspicion.

"While I was trying to think of a way, I heard about an old farmer by the name of George Hendricks who had lost some land through one of Mr. Elkins' deals. It was honest enough, but heartless, so I decided to give it to him.

"I guess I was a party to a theft; I—I don't know."

"You did right, Helen, exactly right. At least there was one person benefited by the whole terrible business. And Helen—you need to go away from here. Where you can rest and—and forget. Find a new interest. Will you, Helen—with me?"

In answer Helen's head went down upon his shoulder, and when John Grant returned to New York he did not return alone.

WHICH ?

THE STORY THUS FAR—Opening a closet door in her hotel room, Betty Le Baron, a bride of three days, is horrified at discovering the body of a beautiful young woman with a knife through her heart. To make matters worse, Bob Le Baron, Betty's husband, refuses to explain his movements just before the discovery of the crime and is arrested on suspicion. Several people interest themselves in the case; among them John Rush, an old friend of Le Baron's, now employed as secretary to Harrison Hardy, a capitalist, and Anne Blair, a young woman who lives in the hotel. When Rush tells his employer that the murdered girl has been identified as Olga Ordinoff, daughter of a Russian general, Hardy exclaims: "Then they've got the $2,000,000!" He appears greatly disturbed, though he will not explain why, and sends Rush to engage the services of Hugh Smith, a private detective. Smith, after a brief investigation, fixes the crime on a waiter, whereupon the latter confesses and kills himself. This serves to free Le Baron, but does not satisfy Anne Blair, who insists there is more to the affair than appears on the surface. She determines to find out what Hardy knows and to learn the significance of a little black cross she saw on the closet door when she happened into the Le Barons' room just before the police came. This cross, Rush remembers, disappeared mysteriously after he had seen the hotel's head waiter standing near the door and fumbling with a handkerchief. Meanwhile Anne becomes interested in Ruthina Dushane, an heiress, and manages to recover for her some letters which Caspar Dietz, a former gardener of her father's, has been using as a basis for attempted blackmail. One night shortly afterward Rush glances into a lunchroom and sees Meyer, the head waiter, and Caspar Dietz together, which strengthens a growing suspicion that the murder case and the attempt to blackmail Miss Dushane are in some way connected. Hardy finds himself increasingly interested in Miss Blair and finally admits to her that he has been involved in an attempt to restore an imperialistic government in Russia and that the murder victim was to have taken the first installment of funds to that country. At a dinner given by the financier and attended by Rush, Anne Blair, the Le Barons, and Gordon Dean, president of Hardy's trust company, Hugh Smith makes a dramatic appearance and declares that one of those present helped plan the death of Olga Ordinoff. He is interrupted by Betty Le Baron, who screams and collapses, moaning, "That face; that terrible face!" Smith bluntly refuses to explain his accusation and vanishes as mysteriously as he has come. Indignant over what has happened, Rush quits Hardy's employ, and, on leaving the hotel, catches Meyer, the head waiter, following him. The next day Anne and Rush, chatting in a tearoom, find Caspar Dietz's wife peering through a window at them. At Anne's suggestion Rush decides to turn the tables on those who are following them and do a little shadowing on his own account.

NINTH INSTALLMENT.

In the Hands of the Enemy.

CROUCHED on a rusted fire escape, the darkness of 2 in the morning hiding him from observation, his nerves tense with a fever of expectatinon, Rush kept his with a fever of expectation, Rush kept his below him.

If his hopes were realized he would soon be in possession of proof, definite, convincing proof, that it was the man Meyer who was at the bottom of the plot.

Huddled up against the rickety iron bars, his collar turned up to keep out the chilling night wind, he would hardly have been recognizable to any of his acquaintances as the once immaculate private secretary of Harrison Hardy. He was clad in the oldest suit he possessed and wore a cheap blue flannel shirt, with a cap drawn low over his eyes. For two days he had gone unshaven. He looked—or at least he sincerely hoped he looked—like a denizen of the dilapidated quarter into which his search for the slayer of Olga Ordinoff had led him.

Almost overnight the scene of his activities had shifted from the exclusive purlieus of the Ritsmore to the dingy tawdriness of Second avenue, in point of space hardly four blocks distant, but in the conditions that prevailed a million miles removed. It was a region of populous tenements and furnished room houses, of innumerable ill smelling delicatessens, of streets in the day time overthronged with slattern women, lounging men, and hordes upon hordes of underfed, dirty faced children.

As he watched his thoughts were mostly of Anne Blair. What, he wondered, was she doing in her efforts to solve the mystery. For two days he had not seen her. As she had agreed, she had telephoned to him the address of the head waiter's lodging. Their experience at the tea room had convinced her that one of them, perhaps both, were being closely shadowed, and she had insisted that it was wiser for them to have no further meetings until they discovered for what purpose and by whom they were being watched. When he had protested against her decision, all she would agree to was that they might talk over the telephone each morning at 9. Loath as he was to accept his banishment from her presence, he, too, had realized the need of caution. Why any one should wish to shadow him was a puzzle, and yet the appearance of Sophie Dietz at the tea room window right on the heels of his having been trailed by Meyer was disturbing.

Cut off from Anne's society, he had devoted his energies to following up the activities of Meyer. He still clung tenaciously to his belief in the head waiter's guilt, and was all the more determined to clear up the murder mystery and its trail of sinister suspicion, if for no other reason than that he might again have more frequent opportunities of seeing the girl with whom he was becoming each day more hopelessly in love. Even the problem of finding another position he had put aside until this enigma of crime was solved.

Meyer, he reasoned, must be persistently tracked, in the hope that his activities would furnish the key to the mystery. He decided to follow him each night as he left the hotel, keeping close watch on his movements and especially on the people he met. The very night he learned the address of Meyer's lodging he set about shadowing him. Waiting in a taxicab half a block from the hotel he had seen Meyer leave and had trailed him cautiously as he walked west, turning into Sixth avenue. In the middle of one block he saw Meyer entering a house with a latchkey. Dismissing the cab, he followed to the door and saw that it was the number where the man lived. He waited about the neighborhood for an hour, but nothing happened. No one else entered the building. He saw a light go up in one of the front rooms and in a few minutes go out again, as if the occupant had retired for the night.

Waiting the next day until he was sure Meyer's duties would have taken him to the hotel, he visited the place, which had a shop on the first floor, some offices on the second, and rooms to let on the third and fourth. After some guarded inquiries in the neighborhood, he ventured into the house itself on the pretext of renting a room. Finding a garrulous landlady, he questioned her as to her lodgers, easily learning from her that Meyer had been a lodger there eight years, that he was "a splendid gentleman, so quiet, never any company, and always pays his rent prompt every Saturday."

Somewhat discouraged by the results of his investigations, he decided to trail him a second night. This time, to his amazement and delight, Meyer did not head homeward, but turned east and walked rapidly in the direction of Second avenue. As he approached that thoroughfare by one of the side streets, two men who had been waiting in the shadow of the building stepped out and hailed him. Apparently the meeting had been prearranged, for the head waiter exhibited no surprise, but stood chatting with them on the sidewalk.

Rush, dismissing his taxicab, crept softly up the street behind them, but before he was close enough to overhear their conversation they moved on and entered a house next the corner on the upper side of the street, one of Meyer's companions opening the door with a latchkey. As the man with the key turned to admit the others the glare from the electric light on the corner fell full on his face. With difficulty Rush repressed an exclamation of satisfaction. The face was that of Caspar Dietz.

But what move should he make next? As the door closed behind the three men he realized that there was no way practicable by which he could hope to gain admittance to the house that night. There was nothing for him to do but wait. Keeping well back in the shadows across the street, he studied the house. Apparently the men had gone to some room in the rear part of the building, for no light was visible. He made up his mind to visit the neighborhood the next morning and try to enter the building on some pretext.

Presently the door opened and Meyer emerged. He was alone, although one of his companions came as far as the door with him, whether or not it was Dietz Rush could not see.

As Meyer set out swiftly in the direction of his home, Rush for a moment was in a quandary. Should he continue to watch the house or should he follow the head waiter? He decided on the latter course and later regretted that he had done so, for the man went directly home and to bed.

Although he really had learned little of Meyer's activities, Rush felt jubilantly certain that he was on the right track. He now felt that he was in a position successfully to confute Anne in her statement that the head waiter did not fit into the picture. He had definite proof that Meyer and Caspar Dietz were meeting and he knew the house in which they held their rendezvous. He could hardly wait for 9 to come in the morning, so eager was he to communicate his discovery to Anne Blair.

"Can't I see you today?" he begged as soon as she answered his call. "I've learned a lot of the utmost importance."

"No," she said firmly, "it is far wiser for us not to meet yet. We might both be watched. What have you learned?"

He told her of the results of his previous evening's investigation.

"I'm going now," he added, "to scout around the neighborhood to see if I can rent a room in that building."

"Splendid," she cried. "Let me know if you succeed."

"Certainly I will. Do you want to know this evening?"

"Yes, if you'll phone me at six. At seven I'm dining with Mr. Hardy."

"Again?"

She laughed merrily at the manifest discomposure in his exclamation, adding: "And tomorrow afternoon he wants me to go motoring with him."

"Don't do it," he begged.

"I must," she answered. "There's something I wish to learn from him. He hasn't told me everything yet. I'm going to keep seeing him until I ascertain one particular fact."

He tried in vain to get her to confide further in him.

"No," she persisted, "my theory is still too problematical to tell it to any one—even you."

"But perhaps I could help you."

"No, it all depends on one fact, and only Harrison Hardy can tell me that."

As the unsatisfactory conversation ended jealousy of his former employer once more possessed him. He regretted ever having let himself become involved in this mess of crime and intrigue. What had he gotten out of it? Here was he, hiding like a criminal from some mysterious shadower, spending his days in filthy tenements, following servants and work people, while Harrison Hardy, the man whose millions had been stolen, whose messenger had been slain, was placidly enjoying the society of the most wonderful woman on earth.

Faugh! He was sick of the whole thing, yet he could see nothing to do but go on with it. Gloomily he set out for the locality into which his search had led him the night before. He tried to gain entrance to the house that Meyer had visited on the pretext that he wished to rent a room, but the surly housekeeper who answered his ring curtly informed him that all the rooms in the house were taken.

"Are there any other places in the neighborhood?" he asked, trying to prolong the conversation.

"You might try the house on the corner," she said as she slammed the door in his face.

"The house on the corner." It was not a bad suggestion at that. He recalled that Meyer and Dietz apparently had forgathered in one of the rear rooms. Perhaps in the corner building he might be able to find an observation post.

The building next door, he quickly discovered, on the ground floor was occupied by a saloon, but at one side was a passage way leading to the floors above. In the entrance a paper was pasted on which was scrawled "Rooms to Let." He ascended the stairs and soon a maid was showing him the ones unoccupied—dreary, dreadful places, with shabby furniture, unclean linen, and inches of dust everywhere. On the third floor back he found a hall room with one window that overlooked the rear of the house next door. On the pretense of inspecting the view, he approached the window and looked out, but drew quickly back.

"I'll take it," he said, "right away."

In the window of the other house, in the second floor back, was sitting a man he knew. He had seen, as he glanced out, the sodden, unshaven countenance of Caspar Dietz.

"It's six dollars a week, payable in advance," said the housekeeper.

Striving to hide his elation, he paid over the money and she disappeared, asking no further questions. He glanced furtively out at Dietz and debated a course of action. There was little use of watching him now. It was at the hour when Meyer was free to leave the hotel, in the early morning, that he felt his spying was most likely to be rewarded. He discussed with himself the subject of questioning the housekeeper about the neighbors, but decided it would be best not to. He considered the project of entering the saloon below, but was afraid to for fear he might be recognized and his plans of secret espionage thwarted. There was nothing for him to do but be patient and wait—wait to see who met there with Meyer and Dietz.

He returned to his hotel for some baggage and at 6 telephoned Anne about the new lodgings he had engaged. Somewhat to his surprise she exhibited great interest. She wanted to know the number of the house at which he was and the exact location of his room, especially in relation to the meeting place of the men he was watching.

Her sudden interest puzzled him, and now, as here on the fire escape he was pondering over the case, he still was unable to account for it. She had scoffed so at the possibility of Meyer being involved in the murder that her new attitude was an enigma to him. He could only account for it on the theory that his recent discoveries had persuaded her that he was right, and he glowed with the usual masculine self-satisfaction at the thought.

It had been nine o'clock when he had arrived at the Second avenue house to take up his watching and he had had a weary time of it. For the first four hours absolutely nothing at all had happened. The room he was watching was unlighted and apparently unoccupied. He was beginning to wonder if his quarries might not have been keeping tab on him, and discovering that they were under observation, had fled to some new meeting place, when, shortly after 1, Dietz, accompanied by two other men, entered the room.

The blind was up as they lighted the gas and he caught a good look at their faces. One of the men he was sure he never had seen before, but about the appearance of the other, a little old man with a white beard, there was something reminiscently familiar. Surely he knew that man. Where had he seen him before? Who was he?

The blind came down with a jerk, cutting off his view, but he noted with eager satisfaction that it had been carelessly put up. Between the roller and the top of the window there was a space of fully six inches, from which the light still streamed forth. Creeping gingerly out on the rusted fire escape he discovered that by leaning over a little he could still look down into the room, though part of it was hidden from view.

So far there was nothing in the conduct of the men that seemed suspicious. They were seated about a table drinking beer from bottles. Interestedly he studied the face of the old man with the white whiskers. Surely it was some one he knew.

"Great guns!" he exclaimed under his breath. "Of course."

All at once it had come to him. That little old man with the white whiskers there was Lieber, old Lieber, the honored custodian of the trust company's vaults. Ever since Rush had been in Harrison Hardy's employ he had seen him several times a week. What had made it so difficult for him to recognize him now was that Lieber when on duty at the safe deposit vaults always wore a uniform and a cap.

Old Lieber, Meyer, Dietz! The threads of the conspiracy at last began to wind themselves into a guiding rope. He was sure now that he was on the threshold of a vital discovery, that he knew at least three of the conspirators who had killed that poor Russian girl to gain possession of the fortune she was carrying.

Two other men entered the room. He could see their shadows against the blind, but they did not at first come into his range of vision. He was wondering if one of them could be Meyer when they approached the table in the center of the room and he got a good look at both. To his disappointment the faces were those of utter strangers, poorly dressed men, with evil faces, men with white shirts, but with cheap, ready made clothes. They might be, he decided, waiters off duty.

What was going on, he wondered. The men seemed to have their heads together as if they were discussing some project. From time to time they turned impatiently toward the door as if they were expecting another arrival. Could it be Meyer they were waiting for?

Suddenly he gave a start and almost lost his balance. With his nerves tense from his long watch, the hand laid gently on his shoulder with a warning "ssh" had come as such a shock that almost he had shrieked aloud. He turned quickly, his heart in his mouth.

to the mass of papers; a letter pad lay among them. He caught up a chair and sat down and seized the pad. "May I use this? You see——"

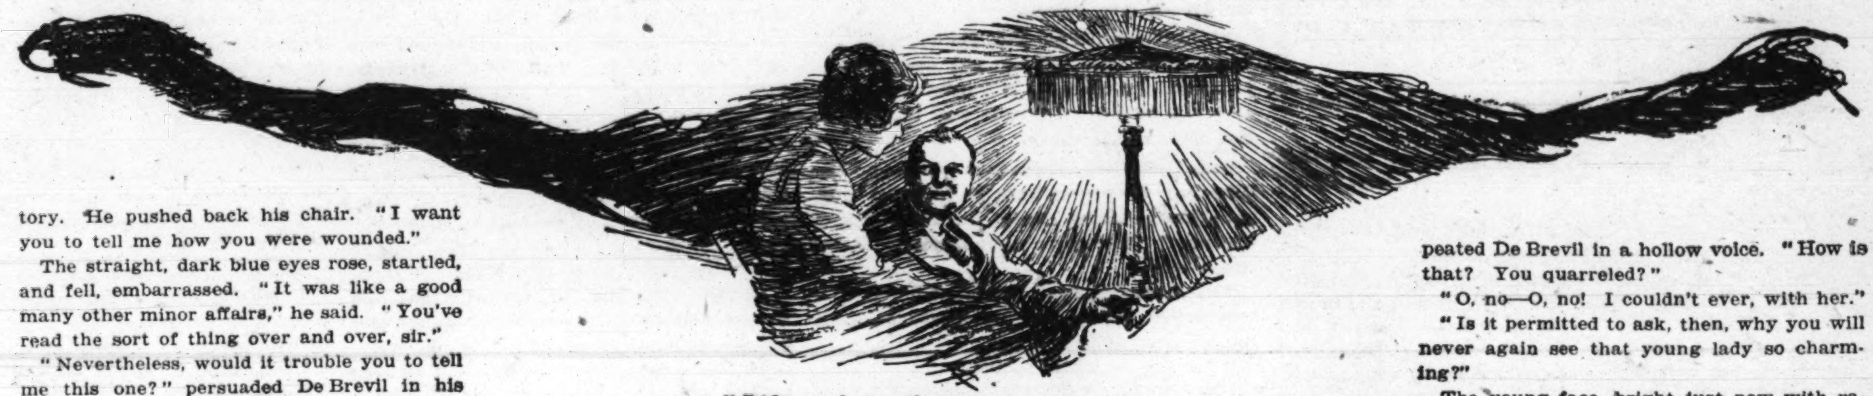
The pencil in the left hand sped in swift lines across the paper. The lad was quite unconscious that he was demonstrating what he had claimed—that his left hand was as adequate as any man's right. Suddenly, as the head bent absorbed over the drawing, De Brevil laid his palm over the flying fingers. "My son," he spoke, "I want to go into that with you, and if it's good I'll know, and I'll help you about it."

"It is good, sir," asserted the boy.

"I'm hoping so," agreed the other. "But I don't want to go into it today."

The ready flush came. "I know," he said. "I've taken an unholy lot of the day—imposed on you. Thank you a thousand times." A smile which lighted the young but worn face as if by a lamp shone clean into the depths of De Brevil's heart and left there an ache.

"But no," he said. "On the contrary, I intend to take yet more of my own time and of yours. These"—and he nodded toward the plans for the development of the upper Rhine, an enterprise rising to a number of millions of dollars—"these can wait." The young man whom the Morgans had sent to him certainly had an appeal unusual for this captain of industry. He was impelled irresistibly to let everything go and find out this boy's history. He pushed back his chair. "I want you to tell me how you were wounded."



"Did you know that a great American said a word like that?"

The straight, dark blue eyes rose, startled, and fell, embarrassed. "It was like a good many other minor affairs," he said. "You've read the sort of thing over and over, sir."

"Nevertheless, would it trouble you to tell me this one?" persuaded De Brevil in his most winning French manner.

"Certainly it wouldn't. I was afraid of boring you. It was simple enough. One morning I got through the enemy's wire near a wood and found I was close to a machine gun, and pretty promptly I got mine in the thigh. It laid me out a minute, but I climbed to my feet and threw a bomb at the boche gun crew and killed four of the beggars. One man beat it into a dugout, so I followed; and the chap whirled at me in the darkness, and I finished that one with my pistol. Then, as I went out into the daylight, another boche met me and wounded me again—but I got him with the pistol, too. And one of his pals came running up, and I shot him, but he got my right hand with a bomb as he fell—the last one of seven that I got that morning—and he spoiled my hand, darn him! That's the way I had to take to this sort of trimming." He contemplated the grimness of the hook with a queer grin.

There was silence in the big, quiet office for a long moment. Then De Brevil's voice came as if with difficulty, repeating words of the soldier. "You 'fought as well as the best'! Indeed, you did. Because of such as you the world knows today there is nothing braver than an American. France will never forget what you did—you boys of this land which is my land also. The French were brave—ah, yes. But they fought on their own soil, with invaders." Suddenly, in his emotion, De Brevil was speaking in his own tongue: "Se battre pour la patrie quand elle est envahie, c'est bon; mais venir cinq milles kilometres se battre pour la liberté. Ah, celà, c'est sublime!" And the boy's blue eyes faced the man now with a glory in them of service and sacrifice. His voice was unsteady answering.

"It's—it's good to have the French think so of us," he brought out very simply. France and America—we're old lovers. There weren't many, even of the rank and file, in our forces, sir, who didn't know and remember that our land owed a debt of gratitude to France, and that we were going over to pay it. The men didn't forget that very much, Mr. De Brevil."

"Also, France—she will not forget how America has paid that debt," spoke the Frenchman with deep emotion. "May God wither my right hand if ever I forget those who, like you, have given hand or foot or strength of life to save France."

The force of his feeling shook him so that for a moment he could not speak again. Then De Brevil went on in a tone of commonplace:

"It has been important to me that I should judge men correctly. I believe that I do so judge them. I believe that perhaps you are that which the heads of large enterprises seek for always, that which at this moment I need especially—a young man of initiative and ability. Therefore it is to my own interest to place you with me. That you have conquered the handicap of your lost hand you proved just now when you did that drawing. But even if it were otherwise, even if I did not see in you qualities of service to me, I should give you a place here. Because you have earned"—he shot out toward the mutilated arm—"you have earned gratitude from all that is American. I, Frenchman born, am proud to be American. I am proud to own my share of that gratitude and its responsibility. The soldiers of the great war—most of all the wounded—are in our land a guard of honor to our glory. As America behaves toward these, who have turned their precious flesh and blood into laurels for her wearing, so will America stand in the respect of the world." The intense words shook him.

"My son," he said, "I cannot believe what you tell me—that the country has grown tired of caring for her sons hurt in her service. Shame to America, shame, if it be so! Among the thousands there must be some, naturally, less good, less able, less industrious and willing to work than others. Yet even these should be—consecrated. The mother America should never lose patience with the children who saved her, no matter if they come to be undesirable children. There should be patience in us all till seventy times seven, yes, and forever, with the men who went to hell to protect us all. And for such of you, of large caliber, of high spirit, the land should overflow with opportunities. I will not believe that the people in general have the feeling you say—tired—ennuyes—of your sacrifice. You have been, perhaps, oversensitive, ill; you have happened on bad Americans, unmindful of the honor of the flag—the Old Glory of which such as you are forever now a part. But America, my country, is not, cannot in any large manner, be ungrateful—disloyal. And it is black disloyalty to forget what that sleeve—empty—means."

De Brevil rose suddenly from his chair and swung to a window looking down across the spires and towers and roofs of the city to a shining, great lake beyond; he stood there a moment, silent. When he turned, face and voice had changed. "Mr. Duke," he said, "the upshot of this lecture is that the works hope to gain a valuable employé. Will you come to me tomorrow at 10? I shall this afternoon consider how you begin."

The boy rose. "I don't at all know how to thank you," he said, and the deep young voice and sincere manner were very appealing. "There's so much to thank you for. Not only giving me the chance—and that's more than you can realize, for I've been—pretty far down, sir. But there's a lot more—all you've said—the things I don't deserve—and the hope you've put into me. I've never met anybody with as wonderful a feeling as yours about the fellows who were hurt," the boy ended.

De Brevil answered, not as if to young Duke, but as if a thought were phrasing itself unconsciously aloud: "It is I, having seen in my own family a lifetime of suffering for la patrie—it is I who should remember more than others."

The boy dropped into a chair again. "Why, I saw that, too, sir, over there—'a lifetime of suffering' for his country. I saw an old soldier of the Franco-Prussian war who was wounded in '70. A boy of 19 then, and today—if he's alive today—he's still a cripple and in hourly pain. Fifty years—Lord!" spoke the lad in awe, and went on: "I was billeted at his place soon after I landed—they couldn't do enough for Americans down there around Bordeaux." He did not notice, in his eagerness to tell his story, that De Brevil started. "I give you my word, Mr. De Brevil, every time I looked at that dragging figure, mostly wrapped in some gorgeous sort of dressing gown, I seemed to see a halo over the querulous, haggard old face. For his patrie! He was bad tempered sometimes, but it never bothered me. Always it came to me that he'd been crucified fifty years for his country. There's no come-back to that."

"Tell me more about him," spoke De Brevil.

"He told me," said Duke, "that he'd been tall and strong as I—I hadn't seen any fighting then—I was pretty husky." The boy smiled wistfully, and a contraction of De Brevil's heart muscles answered that smile. The young voice went on: "I had the most wonderful happy six weeks. I'll never forget as long as I live. At Camp de Souge, before we were billeted, I'd heard how Americans were always welcome at this beautiful old place. So I walked there one day and boldly up to the house. It's a fairly modern manor house," he explained, "only 200 years old, and built from ruins of the castle. Lots of them standing—tenth century keep—and the dining room in the modern château is very old and low and vaulted."

Duke, intent on memories, did not notice that De Brevil stared as if amazed. His voice raced on: "The loveliest place ever, sir. I came into it by the gardens, and it was like a picture, like an enchanted scene. A German prisoner was working in a rose bed down by a true to goodness moat. I asked the boche if I were allowed to walk about, and he went and got the master, the old wounded officer I spoke of. I'll never forget how kind he was. Such a beautiful welcome! I speak French, and I told him how the Americans all appreciated the wonderful way the French were treating them, and what pleasure he was giving me; and he said, with the most lovely, courtly manner: 'Eh bien,' he said, 'me, I have no one to give for France. It is little if I do my possible for those who are come to fight for her.' It's an exquisite essence of patriotism the French have, Mr. De Brevil. Am I talking too much?" he demanded suddenly. "Shall I go now?"

A gesture answered.

"I'd like to tell you what happened that day. It was so pretty and so funny—so unreal. My old wounded officer sent for a little maid to go along and help him show me about. We were prowling among the old walls where the garden ran clean up to the ruins——"

"Yes," spoke De Brevil quickly. The boy halted wondering a second.

"——and suddenly the little maid, who seemed to be almost one of the family, looked down a path and went off into fits of laughter. Then we looked where she did. There was what they call an allée, all arched over with trained trees."

"Yes," De Brevil threw in again sharply.

"And up under it, in the flickering shadow and sunlight, were coming two queer figures, two small old people, apparently—a man and a woman. As they got nearer, the count—my old officer—began laughing consumedly, too. You see, it was the count's niece. She'd got some of his clothes and dressed herself up, to make him laugh—and for the fun of it, too—she was only 16, you see. And she'd gotten up the other child, a neighbor, as her 'wife.' She didn't know I was there, but she didn't let that faze her. She came on with her little old lady on her arm, and they introduced themselves to the count as the marquis and marquise of something. So she went around with us, keeping up the game, never speaking to me, but referring sometimes to 'ce jeune homme,' and helping the count show the castle."

"The young lady had—esprit?" inquired De Brevil.

"Esprit? By the jugful!" crowed the boy. "The count told me the date of an antique carving; and a second later she was heard exhibiting something in a corner to her giggling little 'wife.' 'My dear,' explained she, 'you must look at this—this is a genuine tenth century garbage pail.' Then, as we stood by the door of the old keep, the count pointed to a glade in the park and explained that just there was the fountain of the White Lady, and that whoever drank of it on the night of a new moon would get his wish."

"'It is without question a fact, M. le Comte,' mademoiselle the 'marquis' put in earnestly. 'That is how I come to have such a pretty wife.' O, she was a wonder!" The boy laughed happily and then sighed.

"Without doubt you came to know this mademoiselle better, being billeted afterward with her uncle?" De Brevil suggested.

Duke's face lighted. "Yes; we got to be great friends, we three," he said. "They were as good to me as if I had been their own. I think—I think the count liked me for being a soldier and young. It recalled his own days. He used to tell me stories of fighting, of his own war, down in the rose garden by the moat—blamed interesting they were, too," the lad asserted. "And she—was an angel." His voice fell as if in awe. "Only a child, and yet a mother to that ill, cross old man—never anything but loving, thoughtful, bright-hearted. There can never be any one like her again—never."

"Did she die?" inquired De Brevil solemnly.

"O, Lord, no—at least—O, no." The boy was startled. "Only—I shall never see her again."

"Ah, you will never see her again," repeated De Brevil in a hollow voice. "How is that? You quarreled?"

"O, no—O, no! I couldn't ever, with her."

"Is it permitted to ask, then, why you will never again see that young lady so charming?"

The young face, bright just now with radiant memories, was suddenly hopeless and wretched. He raised the right arm, with its heart stabbing shining hook. "This," he said. "You see, sir"—he struggled a moment against the lure of a sympathy in the man's dark eyes, then the desire to talk about this buried secret of his broke through—"you see, I cared for her. After I found I was maimed I couldn't risk—I couldn't let her—I think maybe she cared a little for me." His words trailed off. "You see, sir?"

"I see," answered De Brevil. "But you are mistaken."

"Mistaken?"

"The women of Jacqueline's stock are not in the custom of failing the men they love because of being heroes," stated De Brevil with set mouth.

The boy looked at him, astonished. Then: "Jacqueline? Did I say her name, Mr. De Brevil?" De Brevil was suddenly confused.

"By the way," he spoke hastily, "am I permitted to ask the family name of M. le Comte, the old officer, and his young niece, your friends?"

Again the boy laughed. "Why, didn't I tell you that? Why," and he suddenly shouted big, young laughter, "that was the whole point. That was the reason I moved heaven and earth till I got a letter to you from Mr. Morgan. The name—I couldn't get away from the feeling that it was lucky for me. They were so wonderful to me—and it's their name—yours—De Brevil—the Comte de Brevil—the château—Mlle. Jacqueline de Brevil. But how the dickens did you know her name was Jacqueline, Mr. de Brevil? I'm certain I didn't say that. It's not possible—by some miracle—you're connected?"

De Brevil smiled. "Mr. Duke," he said, "first I wish to call attention to the fact that your future with the De Brevil Turbine Engine works was arranged before I had heard this most interesting tale of adventures with some manner of De Brevils in France. Then, my son," he flung at the boy in a gay French burst of enthusiasm, "I have the idea that this is one of my lucky days. I wish to make a fête in its honor. Tonight, if you are not engaged, I will drive you out to dine with—my family, at my home, The Silences. There you will meet a person who will be charmed to give you late news of Mlle. Jacqueline de Brevil, whose name I have the happiness to know well. And tomorrow, please God, I shall get a few moments free from this rising generation and arrange my plans for the development of the water power of the upper Rhine."

"It's me—Anne," whispered a voice which he recognized at once.

"You!" he breathed excitedly, amazed beyond belief to find her at his side. "How on earth did you come here?"

"The Le Barons brought me," she answered. "They're waiting around the corner in a taxi."

"How did you get into the house, into this room?"

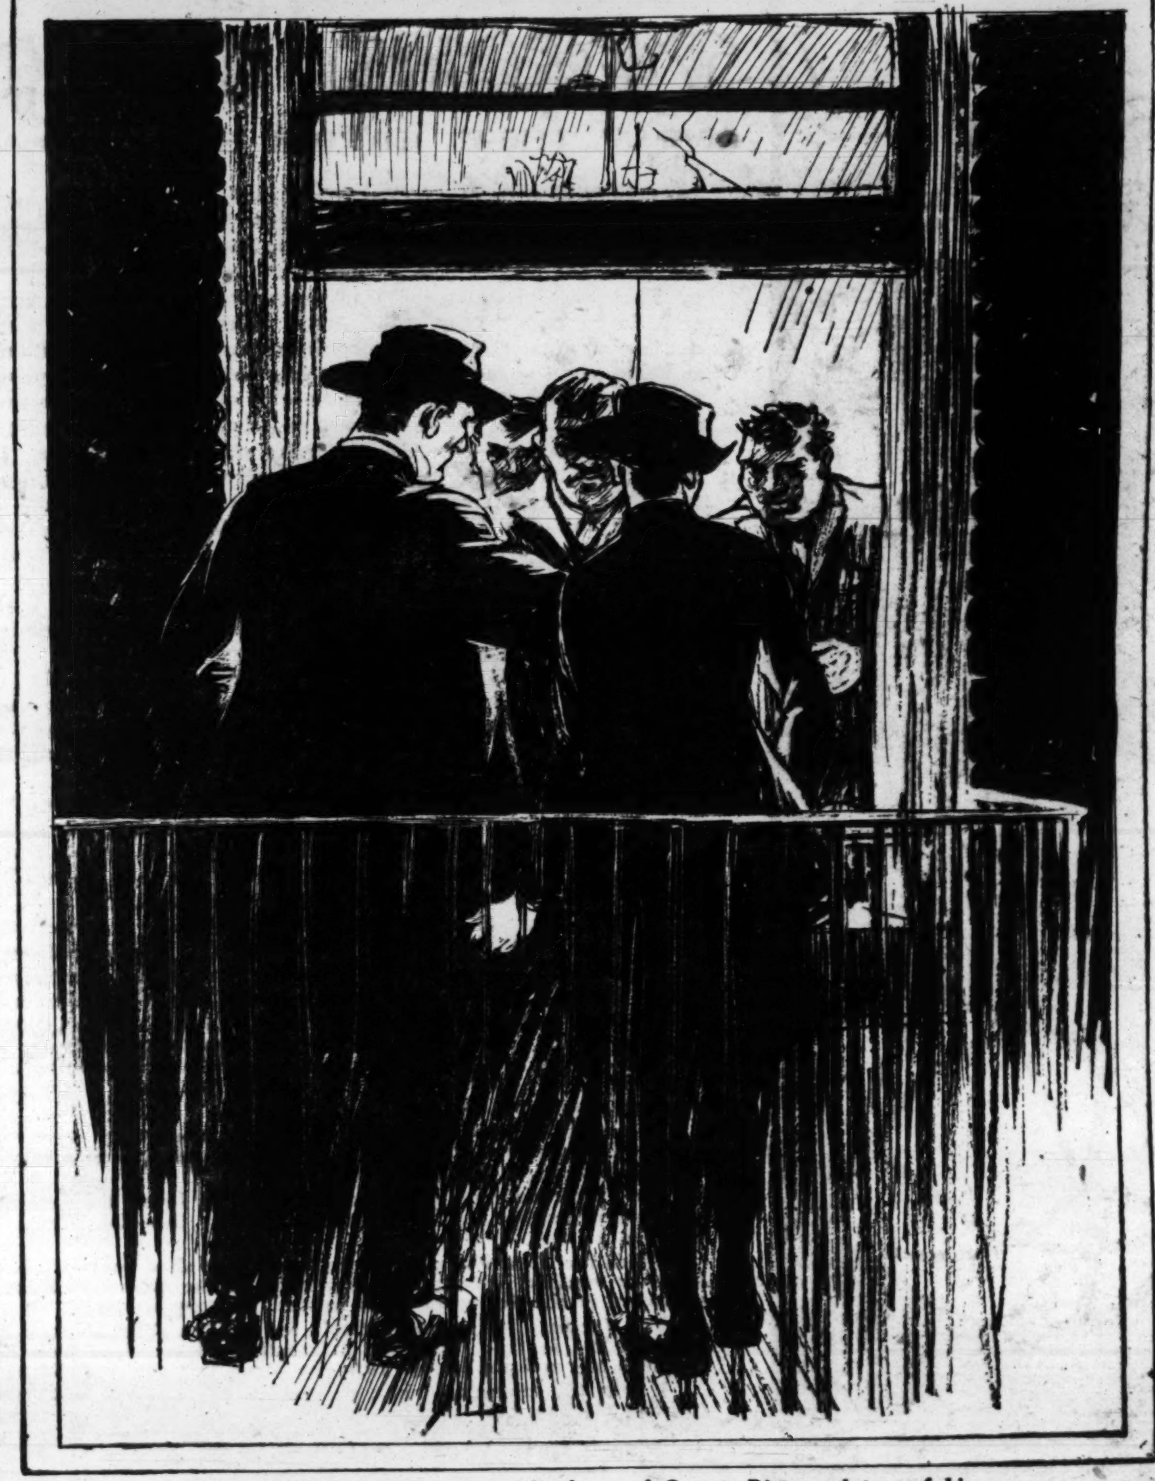
"The front door was open. You had told me where the room was. I just walked in and came up."

"But why did you come?" he protested. "You shouldn't have——"

A suppressed cry from his companion and a warning clutch on his arm cut him short. He turned to find her pointing at the crack of light below them. Into the room into which they were peering Meyer, the head waiter, had entered. The others had arisen to greet him. There appeared to be at least seven or eight of them assembled there now, perhaps more. As Anne and Rush watched spellbound the men lined themselves up, with Meyer facing them.

One of the group, a man neither of them ever had seen before, stepped forward a pace or two. To the observers it looked as if he might be interrogating the head waiter on some matter. Each time he spoke Meyer nodded, and his replies seemed to meet with the approval of the others.

From a nearby church tower the strokes of three pealed forth. With clockwork precision the men wheeled about facing the window, and stood like soldiers at attention. Meyer stepped forward and took his place in line with them. In unison they raised their left arms aloft and held them there with the fists clenched. ed. With a sharp, quick jerk they brought their right arms up to horizontal, the fists also clenched, and for just a second held them there, forming thus with their arms a sort of cross.



Fear stricken and desperate, the faces of Caspar Dietz and two of his comrades glared at them hardly three feet away.

"That's funny," said Rush with a puzzled air. "It looks like some sort of a secret society ritual they are going through."

"I know what it is," cried Anne with a shudder; "it's the oath of death, the terrible, terrible oath of death. Come on, I'm going to jump down on that balcony just outside their window. We must hear what they are planning."

As she spoke she vaulted over the rail of the fire escape and, letting herself down to the lowest rung, swung boldly out and let go, landing lightly on the balcony right outside the window. Rush put out his arm to detain her, but he was too late. Before he had realized her intention she was safely landed. As she had climbed down she had flung off a coat she was wearing and he saw in the dim light that she was clad in a riding costume, her trousers enabling her to move much more freely than skirts would have done. Apparently she had come prepared for adventure.

Hesitating not a second, he followed her over the fire escape and essayed her feat in landing on the balcony below. Less agile than she, he tripped and would have fallen had she not caught him as he landed. As it was he came down on the wooden flooring with a sharp thud.

With suspended breath they waited, wondering if they had been discovered. From the room within not a sound could be heard. They were just beginning to breathe more freely, thinking they were still undetected, when suddenly the window before them was jerked up and the blind thrust roughly aside.

Fear stricken and desperate, the faces of Caspar Dietz and two of his comrades glared at them hardly three feet away.

"The lights!" cried a harsh voice from the room within. "Out with the lights!"

With a quick thrust Rush shoved his companion into the furthest corner of the balcony and took his stand courageously in front of her. In the faces of the men they had trapped he had read fear, desperation, panic, and he realized they would stop at nothing to prevent the escape of the two who had been secretly spying on them.

"Quick; they're coming!" he whispered. "Can you make it back into the room by the fire escape? It's our only chance."

"No; I'm going to stay," she answered stubbornly.

"One of us must go; please, please, go," he pleaded, though even in the midst of his fears for her safety he thrilled at the thought that she was there behind him, that she had chosen to cast her lot with his in the common peril they faced.

"You must go," he commanded. "Can't you drop to the ground? If you get away you can summon help."

"I am going to stay," she answered calmly.

As the lights had gone out, leaving the room in total darkness, the conspirators for a moment had seemed to hesitate, but now out they came with a rush, swarming onto the narrow balcony like angry, buzzing hornets. First through the window came Caspar Dietz, recognizable in the half light of the rear yard by his stocky build and by the guttural whispers in which he counseled the movements of his mates.

Poising for just a second on the sill of the window through which he had emerged, looking for all the world like a great awkward duck, he launched himself at the two in the corner of the balcony, calling to his comrades:

"Come on; there are only two of them!"

Rush met his spring with a well delivered blow on the chin that sent Dietz dazed and reeling to the floor. But already there were two more of the men through the window. Right valiantly the young man, spurred on by the thought of the girl behind them, met their combined onslaught. As one of his assailants aimed a blow at his face the other sought to grab him around the waist. He struck out with right and left, the vicious smack of his blows resounding loud through the night stillness. With grunts of pain the men fell back, but it was only for a moment.

On they came again, and by this time their mates had come to their assistance. Dietz, too, was on his feet again, cursing under his breath as he tried to reach Rush's face with his huge fists. Back and forth on the narrow balcony they battled until the place became a wild scramble of maddened, scuffling men; but through it all there were no shouts nor cries, only the dull thud of blows, the scraping of feet, and the sounds of heavy breathing, with now and then a muttered curse as some blow struck home.

Rush was all but winded. A blow over the eye had cut his forehead and the blood was streaming down over his eyes. His thumb pained him so much that he was sure it was dislocated, but still he fought on. Fear of discovery still actuated the conspirators. It seemed to be their plan of action to try to drag Rush and his companion into the room before the noise of the scuffle attracted the attention of the neighbors and, possibly, of the police.

And Anne—what of her?

Writhing, twisting, turning, striking this way and that, striving desperately to keep outside the window, hoping against hope that help might come from some unexpected quarter, Rush, as he contended against such unequal odds, had neither time nor opportunity to look behind him to see how the girl was faring. Once as a blow of his had laid a man prostrate he had heard her voice egging him on, but since she had been silent. He was hoping she had realized the hopelessness of his battle against so many and had fled.

He knew he could not keep up his struggle much longer. One of his assailants was trying again to grab him by the knees. He kicked out viciously and lost his balance. As he fell heavily to the floor of the balcony strong arms seized him from behind, pinning his hands behind his back. Fighting, struggling, he was dragged through the window into the darkened room. A leather belt from some one's waist was strapped about his feet, and then his hands were tied. Bound and helpless, he lay on the floor, badly bruised and beaten, his heart pumping furiously from his violent exertion, his head paining frightfully where the blow had cut him, but all the while thinking not of himself but of Anne. What had happened to her? Had she succeeded in making her escape?

"We've got them both," he heard some one cry exultantly, and his heart sank within him.

"Down with the blind," some one ordered. "Light the lights again."

As the lights went on he twisted and turned, trying to see how the girl had fared. She, too, evidently had been more than a spectator in the fight. Her cap had been lost in the scrimmage and her long black hair had come tumbling loose. In spite of her disordered appearance and her flushed face she looked like a beautiful boy, standing there in her riding breeches. Though her arms, too, were bound behind her, she seemed to have come off better than Rush, for she bore no marks of battle. Defiantly she stood there, facing her captors, studying the countenance of each as if she wished to be sure of recognizing them again.

"God, it's a girl!" one of the men cried out in amazement.

Caspar Dietz stepped forward and took a long look at Anne. An evil grin of delight spread over his ugly face.

"It is the girl," he said, "the photograph woman who stole my letters from me."

He would have struck her in the face, but one of the others caught him by the arm.

"Not yet," the man warned Dietz. "They can't escape us. There's plenty of time for that. Who's the man?"

Dietz, contenting himself with hurling insulting epithets at the girl who had thwarted his blackmailing scheme, turned with the others to look at the captive on the floor.

"I think," he said slowly, "but I am not sure, that it is the man who came with her."

"Why, it is Mr. Rush!"

It was the voice of Meyer that made this announcement. In it was a note of genuine surprise, with just a suggestion of pity. Rush looked up, puzzled, and caught Anne's eye, and saw that she, too, was perplexed at Meyer's seeming astonishment.

And where was Lieber—the traitorous old rascal? Rush turned and twisted, trying to catch a glimpse of the unfaithful employé of the trust company, but evidently the man was afraid to meet his eye and was either keeping well in the background or had left the room altogether.

"You know the girl, too? Yas?" growled old Caspar.

"Of course," Meyer's voice answered. "It is Miss Blair. They both live in our hotel. They are friends of Mr. Hardy."

"So that's it," growled Dietz again. "That explains it."

Their captors drew off a little to one side, and Rush, watching them with sinking heart, realized the desperateness of their plight. If these were the men who had plotted the murder of Olga Ordinoff—and undoubtedly they were—there was small hope of mercy from them. With blood guilt upon them, for their own safety they would not dare let either himself or Anne go from this room alive. The death of both of them—some hideous, violent death—might not be more than a few hours, perhaps not more than a few minutes, distant. He was framing his lips to utter shrieks for help when in Anne's eyes he read a glance of warning to be silent.

"The big closet in the hall," he heard one of the men suggest.

"The very place! They'll be safe there until we have decided how to dispose of them."

LEST WE FORGET

I loved them—I had to work for them—but I have not had a home there are three years, and now—this—my home! You!" The starry eyes wandered off to the sparkling table and the trees and sunset beyond it, and then laughed up through wet lashes to De Brevil's face.

He bent his head and kissed the eyes. "My child, you are overwrought. I should not have allowed you to work so. You were too young—you have done harm to yourself. But now, it is understood, you are my property—hereafter you are to be taken care of—it is I who say it! Come, then, my most dear—voila Jacques who says that dinner is served. Afterward we will have a little talk, you and I, in the twilight, here among the roses and honeysuckles, and we will tell each other all our secrets, is it not? But—dinner."

It was nearly an hour later and the light through the trees was the flat gold of the afterglow and the branches were dark and clean cut against it.

"Exactly like a window most beautiful in a cathedral transept," Jacqueline said, gazing entranced into the shadows and the clear radiance.

"It is, my most dear." De Brevil held her hand. "But at the moment that is, it is not a question of cathedral windows, but of conversation, with you and me. There is much I want to hear," he urged in a boyish and eager way which sat winningly on the man of 60. "One recollects that I have not been in France since the war ended." He made a gesture of disgust, all French. "But no—she has kept me at the grindstone, la belle France, grinding out engines for her. France was most behindhand, you know it, petite?—in development of water power. So that when peace came and our works were no longer needed for munitions it was the Uncle Gaspard who was instantly useful for sending the best turbine engines in the world to help his mother country back to prosperity. I have been 'on the job,' as we Americans say, almost every minute these five years. Hardly have I had time to take a week off for a bit of fishing in Canada in September or a run to Florida in February—one has been occupied—but yes. I have made it clear enough in my letters, little one, that it was so that I could not come to France to see to my child. But I should—I should," he reproached himself.

The child pushed him into a deep chair and alighted on the side of it with her arm around his neck. "We both had work to do for France," she spoke, and her young face wore a look which was not rare, after 1914, in the faces of French women—the look of a devotion transcending self. "Also you, my uncle, had two countries to look after—France and this enchanting America."

De Brevil took his cigar from his lips and glanced up at the girl. "Did you know that a great American said a word like that? It was Benjamin Franklin. He said——"

The girl's hand was across his mouth. "Don't spoil a story, my uncle," she said. "Wait till I tell you what happened to Hope Stuart, my best friend, my little half French-woman—all American. It was she who sat in her Red Cross uniform in a café of Paris, crowded with French officers, the night of the armistice. One knows all France was but six years old that night and quite mad with joy. And to Hope Stuart came a grizzled French colonel, an entire stranger, most distingué, who made her a deep bow for love of that American uniform and of her sweet face likely, also, my uncle. And he offered her, that colonel, his felicitations to be of her country, and he said how her land had come in just in time to save France. And Hope Stuart, my friend, was suddenly inspired, for she looked up at her colonel and said to him that speech of the great Franklin—how every American has two countries, his own and France. And with that—for every one had listened all about—every officer in that café came up and kissed my little American on both her cheeks. Was it not pretty, my uncle?"

De Brevil, fired with the little tale, clapped his hands and cried, "Bravo! Bravo!" Then, "One loved the Americans, there in France, my petite?" he asked.

"One adored them, my uncle. There were after a while roughnesses, bits of clashing, as must be when two million strangers are suddenly transplanted into a nation. But those bad things are quite forgotten today, three years later, and all France remembers with love the big, young, tireless boys, so gentle, so ready to help every one in every way, who flooded over us like a sea of brown, and—saved France." Jacqueline had drifted into a chair facing De Brevil; he watched the lights and shadows of her face as she talked.

"And you, my cherie—there were American officers billeted at the chateau. You found them——"

In the girl's face, in her voice when she answered was a new quality held in restraint, of which the Frenchman was instantly conscious. "We found them, Uncle Jules and I, all that there is of considerate and charming," she answered warmly. But the flow of words had stopped.

De Brevil's eyes were on her changing face. "There were a number of these officers?"

"Three, just. M. le General, M. l'Adjutant, and a younger person, a captain, aid to M. le General."

De Brevil's mind, not of a slow going type, pounced on the case of the younger person, a captain. "Ah, most agreeable! Yet they were very occupied, doubtless, so that Uncle Jules and the little cabbage did not see them often?"

The little cabbage acquired a thoughtful air. "Perhaps as to M. le General and M. l'Adjutant," she agreed. "But as to the captain"—she hesitated and exploded: "O, my uncle—there was never anybody in the world so good and so angelic to poor Uncle Jules."

De Brevil did not smile. He answered with all sympathy. "He was good to our Uncle Jules, the captain? Dear lad! And Uncle Jules liked him?"

"But yes—certainly. To folly. At the end he was not contented—no, never—without M. le Capitaine. It was for that goodness one loved M. le Capitaine, my uncle." The brown eyes lifted, as innocent as a child's eyes, and De Brevil had difficulty in not kissing them again.

"I see. One loved the captain for his goodness. He was, then, unattractive personally."

"But no, no. How could you have such a thought?" The indignant denial came so tempestuously that De Brevil in the half light turned aside to knock ashes from his cigar, smiling.

"He was delightful. With a charm—ah! He went about the chateau gardens, down by the old moat, with poor Uncle Jules clinging to him, and it were as if he were a young god, so beautiful he was in his brown uniform and his high, shining brown boots. Very big and strong he was, gay always, and full of laughter. Since maman died and my father it had been hard for me to keep Uncle Jules very happy. But now he was happy. But how he was happy with his friend the captain! When orders came and they all followed the general to the front it was very sad for—for Uncle Jules."

"One sees. Uncle Jules felt it."

"But yes. For the captain would listen a long time to Uncle Jules' stories of his war days. And one knows, my uncle, that, adorable as was Uncle Jules, it was not every one who listened to him patiently. Me, I sat by always and wondered at the captain."

"O, you sat by always, did you, my cherie?"

"Always. And the captain was never impatient, not even when Uncle Jules repeated many times. Not even when Uncle Jules grew irritated and beat with his crutch and was angry that we could not remember for him some name of those old battles."

De Brevil, staring at the white, slight figure in the dimness, seemed to see a picture. He saw the old world garden where he had played as a boy, sleeping in aromatic sunshine at the edge of glittering water of the moat. Back of it the ruins of a tenth century castle rose gray and vine covered. The "new" chauteau, built only two hundred years back, overlapped the ruins and held part of the ancient building, the vaulted dining hall, for instance, in its compass, as a lovely young woman might hold by the arm her old grandmother.

These unforgotten things De Brevil saw, almost as plainly as with material eyes, and through the vision and the sunshine and roses moved three figures, set there by the magic of the girl's words—the girl herself a wild, gentle, fascinating slip of womanhood, not yet more than a child; the tall young soldier in the glory of his strength, and, clinging eagerly to him, the old, broken brother with whom one must be patient, who had gone out—De Brevil remembered the day—as splendid as this young captain and had been carried back—like that. To be fifty years a cripple, to depend forever on the patience of his people, to drag out his days half a man, shut from the joys and the responsibilities of normal manhood. He had done this for France.

De Brevil's heart felt a bound of hot gratitude toward the American boy who had seen the old man not as a tiresome invalid to be endured but a hero of France forever deified by sacrifice. Of course—the Frenchman smiled, amused in the dark—of course it was easier to be gentle with the last leaf upon the tree when a rose of summer, a piquant rosebud of a Jacqueline "sat by always." Yet most youngsters would have managed to see the girl and to avoid the old man. But the captain—"If ever one has a chance to repay," De Brevil thought, with a throb.

"And the captain wrote Uncle Jules—and the little cabbage had messages just possibly," the deep voice suggested out of velvet darkness on the terrace. "And one knows his news, certainly today."

"But yes—but no." The words had a sound of distress. "He wrote indeed for several months, many letters, and then—then no word came any more."

"No word? He was not killed, that dear captain?"

"One knows nothing, Uncle Gaspard. I tried to find out from other Americans—but I left the chateau and went first to godmamma in Paris and then about that time Uncle Jules died. And all the world changed. I went to my work in the hospital. Then the war ended, grace à Dieu, and with that the Americans were rushing home, and I gave up hope of knowing. And—I did not like to—search too obstinately, my uncle; he was attractive to all the world. Others would make much of him. He may have forgotten us, quite simply."

"You have too little faith in your friends, child," De Brevil answered gravely. "Certainly he has not forgotten. Tomorrow," the man considered, "if you will give me his name and unit of the service I will have him looked up. I wish to see myself the lad who gave pleasure to my brother Jules."

But tomorrow, in the adjustments of a cheerful new life and in the difficulty of getting to the office from Jacqueline's tenacious presence at The Silences, De Brevil forgot to ask the name of that "younger person, a captain." Yet through the morning, as he dictated letters and interviewed men and made momentous decisions, somewhere in the back of his consciousness the financier, head of a mighty business, was aware of a persistent atmosphere of sunshine and peace of an old world garden, of little Jacqueline, a slim child of three years back, of the pathetic old brother who had always twisted his heartstrings, of a gay and soldierly young presence radiating happiness about these two.

At 3 o'clock his secretary came into his inner office. "There's a young man outside, Mr. de Brevil," said the secretary, "with a letter from the Augustus Morgan people—Mr. Morgan himself, I believe."

De Brevil looked up from a heap of plans for a great development of the water power of the upper Rhine. Mr. Spencer, the secretary, had known with what he was busy; he was surprised to be interrupted. Yet Mr. Spencer was a wise person—and a letter from the Morgans—he had better, possibly, see the young man.

The young man was shown in, a tall lad in shabby clothes, who looked ill. At the first glance De Brevil quite understood Mr. Spencer; the lower part of the right sleeve hung empty and a large nickel hook was where the hand should be. Mr. Spencer had reason to know that wounded soldiers were always received at the De Brevil works. De Brevil, the magnate, rose to his feet before the pale lad in his worn clothes.

"I'm sorry to disturb you, sir," the boy said, and he glanced at the piles of drawings with, it seemed to the older man, the look of a person who knew what drawings meant. "You were busy. I'll try not to keep you long." He drew out swiftly the letter from Augustus Morgan.

De Brevil read it and looked up. "You want work with us, Mr. Duke? What can you do?"

"I'm a mechanical engineer. I'm used to drawing plans." A second look of interest shot at the papers scattered over the big desk.

"Where have you been employed?"

The boy flushed and turned a look of tragic appeal which went under the guard of the man of business. "I—I haven't been able to get a job yet," he brought out painfully.

"How is that?"

"I—you see." He lifted the big glittering hook and dropped it again. "I was in the service. I lost my hand in the Argonne."

The muscles of De Brevil's face worked a bit, but he regarded the lad squarely and waited. "Of course that was awkward for my sort of work, being the right hand—for my drafting," Duke explained. "But I'd been trained as a child to use both hands almost equally—ambidextrous, or nearly. So I hoped to carry on with my left." He stopped and considered the older man anxiously. "I'm taking too much of your time, sir?"

De Brevil made a quick gesture. "But no. Go on, my son."

The boy flashed a surprised smile. It was easy to see that hope had in some way gotten out of call of this lad. Then: "I was gassed once or twice," he went on. "It turned out rather bad. Lungs. I had to put in two years at Saranac. My people—died. The money—there wasn't much—got used up at the sanitarium. And in getting training for my future. I did get that. I can draw as well with this hand"—he lifted strong fingers—"as ever I did with the one the boche spoiled. But people won't believe it." He spoke sadly but not resentfully. "They don't like mutilated workmen. They like whole men. It's uncomfortable to see me about—and in business no one wants to make allowances. They're afraid of that. But they needn't be," he threw at the man who sat watching him, and his tone had a sharp energy. The boy's spirit was bruised, perhaps, but not broken. "No one need make allowances for me, Mr. De Brevil," he said, and his mouth was grim. "I can do a full man's work—all I want is a chance to prove it."

"Do you mean to say," asked De Brevil slowly, "that an American who lost his right hand fighting for America is unable to find work to support himself in America?"

The boy laughed a little; and there was little mirth, but a touch of bitterness, in the laugh. "That's it, sir," he said. "We're an old story now, we wounded men. At first things were great. They met us at the ships with flowers and bands, and everything was done for us. Then the day of the parade, when they sent us up the 'Avenue of the Allies' in the sunshine, between all those thousands of people—it was wonderful. There were hundreds of us, with our crutches and bandaged heads and such—car after car, driven by pretty women who seemed glad to drive us. And the men cheered and the women threw kisses and flowers—it was incredible. Why, you know, sir, it seemed as if it were worth losing a hand to look into that unending river of faces, miles of them, and feel they were all loving you—that your country honored you—that somehow you'd really done something for your own. We didn't expect all that, sir; we just did our duty, and were glad to show up well for America—the flag.

"We wanted the chaps across there to respect Americans, and to know we were men. And they did, Mr. De Brevil; they said we fought as well as the best. And then, when we came home, at first America wasn't big enough to give us, it seemed. But after a while—there were a good many thousands of the wounded, and we shed our uniforms, and then nobody noticed—we were just crippled chaps here and there through the country, not as easy to employ sometimes as whole men. And a new lot of husky kids are growing up already, and I guess we're rather in the way. I suppose it's only nautral," the lad ended calmly, and lifted his pale face, with a bar of deep red, and gazed, with a steady fire in his tired eyes, at De Brevil.

There were uncommon qualities in this lad's simplicity; there was the poise of a man who, even in bad fortune, is confident of ability; there was lack of self-consciousness; there was, fusing all other characteristics, the intangible gift not to be acquired and known as charm. De Brevil, with French sensitiveness, was quick to analyze, to feel such things.

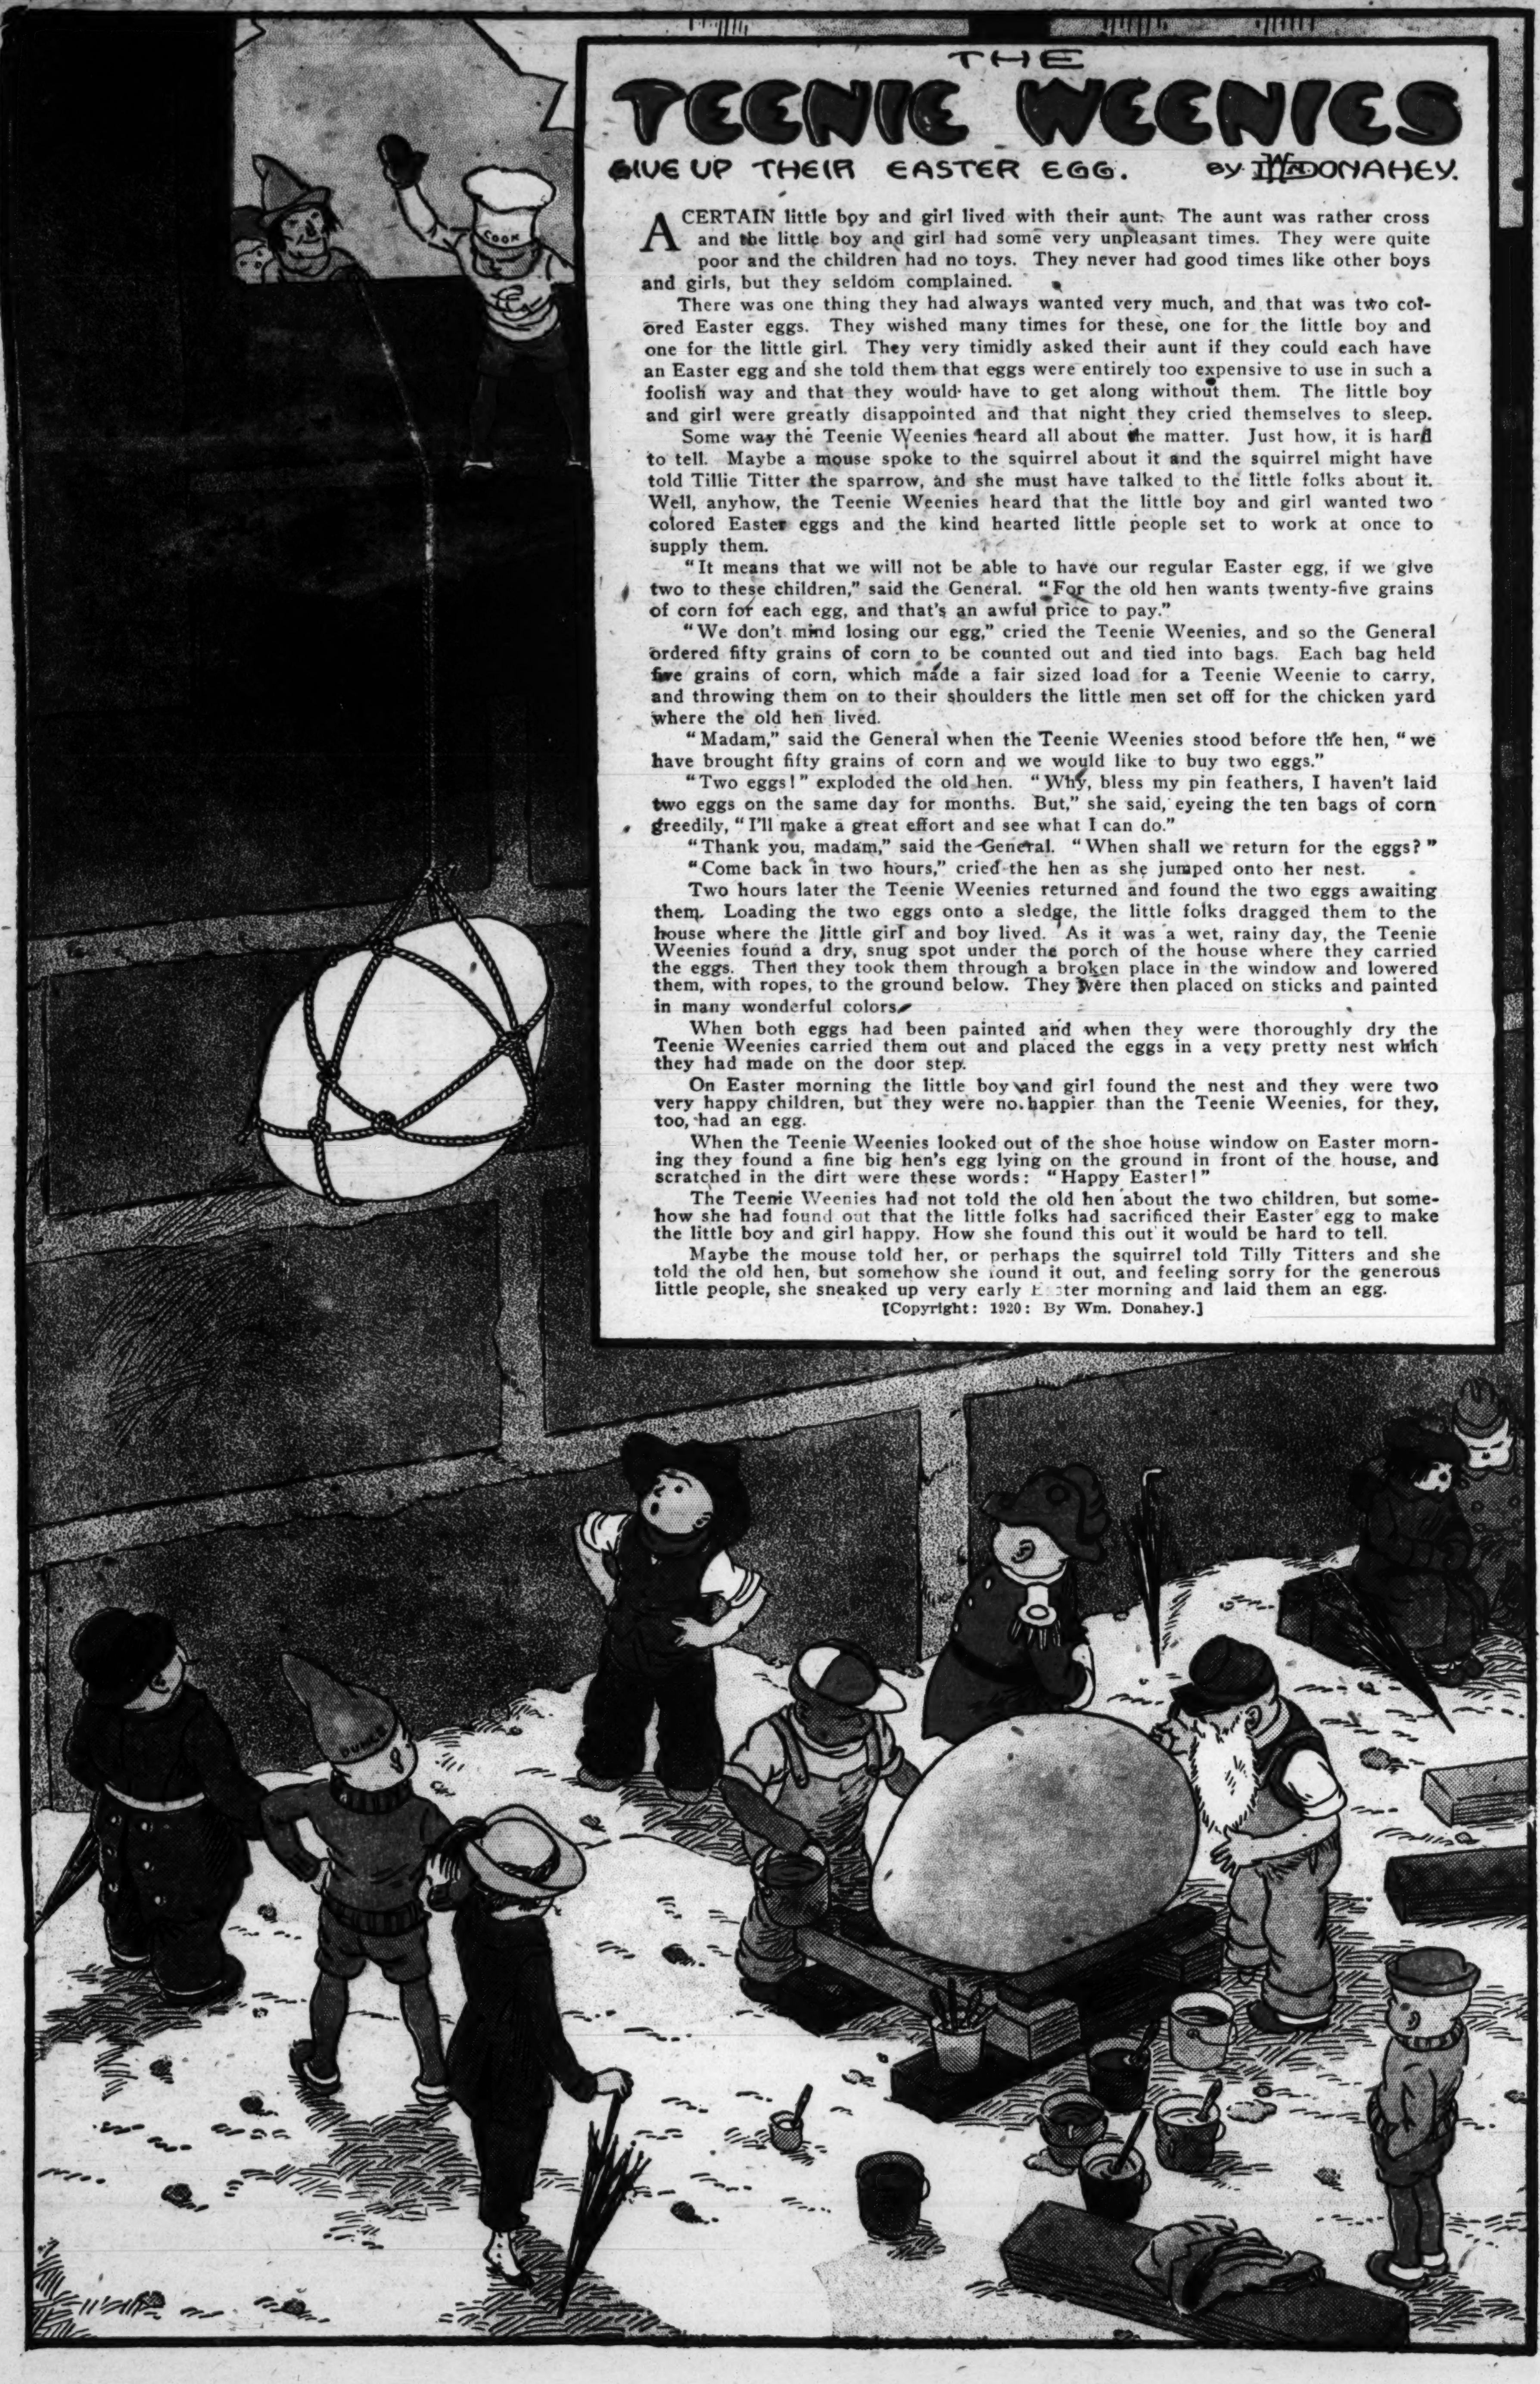
"I beg your pardon for getting started like that," Duke said. "It's blamed careless of me. I brood over it, not being able to get a job and having nothing much to do. And you were so kind, it loosened my tongue unduly." He rose. "If there is a vacancy—if I might have a chance to show you that I'm capable and eager to work—I'll leave my address," he said. He added an afterthought: "I don't look overhealthy, perhaps, and, of course, I have been ill. But I'm all right now, and if I can once afford eggs and beefsteak, I'll be a giant in no time. I'm naturally very strong, you know, sir. You needn't fear but that I'm good and fit for work. I'll leave my address," he said again.

De Brevil watched, his expression thoughtful. Duke bent over his desk, writing on a card. Suddenly, impulsively, the lad looked up, and his face was bright.

"There's one other thing," he said. "You may laugh at me, but I've invented a trick that's good. I know it's good. For water power. And I'd give my other hand—almost—to see it have a show."

"What is it?" asked De Brevil.

Duke had a pencil out; his eyes wandered



THE TEENIE WEENIES

GIVE UP THEIR EASTER EGG.

BY WM DONAHEY.

A CERTAIN little boy and girl lived with their aunt. The aunt was rather cross and the little boy and girl had some very unpleasant times. They were quite poor and the children had no toys. They never had good times like other boys and girls, but they seldom complained.

There was one thing they had always wanted very much, and that was two colored Easter eggs. They wished many times for these, one for the little boy and one for the little girl. They very timidly asked their aunt if they could each have an Easter egg and she told them that eggs were entirely too expensive to use in such a foolish way and that they would have to get along without them. The little boy and girl were greatly disappointed and that night they cried themselves to sleep.

Some way the Teenie Weenies heard all about the matter. Just how, it is hard to tell. Maybe a mouse spoke to the squirrel about it and the squirrel might have told Tillie Titter the sparrow, and she must have talked to the little folks about it. Well, anyhow, the Teenie Weenies heard that the little boy and girl wanted two colored Easter eggs and the kind hearted little people set to work at once to supply them.

"It means that we will not be able to have our regular Easter egg, if we give two to these children," said the General. "For the old hen wants twenty-five grains of corn for each egg, and that's an awful price to pay."

"We don't mind losing our egg," cried the Teenie Weenies, and so the General ordered fifty grains of corn to be counted out and tied into bags. Each bag held five grains of corn, which made a fair sized load for a Teenie Weenie to carry, and throwing them on to their shoulders the little men set off for the chicken yard where the old hen lived.

"Madam," said the General when the Teenie Weenies stood before the hen, "we have brought fifty grains of corn and we would like to buy two eggs."

"Two eggs!" exploded the old hen. "Why, bless my pin feathers, I haven't laid two eggs on the same day for months. But," she said, eyeing the ten bags of corn greedily, "I'll make a great effort and see what I can do."

"Thank you, madam," said the General. "When shall we return for the eggs?"

"Come back in two hours," cried the hen as she jumped onto her nest.

Two hours later the Teenie Weenies returned and found the two eggs awaiting them. Loading the two eggs onto a sledge, the little folks dragged them to the house where the little girl and boy lived. As it was a wet, rainy day, the Teenie Weenies found a dry, snug spot under the porch of the house where they carried the eggs. Then they took them through a broken place in the window and lowered them, with ropes, to the ground below. They were then placed on sticks and painted in many wonderful colors.

When both eggs had been painted and when they were thoroughly dry the Teenie Weenies carried them out and placed the eggs in a very pretty nest which they had made on the door step.

On Easter morning the little boy and girl found the nest and they were two very happy children, but they were no happier than the Teenie Weenies, for they, too, had an egg.

When the Teenie Weenies looked out of the shoe house window on Easter morning they found a fine big hen's egg lying on the ground in front of the house, and scratched in the dirt were these words: "Happy Easter!"

The Teenie Weenies had not told the old hen about the two children, but somehow she had found out that the little folks had sacrificed their Easter egg to make the little boy and girl happy. How she found this out it would be hard to tell.

Maybe the mouse told her, or perhaps the squirrel told Tilly Titters and she told the old hen, but somehow she found it out, and feeling sorry for the generous little people, she sneaked up very early Easter morning and laid them an egg.

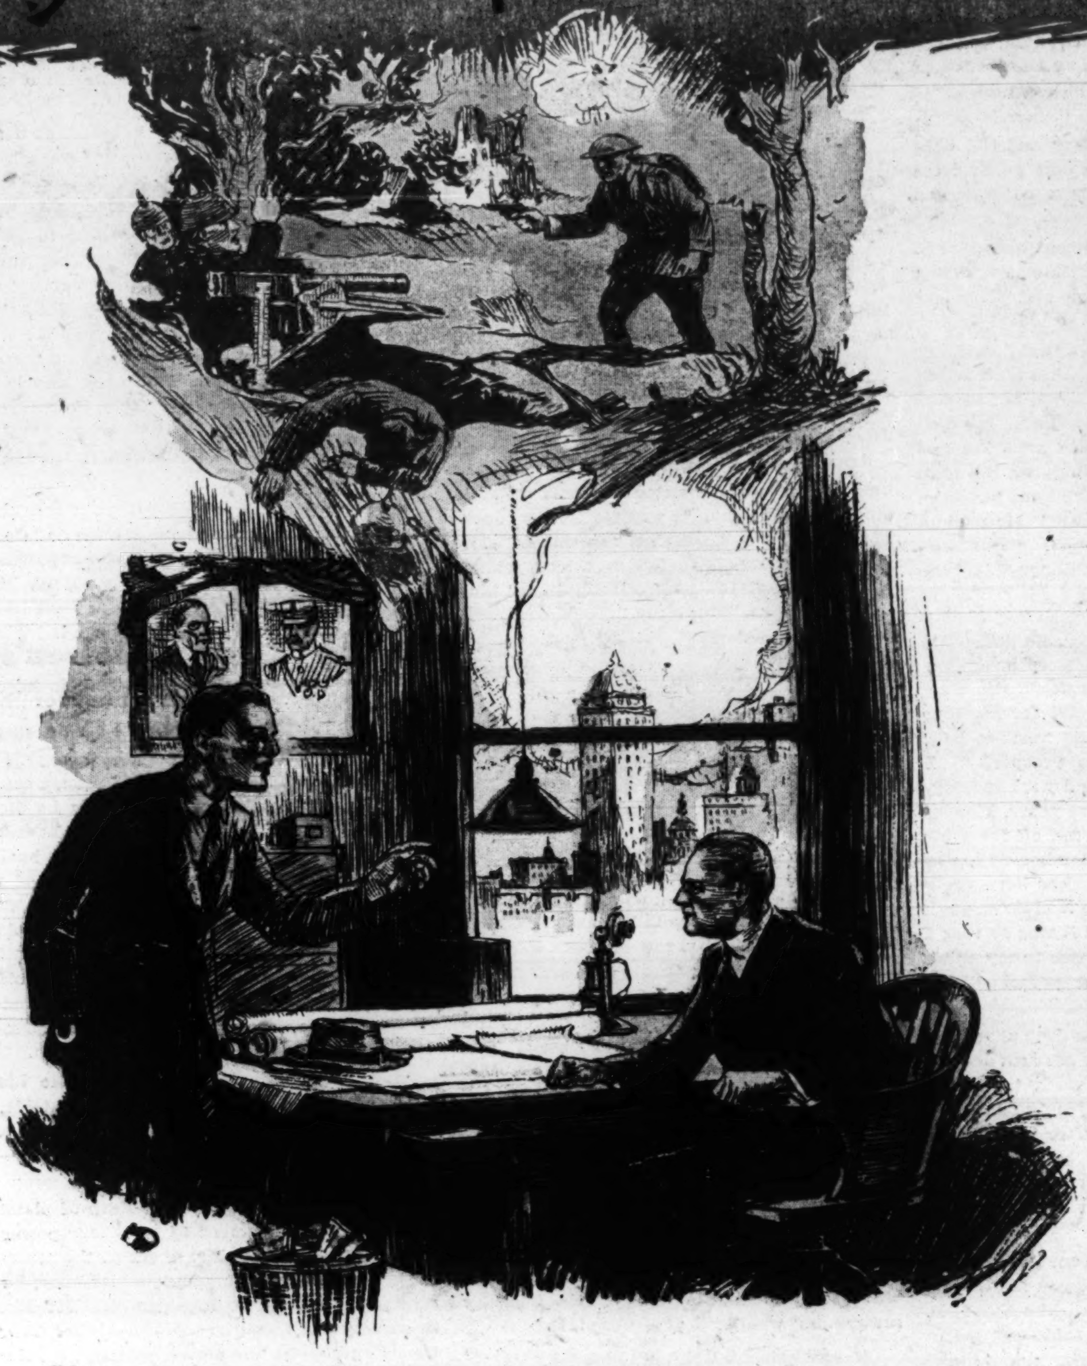
LEST WE FORGET

by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews



“It was simple enough. One morning I got through the enemy's wire near a wood and found I was close to a machine gun . . . ”

“As America Behaves Toward These . . . So Will America Stand in the Respect of the World”

“THAT'S De Brevil himself.”

The two men stepped back as the brown sedan swept to the crossing and glided past into traffic.

“Who?”

“De Brevil of the big turbine engine works out east of here. He was driving.”

“I saw. Big chap. Looks foreign.”

“Yes. French, you know. My brother-in-law's cousin is his secretary, so I hear a lot about him. He's popular at the works. Lord, but that man must have oodles of money! Made it, every cent. Run to seed French nobility. Came across a penniless youngster; then he invented something and got going. But no ordinary inventor—great business head—senses what to do and when to do it. Lordy, I wish he'd tell me.” And the two passed down State street and into the crowd.

While the brown car, two or three blocks away by now, twisted its way through a river of other cars toward the New York Central station, De Brevil, as he slid in and out, touching gears, pressing accelerator or brake by an instinct which had come to be as much beyond thought as walking in a crowd is beyond thought, was smiling. This was no ordinary occasion for which he was to meet the 11:30 train from New York. The 11:30 train this morning was going to revolutionize life out at the Silences, his beautiful place five miles from the city, and De Brevil was glad. Now it would be home. What would it not mean to have Jacqueline in his house!

With his hand on the lever and his eyes on the semaphore which read “Stop” and some of his quick brain taking in the place and direction of every car and truck and foot passenger at the busy street corner, De Brevil fell to dreaming. Jacqueline! The alive, vivid, surprising presence of her, bringing youth and cheerfulness to fill the big rooms with young people, and the wide lawns with laughter, and the wood walks with slim figures and bright dresses. How he would love giving her the gayety that a girl likes! How he would love having her all to himself sometimes! How proud he would be of her when the two went traveling, or motored about the country roads or about these same city streets! People would say, “That is De Brevil and his beautiful niece”—what it was going to mean to him to have somebody belonging to him!

And then—ah, yes! One must face it—then would come another chapter. Jacqueline would have lovers—O, a lot of them. And one day she would fall in love with some abominable youngster and marry him. De Brevil sighed a bit, then he smiled. But yes—that must be. He would make a joy of it, not a tragedy. She was French, little Jacqueline, and most sensible and discerning. No fool, little Jacqueline; she would choose a good sort; but yes. And De Brevil would like it—lovers, a great wedding, presents coming in, a new ménage close by—all the excitement, for his girl, Jacqueline. And by and by there would be adorable golden heads about the big place and stammering voices would call him sweet names. He had got about as far as the first Christmas tree when he found the station in front of him and was forced out of day dreams by the necessity of using his whole intellect to find a spot to park.

Off the train stepped a young person chic in Paris clothes, smiling, a bit excited as the porter selected her bag with devoted attention. The wide, dark eyes danced eagerly about the crowd, and with that she was caught into arms as of a bear and held for a second so that her gasp of “Mon oncle” was not audible.

And the next event was that she was sitting in the brown car beside De Brevil and he was telling her again, as the engine purred down the street, that never, never was any one so welcome anywhere as she, his little Jacqueline, to this big country of America, to this city of Bristol, to his home, her home, “The Silences.” And one big hand found leisure from its affairs of driving to cover hers with an effectionate pressure.

“Le bon Dieu did not give me the dream of my youth,” spoke De Brevil, “but he is making good; but yes, he is doing very well by me, le bon Dieu, at present.”

Jacqueline turned a mocking face of laughter and love. “It would be well that some saint, such as I par exemple, should tell the good God that you think well of his arrangements, Uncle Gaspard,” she said. “And what was the dream of your youth, may one ask? Because it sounds as if it were something like me.”

“Something very like you, my little cabbage,” and the chauffeur had time to flash a glance sidewise. “It was your mother.”

“Maman!” The wide eyes widened. “Was maman then the dream of your youth, my uncle?”

The chauffeur nodded. “Did she never tell you that episode?”

“Never, my uncle.”

“It was for that I fled to America. I discovered one day that it was my older brother she loved and not me—that he loved her. No fault of hers, petite. She did not know of my boy's madness—and there was no reason why she should not love your father, Henri. They were blameless, the two—but I was broken. I ran to America, the safe harbor of the sad—dear America, which has given me so much.”

De Brevil lifted his hat, speaking, as if the flag had passed. He was full of the charm of the Frenchman, where emotion unashamed plays in and out of keen humor and hard sense.

“So the little cabbage never knew,” he went on, “the tragic tale of old Uncle Gaspard, who cried for the moon and couldn't get it, and so left all his ties and France—and the moon—and dashed to the ends of the earth and instantly made a fortune.”

“But no, my uncle,” Jacqueline answered soberly, “I find it most thrilling to know it now. You will tell me much more, some day? All the details? And my Uncle Jules—did he know about it?”

“Ah, the poor Uncle Jules!” and De Brevil shook his handsome head. “It was he who was out of patience with the runaway. 'Til the fat checks came to come. Then he thought better of me. For the most part he was angry, Uncle Jules. But one knows that he suffered—ah, yes!—since the day of Sedan. One should not forget what soldiers have done, who gave youth and strength for the flag, as did Jules. Henri and I were little lads when he marched away, but I remember how he was tall and gay—and you have known how it was with him later. The poor Uncle Jules!”

“Me, I found him always adorable,” threw back little Jacqueline aggressively, and De Brevil stared. “I loved him well, my Uncle Jules. He told me stories of the old war and how the Prussians—the good God twist their necks—marched into Paris and up the Champs Elysées, under the Arc de Triomphe, Uncle Gaspard—our Paris, our Arch of Triumph, and the vile Germans marching there!”

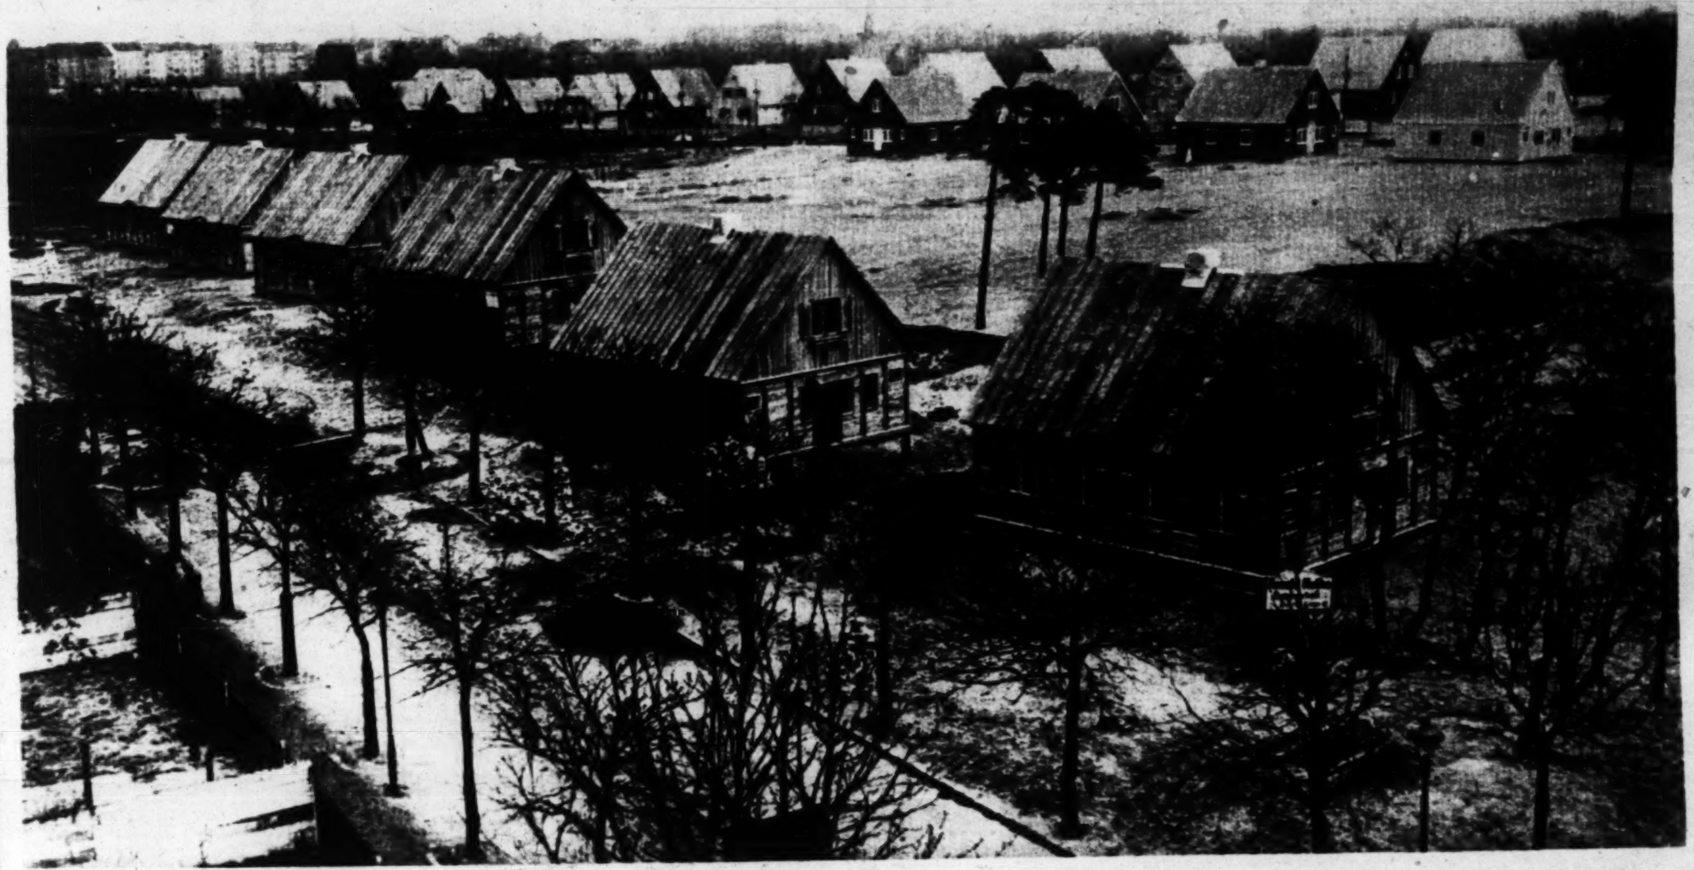
“Look!” interrupted de Brevil. “Viola, my little cabbage! The entrance of The Silences—Les Silences—your home! Is it not that it is beautiful, the long walls with their vines and flowers and the tall pillars with the stone balls on top—n'est ce pas? Is it not that it is like the chateau itself, and does it not look nearly as old?”

To De Brevil every moment after that epoch making moment when his car turned into the stone gates of The Silences was a joyful event. Each room of the house must be shown to its new chatelaine, each servant presented to her, and finally she must be installed in her new quarters, gay with fresh chintzes, friendly with flowers, presided over by a beaming little French maid in faultless gray and white. The day sped on and it was dinner time and the dinner was to be out on the terrace, and the girl came through the wide French windows from the hall and stopped short at the picture before her.

The table gleamed with countless delicate lights and shadows of white cloth and shining silver and sparkling glass. A bowl of June roses splashed colors of pink and crimson against the gray stone balustrade and great stone vases back of it, and beyond the sun was setting in the clear, warm evening through trees across the park. De Brevil was waiting for her, sitting in a deep chair, smoking and staring off dreamily into sun filtered woods. He sprang to his feet and his face was alight. And with that Jacqueline fled across the pavement and tumbled into his arms and choked, sobbing, against his shoulder.

“But what is it, little one, my most adored? Is anything wrong? Were the candles the wrong sort? Is one homesick?” He smoothed the brown, crisply curling head and kissed a wave of it. “Tell the old uncle, then, my treasure.”

Half laughing, choking still, she lifted her face. “I've quite ruined your shirt front—tiens,” she stammered. And then: “It suddenly shocked one with happiness. It was so perfect—so gentil—so all—that—there—is—of exquisite—and my home. Also it has an air of the dear chateau. One has been lonely these last years, my uncle. Since Uncle Jules died. And I have worked—yes, but very hard—among my crippled soldiers in Bordeaux.



BERLIN TACKLES THE HOUSING PROBLEM—A settlement in the suburb of Steglitz, with houses built of material collected from the old military encampments, each accommodating from two to four families and each having its own garden plot. Relieving the shortage of places to live was one of the important undertakings interrupted by the recent uprisings and disorder.

Girls! Beautify Your Hair With "Danderine"

35c a bottle! Freshen your scalp! Stop falling hair! Remove dandruff! Have lots of wavy, glossy, beautiful hair! You can!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair; besides, it eradicates every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength, and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine, apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually—why not now?

35c Bottles. All drug stores and toilet counters

"California Syrup of Figs"

All druggists sell the reliable and genuine "California Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna."

Children's Pleasant Laxative

Full directions for children of all ages are plainly printed on label. Mother! You must look for our name—The California Fig Syrup Company. If you say "California" the dealer will know you want the original, dependable and genuine. Be careful! Don't accept any other kind.

"CORNS"

Lift Corns Right Off! It Doesn't Hurt a Bit

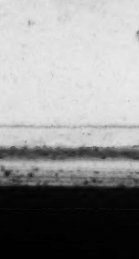
Apply a few drops of Freezone on a touchy corn or a callus, instantly it stops aching, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, with the fingers. No pain at all! No soreness!

Any Corn — Anywhere — Also Calluses on Bottom of Feet

You can lift off every hard corn, soft corn, also corns between the toes and the "hard skin" calluses on bottom of feet.

Costs Only a Few Cents—Try It!

Tiny bottles of Freezone, sufficient to clear your feet of every corn and callus, cost only a few cents—at drug stores.



Do you realize how often eyes are fastened on your nails?

Are you willing to be judged by their appearance?

YOU gesture freely as you talk to him. His eyes follow your moving fingertips. What are his impressions?

Men are especially sensitive to little deficiencies in a woman's appearance. Many men habitually judge a woman by the condition of her hands. The impression given by carelessly manicured nails is a hard thing to overcome.

Wherever you go you are being silently appraised by your nails. Lovely hands, smooth, even nails, immediately suggest a background of refinement.

The most important part of your manicure is the care of the cuticle. When you cut the overgrown cuticle, you inevitably cut the live skin. As it heals, the skin is left thick and ragged. There is danger also of injuring the sensitive nail root which is only one-twelfth inch below the surface.

It is possible to keep the cuticle thin and smooth without cutting it—your hands and nails always lovely. Cutex will soften the cuticle, it will prevent hangnails and rough places.

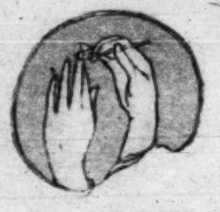
Follow the directions under the illustration. A few minutes, once or twice a week, is all that is necessary to keep your nails lovely.

You can get Cutex at any drug or department store in the United States, Canada, and England. Cutex Cuticle Remover comes in 35c and 65c bottles. Cutex Nail White, Nail Polish and Cold Cream are 35c each.

A manicure set for 20 cents

Send the coupon below and 20 cents for the introductory Manicure Set. This is not as large as the standard set, but it contains enough of the Cutex preparations for at least six manicures. Address Northam Warren, 114 West 17th St., New York City.

If you live in Canada, address Northam Warren, 200 Mountain Street, Montreal.



Push back the cuticle with an orange stick wrapped with cotton and dipped in Cutex. Wipe off the dead, surplus skin and wash the hands. Cutex Nail White and Nail Polish complete a perfect manicure.

ELSIE JANIS must have a place in your movie album by reason of her appearance in the Selznick production, "A Regular Girl." But of course the screen can claim only a part of her, for "Elsie Janis and Her Gang" in "A Peach of a Show" is now making theater audiences rejoice. Of course you know all about the "gang" and the show. To tell you that was the dramatic critic's business. I only edge in to hand you this pair of pictures for your album. (Always trying to make you happy.) Mae Tinee.

ALICE JOYCE and her new husband, James Regan Jr., had this picture taken just after their marriage.

Mr. Regan is the son of James Regan, manager of the Knickerbocker hotel, New York. Miss Joyce, you know, was formerly Mrs. Tom Moore, wife of the popular movie actor. It is said that on the Regans' return from their honeymoon, management of the Knickerbocker hotel will be turned over to the new bridegroom. Mae Tinee.

PAULINE STARKE, who is to be addressed in care of Maurice Tourneur, Culver City, Cal., lends a quaint charm to every role she portrays.

Miss Starke was born in Joplin, Mo., Jan. 10, 1900, and was educated in Kansas City. She made her first picture for Triangle-Fine Arts and it was called "The Rummy." She's been in many productions since then and while for some reason has never become famous, always delights with her clever impersonations.

Gray eyes and brown hair has this little lady—she only weighs 110, and she is 5 feet 4 inches tall. Mae Tinee.

Furs for Immediate Wear

FASHION has decreed that this be a season of Furs. With Suits and Dresses the new Choker Scarf is correct. Where additional warmth is desired, the recent Cape modes fill an admirable place. In Chokers, the one, two and three skin creations are preferred, while in Capes the larger and longer pieces are wanted; Capes to the waist line and longer predominate.

The favored furs for Chokers are Sable, Stone Marten, Japanese Marten, Baum Marten, Squirrel, Australian Opossum, Mink and similar peltries, while in Capes, Mole, Squirrel, Kolinsky and Mink are most sought after.

Bishop's display this season is unusually replete with an alluring variety of the new furs designed according to authentic ideas and developed from the finest fur pelts. With the added inducement of the Bishop Label the assurance of unquestionable satisfaction is ever present.

36657 Mole Cape, $625

3989 Two Skin Hudson Bay Sable Choker, $210

3988 One Skin Hudson Bay Sable Choker, $120

While prices are necessarily slightly higher than those last year, they are no less indicative of the usual reasonableness expected of Bishop's.

The illustrations give an idea of the present tendencies. The styles shown are made in many furs; prices upon request.

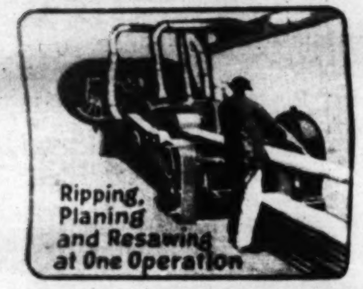
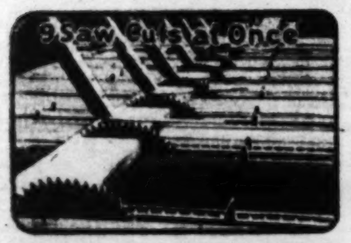
Aladdin Readi-Cut Homes Cut Building Costs

The System

20 ft of Lumber from a 16 ft board



Ripping, Planing and Resawing at One Operation



9 Saw Cuts at Once

Distributing Standardized Sizes by Conveyor

Cutting Mitres, Angles and Bevels by Machine

The Aladdin System scientifically prepares the materials and conserves the labor. You can save 18% on the cost of the lumber and 30% on the cost of the labor.

Certified records of thousands of Aladdin Homebuilders in every state prove these statements. You can prove these statements for yourself, for there is an Aladdin Home near you, wherever you live. The pictures at the left tell the story of scientific preparation and handling of materials, and the pictures at the right the efficient conservation and direction of the labor. Fourteen years' success of the Aladdin System of construction have firmly established its many advantages. THE LUMBER THAT'S WASTED COSTS JUST AS MUCH AS THE LUMBER THAT'S USED. The only possible way to reduce present high prices of lumber and labor is to save the usual waste. The Aladdin System prepares all the lumber in our mills ready to be nailed in place. Waste of lumber is reduced to less than 2%. Cost of labor is reduced 30%. One man will do in six days, with Aladdin Materials, what it requires ten days to accomplish without Aladdin's System.

Shortage of Materials Everywhere

Writing in the New York Herald, John C. Howell says, "Even a normal building program in 1920 will experience difficulty in having orders for building material filled on demand. The building material scarcity will have a serious effect in retarding the development of the program at all commensurate with the building requirements."

Before You Build Be Sure of Getting Complete Shipment of Materials

Lumber stocks were never so low as at present. Nails are practically impossible to secure in most communities. Orders for doors and other mill work are six to twelve months behind delivery dates. Many towns have a glass famine. Lath are about impossible to secure and going up in price regularly. And nearly all other items are difficult to obtain. This will cost millions of dollars to those who build this year in delays on the job. The man who plans to build will probably suffer, unless he secures a guarantee of delivery of complete materials.

Aladdin shipments overcome all difficulty. You are protected by a guarantee. Every order will be shipped complete.

Upon receipt of your order you will receive a bona fide guarantee of complete shipment of all materials required to build the Aladdin Home you purchase. Where else can you get such a guarantee of prompt, complete and satisfactory shipment of all materials?

Bungalows, Dwellings, Garages, Summer Cottages. Send for 100-page Book.

The Aladdin Book of Homes has a message for you. Amongst its pages, profusely illustrated in colors, leading home designs are represented to you. Aladdin houses are cut-to-fit as follows: Lumber, millwork, flooring, outside and inside finish, doors, windows, shingles, lath and plaster, hardware, locks, nails, paints, varnishes. Aladdin's Dollar-a-Knot Guarantee is proof of the high quality. Knotless lumber, the purest and dearest that ever came out of the forest, is the kind that is used in Aladdin Homes. This is evidenced by our famous Dollar-a-Knot Guarantee, which has now been in effect for over four years. The highest grade paints, hardware, doors, windows, millwork, etc., are all included. This material is shipped to you in a sealed boxcar, ready to erect. Safe arrival in perfect condition is guaranteed. Send today for a copy of the 100-page Book, Aladdin Homes No. 176.

Gloria Swanson's

are framed in long, silky, luxuriant EYELASHES and well formed EYEBROWS, and these are largely responsible for the deep, soulful, wistful expression of her eyes and the great charm of her face. No face can be really beautiful without the aid of beautiful Eyelashes and Eyebrows. You, too, can have beautiful Eyelashes and well formed Eyebrows, if you will just apply a little to them for a short time. It is a pure, harmless, delicately scented cream, which nourishes and promotes the growth of Eyelashes and Eyebrows in an amazing manner when used as directed. Long, thick, luxuriant Eyelashes and well formed Eyebrows lend charm, beauty and expression to an otherwise plain face. Stars of the stage and screen, as well as hundreds of thousands of women everywhere, have been delighted with the results obtained by its use. Why not you?

Generous size, 50 cents. At your dealers, or sent direct, in plain cover, upon receipt of price.

The wonderful success attained by "Lash-Brow-Ine" has caused the name to be closely imitated. Look for the picture of "The Maybell Girl," which appears on every package of the genuine "Lash-Brow-Ine," and refuse substitutes.

New Way to Wash Your Face Beautifies Your Complexion

Beauty specialists agree that the secret of a perfect complexion is a thoroughly clean skin. A specialist has perfected a new substance, Ara-Mara, which is not only excellent for washing the face, but it cannot injure the most delicate complexion. It will not, cannot grow hair. All you do is to gently massage it into the skin and wash with plain warm water. It not only cleanses thoroughly, but it lightens the complexion much better than lemon juice or face bleach. It is surprising to see how fresh, clear and wholesome the skin becomes, even after only one proper treatment. Those who use it declare it has done more real good than any complexion treatment they ever used. It's a wonderful treatment for enlarged, cloggy pores and irritations. It certainly is a great blessing to those who are afraid of wrinkles and who have dull, sallow, lifeless complexions. You can always get Ara-Mara at any big store. If you live out of town and your home dealer has not got it, you can order 50 cents' worth of Ara-Mara by mail of Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th Street, New York.

La-May Face Powder Is Harmless to the Most Delicate Skin

A specialist has at last perfected a pure face powder that is guaranteed pure and harmless to the most delicate baby skin. It beautifies wonderfully, because it helps to clear and lighten the skin and protect the complexion from blemishes. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. Of course, every one knows the famous La-may Powder (French, Poudre L'Ame). This is the powder that does not contain starchy rice powder or dangerous white lead to make it adhere. White lead is a deadly poison and rice powder turns into a gluey paste that ruins the complexion by causing enlarged pores, blackheads, and rice powder irritations. All dealers carry the sixty cent box, and many dealers also carry the generous thirty cent size. Be sure to try La-may. Then you will really know a perfect face powder. You will be sorry if you take a substitute. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. Because La-may is so pure and because it stays on so much better it is now used by over a million American women. We will give you one thousand dollars if you can buy a better face powder anywhere, at any price. Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th St., New York. Save this notice.

The Wonder of Creole Hair

The glorious Creole hair—a heritage of their pure French and Spanish blood—has always been admired everywhere. The hair is a special pride of these aristocratic people and for generations La Creole Hair Dressing has been favorite among them.

La Creole Ends Gray Hair

La Creole will restore hair already gray, gray-streaked, or faded, to its youthful color. It contains no dyes and works no sudden change. Two to five weeks' treatment will bring back any shade—lightest brown to deepest black—whatever the natural color was. Refinement approves the use of La Creole.

La Creole must not be confused with dyes—it cannot give a dyed look, and there is nothing to stain the scalp or to wash or rub off. Makes hair wavy, beautiful. Eliminates dandruff.

Absolutely guaranteed to bring back hair's color, or money refunded. Send for booklet, "La Creole" Hair Beautiful. Shows style of hair dressing best suited to each type of face.

At Drug Stores and Toilet Counters; Price $1.00.

If your dealer can't supply you send his name and we will see that you are supplied.

"Stylish Stout" Corsets

TYPICAL of their name "Stylish-Stout" are these corsets—typical in the sense that they transform over-developed figures into the modish silhouette.

A real combination! Style, with Reduction through Sveltline system of designing, providing stylishly slender figure-lines, over which can be worn the latest gown-creations with slim-elegance, and grace.

Carbon Remover

An occasional dose will stop that knock—quiet the motor—and save the batteries. You can do it yourself in ten minutes.

Keep Your Car Young

It isn't fair to yourself or to your car to run it without any attention and then sell it at a big loss. With but little effort you yourself can keep your car in such condition that the depreciation will be very slight. We offer for your use Johnson's Car Savers. No experience is necessary for their use. They can all be applied by the amateur with perfect satisfaction.

There's a Johnson Car Saver for Every Purpose

Start today to reduce the depreciation of your automobile. An hour or two every month and Johnson's Car Savers will prove their value in dollars and cents when you come to sell or turn in your car.

JOHNSON'S Car Savers

Johnson's Car Savers are of the very highest quality that can be produced. You will find cheaper makeshifts on the market, but when you insist upon Johnson's you are taking no chance, for all of our preparations are fully guaranteed.

For years our employees have been our partners and share the profits. Because of this personal interest unusual care and skill enter into the manufacture of the Johnson products—overhead is reduced to the minimum and we are enabled to sell at a very slight increase over pre-war prices, notwithstanding the tremendous advances on all of our raw materials.

Representative dealers and jobbers all over the world handle Johnson's Car Savers. Don't accept or handle unknown substitutes. Write for our booklet, "Keep Your Car Young"—it's free.

Cleaner and Body Polish

Johnson's Cleaner and Johnson's Prepared Wax will enable you to make the body, hood and fenders of your car look like new. Easy to use.

Radiator Cement

In liquid form and easy to use. Will ordinarily seal leaks in from two to ten minutes. No tool kit complete without a can. A half-pint is sufficient for a Ford.

Hastee Patch

A quick, permanent, inexpensive repair for tubes and casings. Can be applied in three minutes at a cost of 2 cents. A box of Johnson's Hastee in your car answers the same purpose as two or three extra tubes and casings.

Valve Grinding Compound

Will remove pits and foreign substances from valves, giving a velvet seat. Will not cut grooves. You can complete the operation without lifting the valve.

Top Dressing

Johnson's Black-Lac is the ideal top dressing. One coat imparts a rich, black, waterproof surface, just like new. Johnson's Black-Lac is easy to apply and dries in fifteen minutes.

Auto-Lak

A splendid elastic varnish for bodies, hoods and fenders. A coat will increase the value of your car from 10% to 35%. Dries in 24 hours. You can apply it yourself with perfect results.

Stop Squeak Oil

It seeps between the springs, thoroughly lubricating them. Makes your car ride easier, reduces the liability of spring breakage. No tool required—it isn't even necessary to jack up the car.

A Finer Typewriter
at a Fair Price

Send No Money!

No money in advance! Not a cent! Simply make your request via the coupon below if you want this brand new Oliver typewriter for five days' free trial in your own home or office. Use this Oliver for five days as if it were your own. Type all your letters or any other work with it. Put it to every conceivable test. Compare it with any $100 typewriter on the market. Compare it for simplicity of construction. For beauty of finish. For ease of operation. For speed. For neatness of work. Then if after five days' free trial you do not wish to keep the typewriter for any reason whatsoever, simply send it back to us and you won't be out one cent for the free trial. If, on the other hand, you decide that it is the finest typewriter, and you wish to keep it, then pay us at the easy rate of only $3 a month. This is the open, free trial offer we make to you on the Oliver to let you see for yourself that if any typewriter is worth $100 it is this splendid, speedy Oliver No. 9, our latest model and the finest we ever built. Who could make such an offer of free trial and ship without money unless they had absolute confidence in the quality of their product proved by years of experience?

Save $43 For $57 you can now obtain the identical Oliver Typewriter formerly priced at $100. We are able to save you nearly half because of our radically new and economical method of distribution. During the war we learned many lessons. We found that it was unnecessary to have such a vast number of traveling salesmen and so many expensive branch houses throughout the country. We were able to discontinue many other superfluous sales methods. The result is that we can afford to sell at $57 the very same Oliver formerly priced at $100.

Mail the Coupon Now Remember, you need not send any money with the coupon. Check the coupon to get the Oliver for five days' free trial in your own home. If you decide to keep the typewriter you can pay for it on terms so easy that you won't miss the money—only $3 a month. If you prefer to have further information before ordering, fill in the coupon for our free catalog. By the coupon you may order the Oliver or the catalog, just as you wish. Clip the coupon now and mail at once.

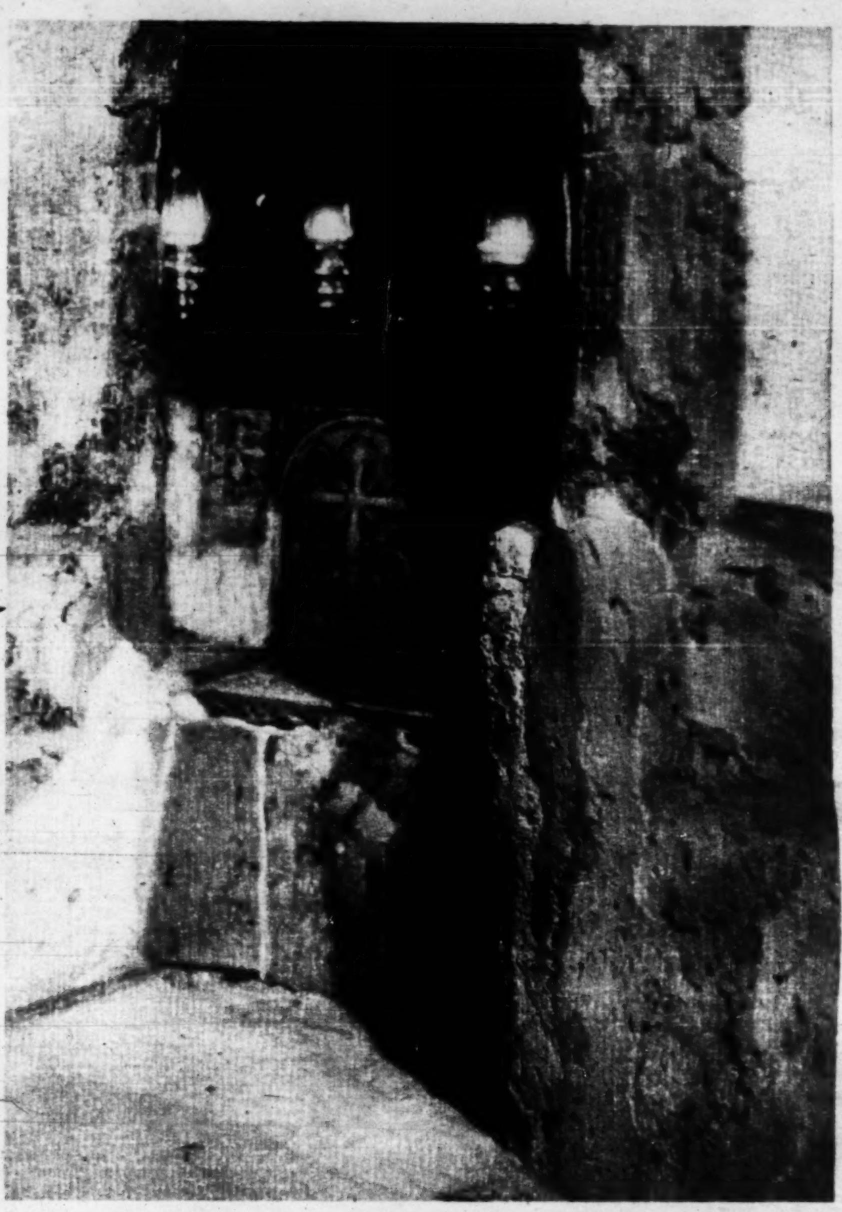
Easter Landmarks in the Holy Land

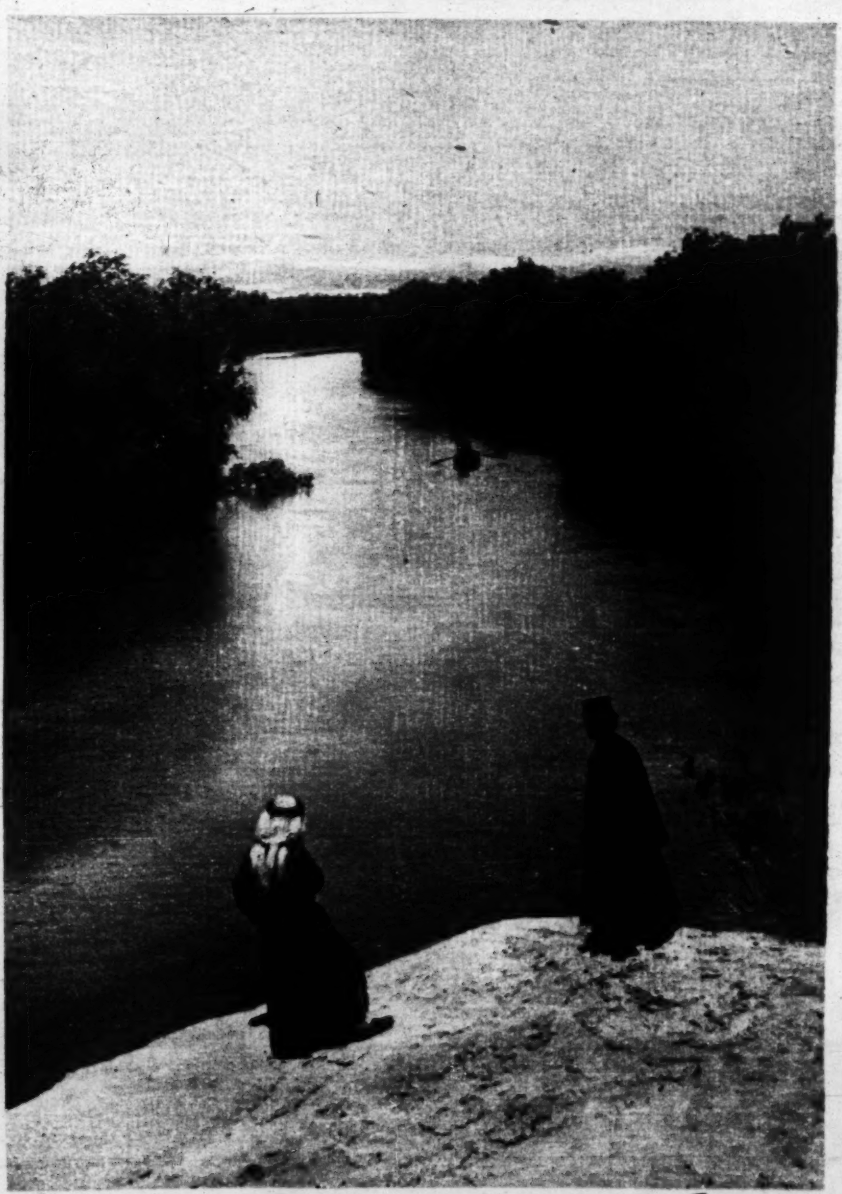
(Photographs copyright by Keystone View Company.)

The most famous road in the world—from the Mount of Olives to the gate of Jerusalem.



In the Church of the Holy Sepulcher—the gold lamps at the tomb are never allowed to go out.

According to tradition it was in this house in Jerusalem that the Last Supper was eaten.



The River Jordan is a narrow stream that makes many twists and turns on its journey to the Dead sea

JEFF, I'VE GOT A GREAT SCHEME TO CLEAN UP TEN BUCKS. MY WIFE WONT GIVE ME ANY OF MY MONEY SO I'M GONNA GET SOME OF HER'S. I'LL FOOL HER.
WHAT'S YOUR SCHEME, MUTT?
I WANT YOU TO SHAVE AND DRESS UP LIKE A BOY. THEN WE'LL CALL ON MY WIFE. YOU PICK ME UP AND CARRY ME ACROSS THE ROOM- THAT'LL BE YOUR PART OF THE WORK.
FINE! TEE HEE!
SEE? I'VE COLORED SOME WATER WITH PRUNE JUICE. I'LL CALL IT "PRUNO, THE CHILDREN'S TONIC". I'LL SAY IT GAVE YOU YOUR WONDERFUL HEALTH AND STRENGTH!
PRUNO
TEE HEE! RIPPING!
BUT I REFUSE TO TALK BABY TALK.
MY WIFE WILL BUY THIS GALLON FOR CICERO. SHE'LL WANT HIM TO BE STRONG LIKE YOU. TEE HEE.
WIFEY, I HAVE A NEW JOB. I'M INTRODUCING "PRUNO, THE CHILDREN'S TONIC". IT'S JUST THE TONIC FOR CICERO.
OH FINE!
MEET THIS LITTLE FIVE YEAR OLD BOY. HE HAS BEEN USING "PRUNO" FOR A YEAR. SEE HOW HEALTHY HE IS.
AND SO POLITE. COME IN AND MEET LITTLE CICERO.
BEHOLD! THE USE OF "PRUNO" HAS GIVEN THIS CHILD THE STRENGTH OF A MAN. IT'S ONLY $10 A GALLON, DEAR.
MARVELOUS!
FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE!
SOME MUSCLE, EH, CICERO? "PRUNO" DID THAT.
I'LL TAKE A GALLON, MUTT!
IT'S LIKE IRON.
THANKS
SMACK
SOFT!
LITTLE BOY, YOU SEEM TO BE SUCH AN UNUSUAL CHILD. TELL ME- HAVE YOU EVER BEEN ILL?
BEING ONLY HUMAN I MUST CONFESS I'VE HAD A FEW SICK SPELLS IN MY TIME.

FOR SALE — THE MAN OF MODERATE MEANS cannot afford the present high rents, nor can he afford the usual high cost of buying a home.

Here is the solution and the most timely offer ever made: I offer you a new, modern home in one of the prettiest suburbs, 30 minutes from the loop, on the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago electric. This home is on nearly an acre of land, two blocks from the station. You pay for it $30 a month, including interest. Not only have you an ideal home in a beautiful location, but you reduce your rent and can raise enough vegetables to nearly eliminate your grocery bill.

Doesn't this appeal to you as the sanest and best solution of your troubles that you have seen?

This offer is limited to a few, and while opportunity is knocking write for full details. Address K G 453, Tribune.

Colorado

Happy Farm Homes

The lands on Redlands Mesa, one of the most beautiful spots in Delta County, Colorado, in acreages of from ten to forty acres, which makes at once a delightful home and an unusually profitable farm.

These lands can be purchased on a payment of one-eighth down, with the balance of payments arranged so they can be met from the proceeds of the land.

It is irrigated by a very reliable irrigation system, of which any purchaser becomes a part owner.

The climate is well known to be one of the most healthful to be had; the Colorado school system is excellent and there are good markets, and, what is not least, good neighbors.

Call or write for our literature, giving full information.

FOR SALE—LOOK—COMBINATION FARM, STOCK AND TIMBER PROPOSITION.

2,880 acres very best sandy loam delta land, located in Pointe Coupee Parish, La., which is one of the richest sections of country in the South, between two railroads—not more than two and one-half miles from either; good public road through place. The entire place has been under fence for stock, but fence is down in few places, but can be repaired at very little expense. 300 acres in high state of cultivation; all broken, ready for planting in corn and cotton; 400 acres in deadening, which can be put into cultivation at very little expense.

Recent cruise shows more than SIX MILLION FEET of hardwood timber on place—principally red gum, which timber is accessible to both rail and water transportation. There are under construction at present two big band saw mills within twelve miles of this proposition. This place has natural drainage—lies principally in gum ridges, has big bayou and several smaller bayous through the place.

Improvements: One big barn and smaller barns, 15 good tenant houses, plenty of labor. We have been over every foot of this property personally and can conscientiously say that we do not think that there is any better soil to be found in the world; would be worth the price asked if there was not a house, fence, or stick of timber on it.

For quick sale, $25 per acre; one-fourth cash, balance in eight years at 6%. For further particulars write or wire.

BATON ROUGE, LA.

NEW PLAN.

Dairy farms, cattle, sheep, goat, and hog ranches of all sizes in the fine cutover lands of the rich states of Louisiana and Mississippi, contiguous to N. O. G. N. Ry., and carefully selected under expert advice with reference to flowing streams, ranch headquarters, feeding, herding, and breeding grounds, farming lands, and shipping facilities. Land at extremely low prices and payments extending over long period of years, so that payments per acre per year amount to little more than interest on purchase price and on ordinary leasing charge for grazing purposes, and yet at end of payments you own the land. Write Walter S. Ayers, Industrial Commissioner N. O. G. N. Ry., 1060 McCormick Bldg., Chicago, Ill., for dependable information.

REAL ESTATE—FARM LANDS.

Michigan.

Use Your Credit

The president of one of the largest concerns in this country says: "Get in debt for something of real value and stay in debt." The man who never owes a dollar is seldom a financial success.

Our advice to you is—BUY LAND. Get in debt and pay yourself back from the products. Stop working for the other fellow and know the pleasure that comes to the man who owns his own farm home. The fact that you are a farm owner gives you a financial standing; in other words, credit, and it is credit that gives most men their start.

We start you on some of the best hardwood land in Michigan; only $15 to $35 per acre, on long time payment plan. We have lands located on beautiful lakes and streams.

Good schools, churches, hard roads, railroads, telephones, and R. F. D. The crops raised include potatoes, corn, wheat, oats, rye, beans, clover, alfalfa, vegetables, and fruit. Any size tract may be purchased from 10 to 160 acres. No swamps or stones.

We have 21 years' experience behind us. We loan money to settlers to build and buy live stock after the land is paid for. Also free insurance and agricultural experts to advise you, and there is a Michigan law that exempts actual settlers from taxes for five years. We are the actual owners of these lands and give Abstract of Title and Warranty Deed on every purchase.

Our new Clubhouse has first class accommodations for yourselves and wives. Write for full particulars. DO IT NOW.

Stock and Dairy Farm

Of 483 acres, located 7 miles from Sheridan, Oregon; two and a half hours' ride by automobile from Portland, on good hard road, with excellent railway facilities.

All fenced with woven wire; 300 acres under plow, 40 acres in timber, balance is fine pasture that could be easily cleared. Creeks on two sides of the farm.

The soil is suitable for growing fruits, grains, grasses, and hops, but is especially adapted to the growing of corn, grains, and silage crops. A running spring under pressure, with a large cement reservoir, provides water for the house and barn.

Modern 8 room house and 6 room bungalow, with hot and cold water and baths. All necessary machinery, power engines, and implements.

The main cow barn has steel stanchions for 60 cattle and sanitary fattening pens for 100 head of hogs. In an adjoining building there are maternity stalls and feeding stanchions for calves. The power building is completely equipped.

This property is clear of incumbrance and is offered for sale to close an estate. The price is $75,000; one-half cash and balance at 6%, on long terms if desired.

I also have 354 acres of fine land adjoining the above; two-thirds in cultivation; price $36,000. Correspondence solicited for all kinds of land in Oregon and Washington.

If this payment is made, we furnish on credit $400 worth of building material. We also extend credit to purchase stock and tools. You may use your earnings for first five years for further improvements and living expenses.

Sales Plan No. 2—$100 down and $120 per year, or $50 down and $15 per month buys 80 acres—40 acres of agricultural land and 40 acres of grazing land. After $500 is paid you have privilege of plan No. 1.

Our lands are located in Forest and Oconto counties, Wis. Our prices range from $20 to $30 per acre for agricultural land and $8-$10-$12 to $15 per acre for grazing land. No sand or swamp unfit for agricultural development offered for sale. Stony land or land too rough for agricultural purposes is sold as grazing land. Our land is graded by our graduate, experienced agriculturists and sold on its merits.

We will show land on and after April 15. A trip of investigation will pay you. Only one night's ride out of Chicago, railroad fare $16.56 round trip. The service of our agriculturists and autos free of charge while you investigate our lands.

We represent Holt Lbr. Co., Oconto Co. and Menominee Bay Shore Lbr. Co. You get your contract direct from the lumber company whose financial standing you can investigate through any Chicago or Milwaukee bank.

As to our soil, crops, etc., we refer you to the State Department of Agriculture, Madison, Wisconsin.

Car de Luxe

Our Easter Offering

Then words fail to describe a car we use etry.

Ben Jonson, the great English poet, dreamed of this car over 300 years ago when he wrote:

"See the chariot at hand here of Love,
Wherein my Lady rideth!
Each that draws is a swan or a dove,
And well the car Love guideth.
As she goes, all hearts do duty
Unto her beauty.
Have you seen but a bright lily grow?
Have you mark'd but the fall of the snow?
Have you felt the wool of beaver,
Or swan's down ever?
O so white, O so soft, O so sweet!"

If you would see the most wonderful looking automobile you could ever hope to come to our show room today and behold this PACKARD twin six with the special Fleetwood 4 passenger phaeton or sport model body.

This car is distinctly a Harris & Rodgers creation.

It will form the centerpiece of our display during our special sale of PACKARD used cars Easter week. Every car sold under standard new car warranty. No war tax or freight.

GLASER'S BARGAINS.

Mr. Auto Buyer: Remember that Joseph G. Glaser, Chicago's Largest Used Car Dealer, has always on hand over 100 guaranteed rebuilt used cars at prices that cannot be compared with those of any other dealer in town. Remember that we are the largest concern of that kind in town, and that every car in our stock is our own personal property; that we do not handle cars on consignment. Therefore our vast buying power enables us to offer you these rare bargains. All of our cars offered for sale have been thoroughly overhauled and rebuilt in our shops, which are the largest of their kind in Chicago. Inspection of our mechanical department is open to the public. Every car sold is sold with a written 8 months' guarantee. Demonstrations are cheerfully given, with no obligation to the buyer. All we ask you to do is to call at our salesroom and look over these many bargains, and we are sure you will drive one home. Terms made to suit the purchaser, or your car or diamonds in part payment.

"BE A PACKARD OWNER."

When you buy a car, you want to feel assured that you are getting value received for your investment, and that you can depend upon it for steady, continuous service. You are warranted more than this when you buy a Packard, because our cars are not merely overhauled. They are completely rebuilt and refinished, equipped with new cord tires, and present every appearance of a new car. In addition, an iron-clad guarantee goes with every rebuilt Packard car that is delivered, and in purchasing one, you will be getting a car that is much less expensive than a new car of some other make, and its superior wearing qualities and eminent features of individuality incite pride of ownership.

We have Packard cars, ranging in price from $1,250 to $6,250, thus you will see that in our complete stock you will find just the car to meet your expectations of expenditure.

The following brief descriptions will give you some idea of what we have, but a visit to our Salesrooms will convince you:

PACKARD 3-35 TWIN SIX BROUGHAM, upholstered in gray velour; chassis has been rebuilt and is guaranteed. Complete equipment in every detail, including all new cord tires and fuelizer; ideal for private use.

PACKARD 2-35 TWIN SIX LIMOUSINE, with special built new body, upholstered in gray and fitted with every appointment; chassis completely rebuilt and covered by our guarantee; all new cord tires.

We also have a great many cars of miscellaneous make from which to select. Write for Bulletin.

SPECIAL WEEKLY SALE.

For Easter holiday week we are pleased to announce a sale of twin six

PACKARDS

"Packard carriages" are the preference of the elite—people who are accustomed to the best and sense quality, style, and comfort.

1919 3-25 Special Fleetwood 4 passenger phaeton or sport model. The entire car is painted an ivory white. The upholstery is untufted green patent leather and the top is light tan English Burbank cloth. 6 Rudge-Whitworth wire wheels, 4 brand new Goodyear Cord tires.

1919 3-35 custom built 7 passenger town car limousine with 7 passenger open touring body. The enclosed body is finished in Packard blue with finest imported blue broadcloth. Words are inadequate to describe the beauty of this car.

1919 3-25 7 passenger touring car finished in Packard blue with straw colored wheels. Carefully driven only 3,500 miles.

1917 2-25 4 passenger chummy roadster. This is one of those "clubby" shorter wheel base Packards that are so extremely popular. Very little mileage, cord tires. We also have a 2-25 touring with wire wheels and a 4 passenger sport.

These cars have been completely renewed and are sold with standard new car warranty. No war tax or freight.

ON DISPLAY IN OUR SHOW WINDOWS ALL NEXT WEEK AT SPECIAL PRICES.

Real Values in Tires

These GOODYEAR and GOODRICH are adjustable tires obtained direct from the factories in Akron, Ohio. These slightly used tires were guaranteed and the slight defects which were caused through service have been corrected by our skilled mechanics. We guarantee this correction to outlive the rest of the tire, thereby making these perfect tires in each and every way.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS.

THE TRUTH ABOUT HAIR MATTRESSES.

A clever felt mattress salesman once upon a time hit on the idea of giving the hair mattress a black eye by saying, "But hair is an animal product." That slander has caused many people to choose felt or cotton mattresses in place of hair, much to their discomfort. The truth is that curled hair is the finest material for stuffing mattresses that has ever been discovered.

It is an animal product, but first it is scrubbed and scoured and sterilized. Then it is braided and hung up to cure for six months. When unbraided the curl is permanent, and this curl makes the most buoyant, resilient, restful mattress material in the world.

Sanitary curled hair is germ proof, nonabsorbent, porous, and self-ventilating. It stays sweet and clean, never gets lumpy, hard, soggy, or uncomfortable.

"Restgood" Sanitary Curled Hair Mattresses are made of the best curled hair. We buy the hair from the foremost producers. We employ only the most proficient mattress makers. We make only the finest curled hair mattresses and box springs—no sweatshop methods or surroundings.

If you live within the city limits of Chicago we will sell you a Restgood Mattress and Box Spring at wholesale prices, saving you the middleman's profit—a clear saving of at least 50% and giving you the finest hair mattress skill and money can produce.
